Air Crash Kills Local Man, Wife

By DON VIPOND

The bodies of an Oak Bay couple were found in the wreckage of their private plane on the side of a mountain near Port Angeles this morning.

Dead are Charles Watts, 46, and his wife, Jean, 43, of 2960 Surrey Rd. Mr. Watts was the owner and manager of the London Silk Co. Ltd. at 1439 Douglas.

The Watts left Patricia Bay Airport about 4 p.m. Friday on a business trip to Los Angeles. When they were overdue clearing customs at Portland their plane was reported missing.

The Washington Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, had organized a search involving 11 planes and about 60 men this morning.

SAW SMOKE

But it was a pilot from the Port Angeles Flying Service who spotted smoke on Blyn Mountain about 20 miles east of Port Angeles at first light today.

A helicopter from the Port Angeles Coast Guard station was dispatched to the scene and located the smouldering wreckage of the red and white Cessna 210 shortly before 8 a.m.

The two bodies were found in the plane which had crashed about the 1,800-foot level on the east side of the 2,550-foot mountain.

The mountain lies just behind the coastal community of Blyn among the foothills of the rugged Olympic range.

Peter Watts, son of the victims and a vice-president in the firm, said this morning his parents were on a business flight to Los Angeles and intended landing at Portland to pass through American customs before completing their flight.

GOOD PILOT

He described his father as a very competent pilot with over 1,000 hours flying time to his credit.

A spokesman for the American search and rescue team said weather conditions in the area of the crash Friday night included a cloud ceiling of about 1,500 feet, intermittent rain and ground fog closing in.

George Parsons, a business associate of the Watts, said Mrs. Watts told him Friday they did not expect to be able to clear customs at Seattle because of the weather and were heading for Portland instead.

The couple were excited about attending a fashion show in Los Angeles, he said. He described Mr. Watts as "a very cautious pilot."

A team from the Clallam County Sheriff's Office and the Mountain Rescue Council were on the way by foot to the crash site this morning to conduct the recovery operation.

Fiery Crash Kills Driver After Chase

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) —An innocent motorist was killed following a police chase through New Westminster early today.

The accident occurred after a police patrol vehicle was sideswiped in downtown New Westminster by another vehicle and gave pursuit.

Police said rain-slick road conditions caused them to give up the chase. The vehicle being pursued smashed into a car stopped at a red light. Police estimated it was travelling about 75 miles an hour but said their pursuing car never exceeded 35 miles per hour.

The impact of the accident caused the stopped vehicle to burst into flames. The driver, aged between 25 and 30, was trapped inside and perished.

Hanoi Says Make It Unconditional, Final

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson's latest enunciation of his Vietnamese policy drew an apparent brushoff from North Vietnam.

Even before the president spoke Friday night, offering to halt U.S. bombing of North Vietnam in return for prompt, "productive discussions," a high-ranking North Vietnamese official appeared to be turning thumbs down to such a proposal.

Vice-Premier Le Thanh Nghai said in Peking that the United States "must unconditionally halt its bombing and other war acts against the Democratic Republic of Vietnam once and for all," withdraw its forces from South Vietnam and recognize the Viet Cong as "the sole genuine representative of the people of South Vietnam."

LBJ CHANGES LITTLE

Stop-Bomb Offer Rejected Before

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON—President Johnson Friday night shuffled the words of his peace overtures to Hanoi in a nationwide television address, but framed them in a policy which Hanoi has many times rejected.

On the key issue of ending the bombing of North Vietnam, Mr. Johnson said he would do that "when this will lead promptly to productive discussions."

The last five words of that phrase were exactly those used at the United Nations eight days ago by Ambassador Arthur Goldberg.

Goldberg also had said that if the bombing were to stop and negotiations begin, the talks would have to be "under circumstances which would not disadvantage either side."

The president's formulation Friday night was that "we would assume that while discussions proceeded, North Vietnam would not take advantage of the bombing cessation or limitation."

Such minute differences could be important, even critical, if there were any sign that the leaders of North Vietnam to which they were addressed were in any mood for compromise. But there is no such sign and indeed the president himself catalogued the administration's judgment as to why not.

Hence the burden of the speech was not about negotiations but about the dissent at home which, he indicated, Hanoi expects to produce a change in the American policy.

And to the dissenters at home the president gave the back of his hand, though in tones more of sorrow than anger.

There was no crack this time about "nervous nellies". Rather there was an effort to argue his case with the dissenters in hopes that some might be persuaded.

The case, however, was not new. It was founded on the Ruskian rock that the way to prevent World War III is to halt "Communist expansionism" in Southeast Asia.

"The true peacekeepers," he said, "are those men who stand on the DMZ at this hour, taking the worst that the enemy can give." Those who do the opposite, who urge the president to get out, are only helping to sustain the Communist belief that "their staying power is greater than ours," as he quoted an unnamed western diplomat as having reported after a visit to Hanoi.

China Spurns UN Effort To End War

By DAVID OANCIA
Special to The Times

PEKING—All Communist diplomats except those from Albania, Rumania, North Korea and North Vietnam walked out of a state banquet for a visiting high-level delegation from Hanoi when Premier Chou En-lai accused Soviet leaders of "running hither and thither to serve the United States imperialist scheme of 'peace talks'."

The Chinese premier made unmistakably clear once again that his government views as a hoax any attempt to end the Southeast Asian war by inducing peace talks through a bombing pause and as vain any attempt to use the United Nations to "meddle in the Vietnam question."

'HAS NO RIGHTS'

"We have consistently held that the Vietnam question has nothing to do with the United Nations; that the United Nations has no right whatsoever to meddle in the Vietnam question and that the Vietnam question can only be settled in accordance with the four-point stand of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the five-point statement of the South Vietnam National Front for Liberation," he declared.

The premier's guest of honor was Vice-Premier Le Thanh Nghi, the man who only one week ago signed an agreement covering military and economic aid—described by European Communist sources as massive—with the Soviet government.

Le, who returned to Hanoi from Moscow during last week, flew into Peking as leader of the Vietnamese delegation to attend the celebrations this weekend marking the eighteenth anniversary of the creation of the People's Republic of China.

In his response to Chou's toast, Le declared that in the present age no important international issue can be settled without the participation of China.

If there's anythin' left o' Vietnam when they're through bombin' it'll be th' best iron mine in th' world.

Nationalist China Angry With Canada

(Times News Services)

TAIPEI — Nationalist China reacted angrily today to Canada's stand for a "two Chinas" policy at the United Nations.

The official governing party newspaper Central Daily News has asked the Nationalist Chinese government to reconsider the impending visit to Canada of C. K. Yen, vice-president and premier.

The newspaper, published by the Kuomintang, President Chiang Kai-shek's ruling party on Taiwan, expresses in an editorial anger over External Affairs Minister Martin's speech to the United Nations General Assembly last Wednesday in which he appeared to again recommend a two-China policy at the UN.

The newspaper says the Martin speech appears to conflict with a recent statement by Prime Minister Pearson that, in view of the current turmoil on the China mainland, Canada has no reason to recognize the Peking regime nor to recommend its admission to the United Nations at the current General Assembly session.

In the UN last year, Martin had recommended that Nationalist China remain a UN member but that Communist China also be admitted and given the permanent Security Council seat now held by the Nationalists.

The newspaper comments: "We cannot help but ask whether it is "Ottawa's Mr. Pearson or the UN's Mr. Martin who really represents the Canadian government."

GOODWILL VISIT

The Central Daily News says the Taiwan vice-president's trip originally was intended as a goodwill visit to promote friendly relations. But Martin's statement at the UN "cast a dark shadow on Sino-Canadian friendship."

The foreign office declined comment on the newspaper's proposal that the wisdom of the Yen visit be reconsidered. All

SEEKING a seat in the House of Commons is Manitoba Premier Duff Roblin, who made the announcement today after a meeting with Conservative Leader Stanfield in Winnipeg. No constituency has been selected for the bid, to be made "at the first opportunity" after a successor is named in Manitoba Nov. 25.

'We Must Chart Own Path'

CLEAR LAKE, Man. (CP) — The Conservative party should develop its own proposals for preserving French-English unity in Canada, leader Robert Stanfield said today.

He told a party seminar sponsored by the youth wing it would be premature for the party to commit itself to agree on unspecified federal-government proposals for keeping Canada together.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservative party doesn't know what the proposals might be, nor does the Liberal government.

"I think it is, at this time, a far better service of the public interest for this party to discuss and develop our own proposals, within caucus, and with the advice of the party at large," he said.

Mr. Stanfield's speech followed earlier reports of a meeting of minds between him and Prime Minister Pearson to take a constructive, non-inflammatory approach on the touchy question of national unity, largely involving Quebec aspirations.

It was Mr. Stanfield's first major public address since he replaced John Diefenbaker as leader Sept. 9. It dealt heavily with national unity.

He noted the prime minister has "expressed an interest" in a bi-partisan approach to unity problems. And Mr. Stanfield was "determined" that these current problems must not become inflamed by merely partisan debate."

EXCLUSIVE STANFIELD INTERVIEW

Robert Stanfield, the man who was elected to succeed John Diefenbaker as leader of the Progressive Conservative Party, is little-known outside the Maritimes and is particularly a stranger to Western Canadians.

In an exclusive interview with Ottawa commentator Peter C. Newman, the first on-the-record conversation with a journalist since moving to Ottawa, the former Nova Scotia premier reveals some of his political philosophy and principles, as well as his interests outside politics. A transcript of their conversation begins on Page 5 today and will be concluded Monday.

WASH-IN WASN'T WASH-OUT AS LUCKLESS HIPPIE DUNKED

TORONTO (CP) — The wash-in wasn't a wash-out after all.

Despite pelting rain that threatened to do their work for them, engineering students at the University of Toronto corralled a kicking, screaming hippie in Yorkville and dragged him to their bathtub on wheels.

"We worked on the premise that if you can't bring the hippie to the water, you bring the water to the hippie," said Al Hamilton.

He described the caper as "an attempt to do something constructive."

The students marched from the university campus to the nearby Yorkville coffee house district behind a brass band, dragging a bathtub on wheels filled with warm soapy water.

Hippies scattered in all directions as the 300 students marched along Yorkville Avenue chanting their theme: "Wash, wash, wash. . . ."

A fast-moving strike force detached itself from the main body and pounced on luckless Alex Johnston, 19. He took his dunking with good humor as he climbed out of the tub, wringing his soaked clothing.

"We just wanted to show how we felt about Yorkville," said Hamilton. "We wanted to help in some way to overcome the blight."

BLINKING, Alex Johnson, 19, protests as Toronto University engineering students soak him with water and suds in what the students called an international wash-in. Johnson was the only hippie in the Yorkville area the students were able to catch with their bathtub on wheels. (CP Wirephoto.)

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — Coquahalla likes to blister out of the gate and gets the ideal post for it. But he isn't too dogged. Bernfield Extra shouldn't be far away and seems capable of coming off the speed. Mission Man has a look with these. My Madronna gets Harris and off one race could be the danger late. Mercilynn is a threat at the weights. Jayie may be underrated and is an interesting possibility at a price. French Cargo looked a certain winner but folded her tent in the last 16th. From the outside she would have to deliver her best. . . . MY MADRONNA, Mercilynn, Bernfield Extra.

SECOND RACE—If Princess Maya had a race over the track it would be difficult to quibble with her. She acts as if a soft strip would be alright and may have enough stamina to hold them off. Dark Susan appears the main threat early and while she has been meeting easier she's sharp. Capt. Dahl and Frisky Admiral both drop and figure in the fray. Jayleen couldn't catch easier but she was checked momentarily in the stretch. Red Repulse is going well but adds 11 pounds. Sir Silver Scot lost lengths moving on the outside and still wasn't beaten badly. If Harris can find the holes this could be the spot . . . SIR SILVER SCOT, Princess Maya, Dark Susan.

THIRD RACE — Grandview Red may try to steal this and has the rider for the task. Much depends on how well he comes away from the gate. Primali has fair foot and is shopping for a spot. Pepperoni took the lead and faltered; he's hard to guess but some of his best races have been from off the lead. Lucky Spender gets far out of it but was closing in a sprint and should appreciate the distance. Stromaway obviously needed his last; he should be much tighter today. Sienna Fire doesn't mow them down—he plods and if they tire they're in trouble . . . STROMWAY, Grandview Red, Lucky Spender.

FOURTH RACE — Souzem broke a little slowly and got too far out of it in his last. He was running hard in the stretch but Coppernoll couldn't find room. Hi-Ma-Dan likes the track and shouldn't be far away with these. G Day probably needed that last; the spot isn't too tough. Rondocal has a shot here. Dark Doll could give them a rousing battle; check her Saturday form. . . . SOUZEM, Dark Doll, Hi-Ma-Dan.

FIFTH RACE — Littlebitofsugar and Parisienne Pixie come out with their jets smoking. If either wasn't in the race the other would likely open up. But their identical styles could compromise their chances and set it up for the late chargers. Chief Malarkey can stay fairly close and come on; he didn't beat too much but the time was crisp. Velvet Morn ran into a wall of horseflesh at the head of the stretch and could have been closer. Madam Isabelle drops but her victories are few and far between. . . . CHIEF MALARKEY, Velvet Morn, Littlebitofsugar.

SIXTH RACE—About 19 crystal balls and a ton of tea leaves would come in handy here. Chocolate Lily likes the off track and gets the rail. Swan Lady used to revel in goo and can also hustle. Easy Joe switches from Sam to Frazier, runs on anything, and is by no means out of it. Bevy's Boy comes off a win and closes resolutely. Beau Kim would need his best and Miss Cye C is always a threat with her speed. Boyaggio is often close. In a typical western scramble . . . CHOCOLATE LILY, Bevys Boy, Swan Lady.

373	Yansco (Trejos)	117
357	Starma (Broomfield)	109

Weather raining, track sloppy.
Post parade on Monday, 2 p.m.

SEVENTH RACE — It will be interesting to see which one of these goes for the lead, since most of them come from out of it. Handsome Chief and Top Canadian were thundering in the stretch and are in good hands. Glencar is much improved and Taylor Way has a fairly convincing late rush. Jay Circle also closed stoutly. Ellabhai is on the upgrade but looks tougher here. Serenade in Red lacks a race over the track but might roll out early and make it rough . . . HANDSOME CHIEF, Top Canadian, Serenade in Red.

EIGHTH RACE—Pride O'Red moves from the No. 6 hole to the inside and might draw clear, especially if it stays soft. Magicmaker can zing but likes to be on the lead alone. If Frazier can get good position early with Siouxson he might grind them down late. Loodani and Famous Bayboy are the dangers from behind; the latter doesn't stop to smell the flowers from the three-eighths pole in. Hola Fire and Social Club add to the pace duel if they get it. . . . SIOUXSON, Famous Bayboy, Pride O'Red.

SUB RACE—Yansco has the foot and some day may forget to stop. Dody Dear, Concise Answer (who was entered Saturday) and Lady of Kent can be bothersome in the lane . . . DODY DEAR, Concise Answer, Lady of Kent.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clearing occurred in the interior behind a disturbance which crossed the area overnight but clouds were rapidly developing again this morning. Along the coast a moist Pacific flow maintained cloudy skies and scattered showers. Little change is anticipated for the day along the coast. In the interior showers and isolated thundershowers are expected to develop during the afternoon and evening. Another Pacific disturbance will bring more rain to coastal points tonight and showers to the interior Sunday.

Access Areas Still Closed Despite Rain

Despite the recent rain, Sooke logging access areas will remain closed to hunters this weekend as crews mop up slash fires to prepare for normal logging Monday.

Most Cowichan areas will be closed but No. 16 Creek and No. 19 Creek roads will be open.

It is hoped all access areas will be open to hunters next weekend.

RAIN FORECAST

While some 200 fires are still burning throughout British Columbia, the weatherman promises weekend relief for B.C. forests.

Rain is expected to fall over most of Vancouver Island today, tonight and Sunday, with temperatures ranging between 62 and 52 degrees.

Temperature-lowering cloud covers and showers are predicted for both coastal and interior regions.

General rains over much of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland since Thursday have reduced hazards in these areas.

The B.C. Forest Service said 87 new fires occurred during the week, bringing the season's total to 3,196. The province's fire-fighting bill rose to $6,572,300—an increase of $424,800 from a week ago.

Crown Prince Canada Bound

OSLO (AP) — Crown Prince Harold of Norway left Oslo by plane for Montreal this morning to start a 12-day official and private visit to Canada.

The crown prince was accompanied by Canada's ambassador to Norway, John P. Signvaldson, and Norway's ambassador to Canada, Torfinn Oftedal, who will stay with him during the entire visit until Oct. 9.

The visit will take Harold to Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, Vancouver and Victoria.

New Speaker For Art Talk

Unforeseen circumstances have made it impossible for B. C. Binning to deliver the first lecture of the 1967-68 University Extension Association program Monday evening.

In his place, Richard Simmons, former director of the Vancouver Art Gallery and currently visiting lecturer at the University of British Columbia's department of fine arts, will speak on "Yesterday and Today in Canadian Art".

The lecture will be given in Room 168, Elliott Building, University of Victoria, at 8:15.

. . . CHINA

its spokesman, C. C. Lai, would say was that "the two-China concept is and always will be totally unacceptable to us."

But the fact that the issue has been raised by the Kuomintang newspaper appears significant and gives strong reason to think the Nationalist Chinese foreign office will ask the Canadian government for an explanation of its policy in advance of Yen's visit.

The Martin statement in question was made near the end of his major address to the UN General Assembly Wednesday.

He said:

"I would repeat what I said on this occasion last year: 'If this organization is to realize its potential capacities all nations, and especially those which, like continental China; represent a significant proportion of the world's population, must be represented here.'

"I outlined then what we considered to be a reasonable basis for the seating of a representative from continental China in the United Nations. While we were disappointed by the response to our suggestions, we continue to believe that they represent a reasonable and just solution to the problem of China's solution."

The essence of his proposal—not offered as a resolution—was that Peking represent China in the Security Council and the General Assembly and that Taiwan have a seat in the General Assembly.

When the time for voting came, Canada abstained on an unsuccessful Albanian resolution which would have made Peking the lone China representative in the United Naions.

This was a major shift in the Canadian position. Canada always had voted againgst Peking's admission up to that time. It abstained because the resolution would also have excluded Nationalist China from the UN.

Prime Minister Pearson as recently as Sept. 25, affirmed that Canada has not changed its opinion that mainland China should have UN membership, although the time may not yet be ripe.

Tax Break Urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city council committee recommended Friday that Winnipeg ask the provincial government to exempt private homes from municipal taxes on the first $2,000 of their assessment. Aldermen believed the province's new five per cent sales tax would cover money lost under such a scheme.

Night School Offers Many New Courses

For those who want to go down to the sea in their own ships, the Saanich School Board is offering a boatbuilding course in its adult education program this year.

The course is one of several firsts in an expanded program which starts next week. Over 200 people have already enrolled in the 32 courses offered this year in School District 63, which reaches from Royal Oak to Sidney.

Frank Baxter, the director of adult education in the district, hopes enrolment will top 300. But registrations have been tardy and a number of courses will have to be cancelled unless people show up at the first classes next week.

Classes will be held mainly at Claremont High School and North Saanich Junior Secondary School. Fees range between $10 and $25 for each series.

In language courses, Esperanto is another first this year. An artificial language devised as a medium of conversation for all nations, it is described as simple and easy to learn.

Also new is a series called Singing for Fun, an opportunity to both meet people and sing as a group.

Anyone wanting information on courses is invited to call Mr. Baxter at 384-7466 or the school board office in Sidney at 656-1111.

Pepin Urges Gold Subsidy Be Renewed

OTTAWA (CP) — Commons attendance hovered around the quorum of 20 MPs for most of Friday.

Out of 216 MPs who completed an 11-week summer recess last Monday, only a handful participated in the customary flaying of the government over the plight of communities dependent on the declining gold mining industry.

Since 1948, the industry has been dependent on federal subsidies, originally passed as emergency steps to help keep mines in operation and prevent economic collapse of the gold mining towns.

Renewal of this subsidy, the Emergency Gold Mining Assistance Act, was proposed by Mines Minister Pepin for another three years, until the end of 1970.

He noted that there were 117 mines subsidized when the program started but had declined to 66 in 1965. He estimated another 14 will close down in the next three years.

None of the spokesmen from opposition parties opposed continuing the subsidy but they had plenty of criticism of its adequacy.

Their comments ranged from "complete and shoddy failure" on the part of Murdo Martin (NDP—Timmins) to a plea for more extensive and permanent help on the part of Gordon Aiken (PC—Parry Sound-Muskoka).

NO INCREASE SEEN

Mr. Pepin argued that chances for an increase in gold prices, now pegged at $35 U.S. an ounce, were too slim to form a practical basis for federal policy toward the industry.

Several speakers urged that the federal government reject proposals of the Carter royal commission on taxation for abolition of tax and other incentives to mining.

Others called for subsidy to exploration by gold mines for alternative sources of minerals in the immediate area of the mining communities.

Before adjourning, the Commons approved introduction of the subsidy bill and opened debate on a proposal by Postmaster-General Cote for an increase in postal rates.

Mr. Cote explained that first-class mail operations are expected to run a deficit after years as a money maker. Increases to six cents from five for letters posted in Canada to other Canadian points would cover this plus the deficit on operations of second-class mail.

The lower second class rate structure also would be changed to impose higher rates for newspapers, magazines and other publications.

JUNTA MUFFLES OUTSPOKEN WOMAN

Greek Arrest Could Backfire

By HAROLD MORRISON, Canadian Staff Writer

In arresting Helen Vlachou, the Athens publisher who dared defy the dictatorship, the military junta of Greece may find itself more on trial than this outspoken woman who treasures freedom above material security.

In five months of rule, ostensibly to preserve Greece from the Communists, the military rulers have steadily narrowed the boundaires of freedom.

Mrs. Vlachou is no Communist. Indeed she is well known for her right-wing views. But she closed her two newspapers and faced the prospect of declining resources rather than follow the dictates of the military men who seized power and show no signs of giving it up.

●

There is no doubt that, in handing out interviews to foreign correspondents and describing the dozen or so officers who now control Greece as mediocre men and clowns, Mrs. Vlachou realized she was forcing the issue; that the rulers would be driven to arrest her to prevent the threat of widespread ridicule.

This may be exactly what she wanted—to intensify world concern about an unyielding junta that could put her behind bars for eight years for her insults and violation of military orders.

There is no evidence that Western countries, including the United States and Britain, have privately increased pressures on the junta to restore democracy to Greece.

It has promised to do so. A new draft constitution is scheduled to be completed by Dec. 15 and submitted to a popular referendum next year.

But these promises have not aroused much enthusiasm because the junta reserves the right to modify the draft constitution and there is no assurance that a plebiscite will reflect the will of the people as long as they live under the shadow of fear and oppression.

There are other signs that the military leaders are digging in for a long stay. The fact that they have come under criticism from King Constantine appears to have left them undisturbed.

But pressures are increasing and becoming more public and critical. Greece is mostly a poor country and needs foreign aid. The European Common Market has turned down requests for a loan. The Council of Europe's assembly in Strasbourg, France, has told the military rulers to re-establish democracy or get out of the council.

The junta also is likely to face the threat of rising internal instability resulting from enforced rigidities.

History has shown that the Greeks are capable of great emotional upheaval. They may be docile at the moment but they are not likely to stand a long diet of suffering, shame and servility.

'Open-Air Blowout'

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — An estimated 75,000 people lined Lonsdale Street, danced, sampled free ice cream and just watched an open-air blowout Friday night marking completion of a paving job.

"It's just fantastic," said Alderman William Wallace.

The street dance, replete with seven bands, began when Mayor Carrie Cates cut a ribbon signifying completion of the street's rebuilding program.

"The people were strung all along Lonsdale either dancing or watching," Mr. Wallace said.

"We should do this more often."

The second portion of the two-day event was scheduled this afternoon.

$1 Million Scheme Bared; 'Buy' Hoffa a New Trial

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—One of three grand juries investigating alleged Cosa Nostra activities in Louisiana, has accused a contractor of bribing a governor's aide in an attempt to buy a new trial for Teamsters Union President James R. Hoffa.

The East Baton Rouge Parish grand jury indicted New Orleans contractor D'Alton Smith Friday The indictment said he tried to get an aide to Governor John J. McKeithen to serve as a middleman in an alleged $1,000,000 scheme to get Hoffa a new trial.

Smith, who divides his time between New Orleans and Los Angeles, is being sought by police.

CARRIES 5-YEAR TERM

The charge against him carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $1,000 fine.

The alleged attempt to buy Hoffa out of prison, where he is serving a term for tampering with a jury, also is the subject of a federal grand jury investigation in New Orleans.

In addition, the Orleans Parish grand jury in New Orleans has issued a subpoena for Carlos Marcello, described as the Cosa Nostra boss in Louisiana, to appear before it Thursday.

Marcello, a short, grey-haired man who lives in Metairie, a New Orleans suburb, was reported away on a trip. The subpoena was left with his wife.

Smith was accused of offering $25,000 to Aubrey Young to set up for him a private meeting with Edward G. Partin, a Teamsters Union official in Baton Rouge.

Partin is not easily accessible. He has had federal marshals as bodyguards since becoming a key government witness in Hoffa's 1962 conviction.

Partin said he rejected a $1,000,000 bribe at the meeting, offered if he would change the testimony he gave at the trial and thus establish new grounds for a new trial

Young resigned as McKeithen's aide in July. He spent two days as a state's witness, immune to prosecution, before the grand jury.

District-Attorney Sargent Pitcher of Baton Rouge said Young agreed that he had arranged the meeting, at his home between Partin and Smith. Pitcher said, however, that Young denied accepting $25,000 for the action.

Whether the money was paid would not change the charge. Louisiana law does not discriminate between bribery and attempted bribery.

Shoplifter Given Two Months Term

John Caird, of no fixed address, was sentenced to two months in jail when he was convicted in central court Thursday of theft under $50.

Involved was an electric knife taken from Eaton's department store.

'A Maximum of Freedom' PM's Dream for Canadians

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Prime Minister Pearson spoke here Friday of his dream for Canada's future and the need for national unity.

He told a convocation audience he dreamed of a Canada where the individual was never forced to shape himself inflexibly to economic and political systems—"where he can enjoy a maximum of freedom and opportunity to fulfil his most cherished personal aspirations and to develop his full potential as a human being."

Mr. Pearson said this could be possible only if Canadians realized that it was a law of freedom that for every extension of boundaries there must be a corresponding extension of responsibility.

The prime minister was one of six to receive an honorary doctor of laws degree from Prince of Wales College which was founded in 1834.

During his convocation address, Mr. Pearson said it was more evident than ever before that the future of Canada "depends on our success in building a society where diverse races and languages, diverse talents and capacities, diverse energies and interests are not only permitted, but are encouraged to grow and develop side by side not as a regrettable necessity, but as a positive asset."

WHO BETTER?

As the prime minister was presented with his honorary degree reference was made to his days as a history professor and the fact that a great deal would be written about him in the years to come.

"It's about time I got back to the historical field," Mr. Pearson said. "Who is better equipped to write and analyse my life and my work and myself?"

Afterwards Mr. Pearson said he was "only kidding" and not hinting at a possible early retirement from public life.

Others receiving honorary degrees were Dr. Malcolm Dockerty of the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn.; Dr. G. D. Steel, former principal of Prince of Wales; Herman Geiger-Torel, director of the Canadian Opera Company and pioneer in the arts of Canada; R. L. Cotto, Prince Edward Island businessman and philanthropist, and Dr. Claude Bissell, president of the University of Toronto and former chairman of the Canada Council.

South B.C. IWA Men Back Strike

KELOWNA (CP)—Woodworkers in British Columbia's southern Interior Friday voted 71.1 per cent in favor of strike action against 43 companies.

A spokesfan for the companies, which had asked for the government-supervised strike vote, said 2,666 members of the International Woodworkers of America voted in favor of striking and 1,195 voted against.

An IWA official said mandatory 48-hour strike notice is to be served on the companies "almost immediately."

The southern vote was a little stronger than that of members in the northern Interior who favored a strike by an eight-vote margin.

Negotiations between the companies and the union broke down over an IWA demand for an immediate 50-cent-an-hour pay increase to give Interior workers wage parity with their coastal counterparts. Base rate in the Interior is $2.26 an hour.

The IWA overwhelmingly rejected an inquiry commission report by Mr. Justice F. Craig Munroe which recommended a 44-cent raise in a two-year contract.

The companies had accepted the report.

Bonner Denies Split

Only organized chaos would result from a constitutional conference on Quebec, Attorney-General Bonner said Friday.

He was commenting on a suggestion made by Trade Minister Ralph Loffmark who said Thursday that a conference would be the best way to find out what Quebec wants and what its future in Confederation would be.

DENIES SPLIT

Mr. Bonner denied the difference of opinion indicated a cabinet split.

He said he rejected Mr. Loffmark's suggestion for a conference because it would mean that "every nut in the country" would try to promote his own ideas with "organized chaos" resulting.

The attorney-general does not feel there is a "Quebec crisis."

"I believe the people of Quebec want to stay in Canada," he said, adding that he did not want to offer any advice to the people of Quebec.

Premier Bennett, travelling in Europe, was not available for comment.

Bennett Beats Drum For Congo Business

BRUSSELS (CP)—Premier Bennett today continued his whirlwind tour of Belgium, attempting to drum up new trade and relocate investments from the old Belgian Congo to British Columbia.

Mr. Bennett, who was hosted by foreign trade minister de Winter Friday had long talks with deparment heads of the Common Market authority. But observers said his most interesting discussions have been with industrialists desirous of relocating their African holdings in the troubled Congo.

He also inspected leading manufacturing plants and invited management to open branch plants in B.C.

Included in his busy itinerary was a work session with Belgian importers and exporters, a speech to the Belgian Bankers Association, and visits to various lumber yards to compare B.C. quality lumber with other international manufacturers.

The Obstacles

THE LATEST EGYPTIAN REjection of direct negotiations with the Israelis and President Johnson's reiterated no-change attitude give prominence to the similarities that exist between the Middle East and Vietnam situations. Each suffers from the hen-and-egg dilemma, inasmuch as the belligerents in both theatres of war demand pre-conditions of the opposing sides which are doggedly refused.

The United States seeks a corresponding concession in return for a halt in the bombing of North Vietnam. The North Vietnamese insist that there can be no move from their side until the bombing stops. The Israelis demand that the Arab nations recognize the legality of their country by agreeing to direct negotiations for a peace settlement. The Arabs say there can be no negotiations, even through a mediator, until the Israelis evacuate the territories they occupied last June.

These are stalemates which at the moment appear insoluble. But a still more serious similarity appears in the background dangers which accompany each dispute. The Vietnam war carries the constant threat of expansion through the active participation of Red China or Russia. This would precipitate a direct East-West conflict of unpredictable dimensions and the risk of such a development will increase with the extent to which the Communist nations believe their borders to be threatened.

While the United States is bogged down in the jungles of Vietnam, neither Moscow nor Peking are likely to do much about terminating the suicidal struggle. But if the bombing, through American desperation at the prolongation of the war, gets too near the Chinese border or threatens to upset the basic East-West balance in Southeast Asia, then Communist intervention conceivably could become a terrible reality.

In the same way, the Middle East confrontation could escalate into a global contest if the Western backers of the Israelis and the Soviet suppliers of the Arabs were drawn into a more active championship of their proteges. Good sense and caution on both sides will, of course, avoid such a tragic and foolish step, but while the guns blaze across the Suez Canal and one border incident after another shatters the cease-fire, the possibility of a wider war is always present.

Of less acute threat but of greater long-term importance is the fact that both the Middle East and the Vietnam imbroglios are factors in the continued estrangement of the United States and the Soviet Union. The roughened feelings arising from the Arab-Israeli situation impose a bar to closer co-operation between the two giant nations. This is much more the case in regard to Vietnam, where the American entanglement in an anti-Communist war is a tragically effective impediment to better relations between Moscow and Washington. The situation is particularly unfortunate since it arose at a time when Russia was quite evidently in a mood to open productive talks with the United States.

The major tragedy of the Vietnam conflict may well prove to be, not the terrible losses of the fighting and the localized destruction of the battle-torn countries, but the much more significant fact that a workable detente between East and West, as represented by Russia and the United States, was long delayed and perhaps made impossible in our time.

Prosecutor, Judge and Jury

IN A RECENT TALK WITH A New York Times Magazine writer, Interior Minister Patakos, one of the most powerful men in the Greek military government, mentioned that the majority of the thousands of his fellow countrymen who have been imprisoned since the coup last April are Communists. Specifically, he mentioned 78-year-old Dimitrios Stratis, a veteran trade union leader and left-wing parliamentary deputy.

When the writer protested that he knew Mr. Stratis well and that he was certainly not a Communist, this was Brigadier Patakos' reply: "He calls himself a Socialist, but he is a Communist. In Greece we have right people and wrong people. All those who are against the country are Communists. Stratis is a Communist in his heart and his works. They are all liars."

Since the interior minister runs the country's powerful secret police apparatus, it is his opinion which prevails when it comes to making judgments on who is or is not an enemy of the state—which means the dictatorial rulers who have squelched Greek democracy. Is his opinion one which Greece's nominal allies — including Canadians and Americans—will widely share?

In Western Europe, at least, there is a growing realization of the absurdity of democratic countries maintaining the fiction that communism must be fought by bolstering fascist-style military rulers who run rough-shod over opposition to their rule. Last week Norway, Sweden and Denmark charged in concert that the Greek regime had violated the European Convention on Human Rights to which Greece is a signatory. This week the executive commission of the European Common Market vetoed a $10 million loan to Greece, an associate member, and took steps to block any further economic aid, including a total of $55 millions which had been previously authorized.

The European action won't tip the balance much so long as Washington continues to pour in aid to Greece. But at least it puts the morality of the situation into focus.

The Critical Allies

ONE OF THE HIGHLIGHTS OF the celebration in Moscow November 7 of the 50th anniversary of the Russian Communist revolution may be the long-delayed conference of world Communist parties —China, Albania and other "revisionists" excepted. For four years, the Soviet leaders have been seeking to convene such a meeting with the off-and-on purpose of trying either to reach a compromise with the Chinese Communists or to read them out of the official party completely.

And for the same period of time there have been sufficient Communist leaders of stature who were playing coy on the Chinese issue to make it impossible for the conference to be held. Even now it is questionable whether the Romanian, Yugoslav, Italian and French parties —to say nothing of the Cuban and several others—are willing to join in any Moscow meeting which has the avowed purpose of returning Communism to a standard mold. The modest degree of independence of action from Moscow which has been gained by foreign parties, even by some in Eastern Europe, is not going to be given up for the dubious pleasure of castigating the Chinese.

The Poles and the Hungarians are the only two important non-Russian Communists supporting the call for a meeting and while Polish Premier Gomulka asked only for a "broad exchange of opinion," Hungarian Premier Kadar laid it on the line that "so-called Communism with an anti-Soviet disposition" was a primary issue. Mr. Kadar's definition, while it clearly takes in the Chinese, could easily be extended to his Romanian neighbors and the Cubans, among others.

While no Communist leader who is not in open and avowed revolt against the Soviet party could refuse to attend the 50th anniversary celebrations, a return to the total domination of the world movement by Moscow does not seem likely.

"... Ralph? Ralph, they're taking away my car! The garbagemen! What should I do ...?!"

Choices

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste

We now know the intentions of the legislature member for Laurier. Mr. Rene Levesque has given to militants of his riding's Liberal association a work paper dealing with the place and future of Quebec in the Canadian scheme of things. . . .

He resolutely chooses Quebec independence but independence involving close association with the rest of Canada particularly in economic matters. He calls for complete independence limited only by the amount of interdependence that seems indispensable to him. Briefly, the member for Laurier espouses the theory of associate states but he goes further in that he calls for the sovereignty of these states. . . .

The general view in political circles is that the effervescent member for Laurier has signed his political death warrant. But that is a misunderstanding of Rene Levesque. It is certain that he will battle to the point of final exhaustion for the triumph of his chosen idea. He has already succeeded in other battles that seemed lost beforehand. . . .

If his option is not agreed to by the majority of members of the Quebec Liberal Federation or at least if they do not arrive at a compromise acceptable to the member for Laurier, it is to be expected that the Liberal party will be involved in a wide split. The confrontation that is in the making is necessary. The time for beating around the bush is ended. Our politicians must make their choices once and for all.

Possible Responses to Unconditional Surrender

THERE is, here and in the Middle East, an intense sub-surface crisis —one which could easily build up to explosive proportions. It stems from Israel's refusal to accept mediation in the wake of the June 5-12 war. Tel Aviv is insisting on a directly negotiated peace settlement. Direct negotiation, as Secretary-General U Thant has pointed out, is simply not in the cards. In the eyes of the Arabs, it is tantamount to demanding unconditional political surrender.

Frye

Sitting down at a formal peace table with Israel would mean de facto recognition of the Jewish state—that is, abandonment of a 20-year campaign of resistance—without any knowledge, at that stage, of the conditions in which co-existence would develop.

If there is ever to be acquiescence by the Arabs in the permanence of Israel, it clearly will have to come at the end, not the beginning, of a bargaining process.

Realities Weighed

Israel's massive military victory last June does not enable her to demand unconditional political surrender — not when all the realities are weighed. Her belief that she is in such a position is a major mistake.

The Arabs still have such cards as these to play:

- Soviet aid. Moscow, if it chooses, is in a position to tip the balance of military power back in the Arabs' direction.

- Terrorism and guerrilla warfare. Israel claimed this past week to have broken the back of the Palestine Liberation Organization, one of two major Arab terrorist outfits.

Even if this is so, the other—El Fatah—remains; and though its operations are more difficult, with the core of Israel virtually surrounded by occupied territory, they are not impossible.

- Passive resistance to the occupation. This is already under way, and can be expected to increase.

Strikes, slowdowns, shop closures, "non-co-operation" in various forms, and silent, cold hostility are not dramatic measures, but they are difficult to deal with, as virtually every occupation army in history has discovered.

- Continued closure of the Suez Canal. This is a two-edged weapon, as British Foreign Secretary George Brown indicated this past week when he warned U.A.R. President Nasser users would "permanently reduce their dependence" on the waterway if it were not reopened soon.

But this process will be expensive for shippers too. This fact represents usable Arab bargaining power.

None of these Arab advantages changes the massive fact that Israeli troops are sitting on large parts of Arab territory. The Arabs will have to pay a huge price to regain that ground. But they will not have to throw in the towel before the opening bell. Israeli insistance that they do so is taken by some to be a bargaining tactic, an asking price from which Tel Aviv would recede if the Arabs were willing to negotiate seriously through a mediator.

On the theory that this may prove to be the case, Thant is pressing the Big Four to agree that the Security Council should name such a person, or authorize him to do so.

If a mediator (or "special representative of the secretary-general") were thrust into the Middle East, it would be difficult for either side to refuse to deal with him; and if his appointment appeared to be a victory for the Arabs, it would be easier thereafter, against such a psychological background, for Arab rulers to make meaningful political concessions.

Cloudy Prospect

Not since the 1940s has the UN had a peacemaker in the Mideast full time, though Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold intermittently tried his hand at bridge-building in the 1950s.

What would emerge, under present conditions, might well be the partial adjustments and improvised arrangements that Israel has learned to distrust; but the choice is not between these and a real peace, as Foreign Minister Abba Eban argues. It is between these and a slow, grinding process of steadily increasing tension.

One can understand Israel's desire to get everything really settled, this time. But as the French say, "mieux est l'ennemi du bon"—the man who goes for all or nothing can end up with nothing.

Real Indian Summer

Your paper is still trying to tell us that this autumn weather we are enjoying is "Indian Summer."

Now, we have had no snow as yet on this part of the Island, and you can't tell me that Victoria has had any, and without that first fall of snow you can't have Indian Summer.

This is more noticeable in the eastern part of Canada, where often in September there will be an early snowfall which melts, and then, and only then, come a few days of beautiful frost-free weather, Indian Summer.

The early settlers, plagued by the Indians during summer months, had a short respite when the first snow appeared, as the Indians went back to the forest. With the melting of the snow, and the last fine warm days of autumn, back came the Indians. This somewhat elusive season is extremely short, but is free of frost. — (MRS.) M. D. WORTH, R.R. PAUL MARTIN'S STATEMENT

By RICHARD PURSER

A Bombing Halt Alone Will Not End the War

OF THE first 24 national representatives to address the UN General Assembly during its new session, eight have commented on the American bombing of North Vietnam. The latest was Mr. Paul Martin, who broke new ground in Canadian public, if not private, diplomacy Wednesday by calling for an end to the bombing. He joined the foreign ministers of Denmark and Sweden and the representative of Upper Volta in urging this course of action upon the United States. The other four speakers to remark on the bombing upheld respectively the U.S. point of view (U.S. Ambassador Arthur Goldberg and British Foreign Secretary George Brown) and the Communist point of view (the foreign ministers of the Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia).

Purser

The U.S. refuses to accept the opinion of Secretary-General U Thant and others that North Vietnam will enter peace negotiations within a few weeks after the bombing is stopped. The U.S. wants authoritative word from Hanoi itself that negotiations "would" — not "could" — begin if the bombing stopped.

Another Question

But that is not all. The U.S. also wants another question answered. As Mr. Goldberg phrased it with deliberate simplexity: "Does North Vietnam conceive that the cessation of bombing would or should lead to any other results than meaningful negotiations or discussions under circumstances which would not disadvantage either side?"

The linking of this question to the first — a move thought here to be State Secretary Dean Rusk's major contribution to Mr. Goldberg's speech — effectively precludes Hanoi from formally answering the main question on negotiations.

For it really means that the U.S. wants only to halt the bombing on a conditional basis, which is absolutely unacceptable to Hanoi and the entire Communist world. As Czech Foreign Minister Vaclav David told the assembly, "It is up to the United States to take the first step and stop, unconditionally and finally, the bombardment of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam instead of imposing conditions."

From everything that can be learned here, the Communist world feels it cannot submit to the indignity of accepting anything less as the price of peace talks. But Mr. Goldberg's (or Mr. Rusk's) questions imply conditions—the U.S. wants a reciprocal military deescalation by North Vietnam in return for ending the bombing.

American thinking on this point is dominated by what one Western diplomat here called the "Panmunjom complex," dating from the Korean War. Mr. Narciso Ramos, Philippines foreign affairs secretary and an ally of the U.S., put it this way to the assembly:

"Nor is it wise to worry only about how soon the peace negotiations can begin; we must give some thought also to the question of how long the talks might last. The talks that ended the war in Korea lasted nearly two years, and so for two years longer the fighting went on and blood continued to flow. We must ask ourselves whether or not we want to see that kind of marathon peace talks in Vietnam."

The U.S. most certainly does not want to see a repetition of the Panmunjom talks. Ideally, it would like a halt to all military activity while talks take place. But the Communists see the bombing as an "extra" element in the war and not subject to deals.

They appear to be inflexible on this point, while the U.S. is equally inflexible in insisting that it not be militarily "disadvantaged" during talks.

Why, at this point, have U.S. allies like Canada and Denmark, as well as other countries begun to nudge the U.S. publicly toward a change of course? Because their governments are convinced that the war must end, that it must end by negotiations, that negotiations cannot begin without a halt to the bombing, and that putting public pressure on the U.S. is about the only move left for them to make.

No Light Decision

In Canada's case, the decision was not taken lightly. To maintain the usefulness of its International Control Commission channel to Hanoi, Canada has in the past sought to avoid declarations that might affect the confidence of the U.S.

It is noteworthy that all the Western speakers advising the U.S. to end the bombing have scrupulously avoided using loaded words like "unconditional," "final," and "permanent," all much favored by Communist spokesmen and contributing to their non-communication with the U.S. The new slogan is simply "stop the bombing," left as unadorned as possible to avoid complicating prospects for a favorable U.S. decision.

Of the three Western representatives to speak out, Mr. Martin was the most explicit in attacking the "Panmunjom complex."

He attempted to dissociate the two issues so closely linked in the official U.S. mind: negotiations and an immediate end to the fighting. While calling for a bombing halt as a necessary first step toward possible negotiations, he added:

"But let us not for a moment pretend that a halt in the bombing would, in itself, bring the war to an end . . . There are no simple prescriptions for the settlement of problems as complex as the issues behind the hostilities in Vietnam."

The motto might be: continued war with negotiations is bad enough, but continued war without negotiations is worse.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Wander through some of the rabbit-warren trails along the north bank of Goldstream across from the picnic grounds.

There are places where you can find oak fern with its slender stripe and small round sorrel. The fronds are now beginning to turn a soft brown.

There are some very old maples in this locality. They are gnarled, burled and covered with moss. Some have limbs almost as large as the trunk. They have a huge canopy with some exceptionally large leaves.

Growing with them are some very old red alders that have grown tall in their reach for the sun. They too are heavy with moss on their trunks and limbs. There are many fallen specimens that are being torn apart by the woodpeckers in search of grubs.

Scattered throughout this area you will see many older cedar stumps, showing that it has been logged off many years ago, for the stumps are up to 10 feet in height and the old spring-board holes show how the old-time fallers cut their trees above the lower fluted bole.

Some of the stumps are now home for small mammals and others are "flower pots" for many shrubs and plants.

When you come out to the glades you will find an abundance of giant horsetail. Some of the fertile stems are close to three feet in height. See how this plant is jointed (boys can make whistles by pulling them apart). Do you know that there are about 20 species of this plant?

Now you come out into the open along the salt marsh. Here you will see rose bushes that are over six feet tall and they are now loaded with "hips" that range in color from bright orange to scarlet.

These hips make an excellent jelly and contain lots of vitamin "C". Under foot the silver leaves of the silver-green plant predominate, and it is like walking on a thickly piled carpet. Living among the leaves are some small black ants, running in every direction.

Who Is Robert Stanfield?

By PETER C. NEWMAN

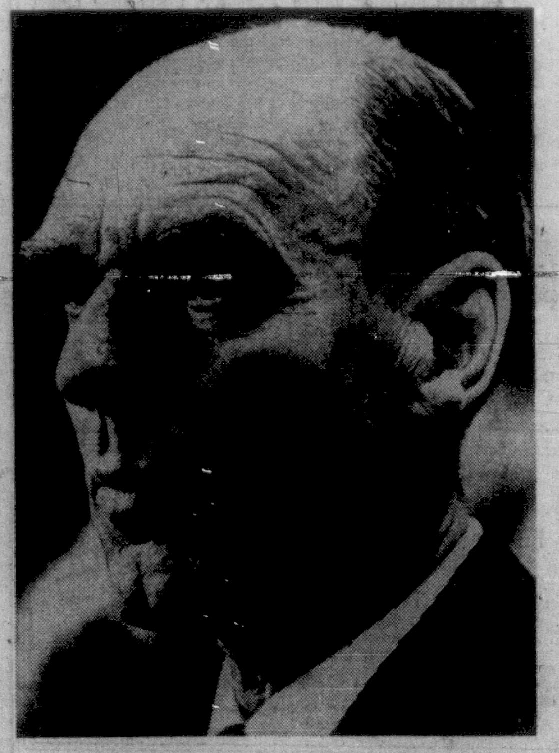
We met in Room 132 of the Chateau Laurier Hotel where the new Conseravtive leader has set up a temporary office. It was early in the morning of a day that would bring unbroken activity, frantic pressure and many new problems, but Robert Stanfield seemed totally in control of himself and his surroundings. Instead of flashes of verbal lightning there was in his replies to my questions an undercurrent of wisdom and a calm that comes with the intensity of conviction. Stanfield's language—sparse, pointed, occasionally wry—sounded out of place in the sloganeering, cliche-ridden atmosphere of political Ottawa. He spoke slowly, without notes, hands often clasped behind his head. Here is the first of two parts of a transcript of our interview:

EXCLUSIVE

What kind of a man is the newly-elected leader of the Progressive Conservative Party? What does he think about politics, the Quebec problem? What are his interests in literature, music, art? If he should be successful in leading his party to victory in some future election, what sort of prime minister would he be?

As a start to answering these questions, of particular interest to Western Canadians who have had little opportunity to get to know the former Nova Scotia premier, Peter Newman has obtained the first on-the-record conversation between Mr. Stanfield and a journalist since he became PC leader.

The interview was tape-recorded in Ottawa shortly after Mr. Stanfield arrived in the capital to take up his new duties.



Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield

Newman: The great debate in Canada, as you take over the Conservative party, is of course the French-English impasse. How do you see it being resolved?

Stanfield: Those of us who are English-speaking Canadians will have to accept in our hearts that this is a nation in which there is a substantial proportion of French-speaking Canadians and genuinely welcome the fact that they speak their own language and want to develop their own civilization. I'm afraid there are still a great many Canadians who don't really accept that in their hearts, and that this is reflected in their attitudes.

We simply must accept the fact that the people of Quebec require certain assurances and the province requires the necessary authority to protect their language and develop their way of life. All too often when some suggestion about change with regard to Quebec is made, those of us who are English Canadians are inclined to react emotionally and jump to the conclusion that this attacks the function of the central government.

I suspect that if we were prepared to look at some of these things more objectively we might find that some of Quebec's most urgent wishes could, in fact, be met without impairing the essential role of the government of Canada.

There is no solution for all time. It's like a marriage or a family relationship with its stresses and strains and problems. It will always require understanding and tact.

●

Newman: In the past, you've backed Quebec's objections to shared cost programs and come out for bilingual federal civil service. Do you have any other specific suggestions for easing French-English tensions?

Stanfield: We should provide the French-Canadians in other provinces with substantially the same language and educational rights that the English-speaking minority has in Quebec. This, of course, can only be worked out with the approval of the provinces. But if it became recognized across the country that it is important this be done, it would become easier for the provinces to move.

●

Newman: During a television interview you said recently that, "If we can make progress in improving the relationship between French and English-speaking Canada without partisan differences on the subject, that's all right with me." Are you implying the possibility of a bi-partisan approach?

Stanfield: Certainly there'll be no reluctance on my part to agree that the question of working out this relationship of holding our country together in a satisfactory way is the most urgent problem we have and there will be no desire on my part to achieve any partisan advantage.

On the other hand, I don't think it would be necessarily in the country's interest for the Conservative party to develop a completely bi-partisan policy with the Liberals in regard to this problem. If we did, this might be regarded in Quebec as a ganging-up process by the rest of the country and really offering them no alternative.

I've been proceeding on the assumption that it is desirable in the interests of the country that the Conservative party develop, as rapidly as it can and in some depth, its own proposals with regard to this problem.

●

Newman: You have said that the Progressive Conservative Party should not be permitted to "become committed to an ideology," and yet that "the Conservative party ought not to be a party without principle." How do you differentiate political ideology from political principle?

Stanfield: When I was speaking about principle, I meant nothing more than this: We can't become a party of expediency. We can't, for example, say one thing in Quebec and another thing in the rest of the country. With regard to ideology, we shouldn't allow ourselves, for example, to become dedicated to private enterprise in any dogmatic way that would exclude all public enterprise.

We can't be entirely pragmatic because we have to remain loyal to the Conservative view of society, but I'm frankly not interested in exaggerating party differences just for the sake of exaggerating them.

●

Newman: You have said that the Conservative Party, "has got to be a party which challenges the young, inspires the imaginative, and convinces the prudent." How can this be achieved?

Stanfield: We'll have to appeal to the young people by becoming a party that's involved in challenging goals. The most challenging domestic goal, of course, is working out a relationship between French and English-speaking Canada. In external policies, we must try and do something in relation to the underdeveloped countries. First of all, to bridge the economic gap and then to make it easier for those countries to trade in more satisfactory terms.

As for convincing the prudent, we have to do that by presenting approaches to programs that are thoroughly thought out.

PETER C. NEWMAN

●

Newman: You have said that what is most urgently needed in Ottawa is "effective co-ordinated and planned policy formation, based on a careful assessment of both federal and provincial priorities." How can this be achieved?

Stanfield: It's not easy in a federal country, yet we simply must reach some agreement on spending priorities, especially in education which is basic to the development of the country.

●

Newman: You've said that you don't oppose a capital gains tax on principle, does this mean you approve the Carter Commission approach?

Stanfield: Not necessarily, because the approach of the Carter Commission is to regard everything as income, so it doesn't follow just because I said I wouldn't oppose a capital gains tax in principle that I would necessarily be prepared to accept the Carter coneption of taxation.

●

Newman: Do you feel that the monarchy is relevant to contemporary Canada and should remain part of our political system?

Stanfield: Yes, I think it's relevant because it is a factor in uniting much of the country, but I appreciate that most people from French Canada would not have the same feeling of emotional warmth toward the institution.

●

Newman: Do you approve of trying to bring home the British North America Act, and do you now believe that it may be necessary to draft a new constitution?

Stanfield: I certainly think we should have the authority to amend our own constitution. We also have to be prepared to consider changes in the constitution. As to what extent this will mean a new constitution or a re-drafting, I'm quite flexible We have to take very seriously the desire of Quebec and the other provinces to review our existing constitutional arrangements.

●

Newman: The 1966 Liberal policy convention supported the idea of negotiating a free-trade area between U.S. and Canada, and you have always advocated a much less restrictive approach to trade. Now that the Kennedy Round of tariff negotiations has been completed, do you believe that Canada should push for free trade on a regional or a commodity basis? Do you think that the idea of a north Atlantic trading community is viable?

Stanfield: We should be asking ourselves whether in the conditions of the modern world today multilateralism is enough by itself and whether we're going to find ourselves in the same dilemma as Britain and have to join some kind of larger trading unit. We should be examining what our options are so that we're not suddenly confronted by an emergency decision and have no alternative but to get into bed with the Americans alone.

●

Newman: One of the orginally predominant directions of the Pearson government was the attempt to "Canadianize our economy." Do you believe this is a practical objective, and would it help protect Canadian sovereignty?

Stanfield: If it's practical at all, it's practical only within very strict limits. We sell at least half our exports to the United States and buy at least two-thirds of our imports from the United States, so that we're very inter-dependent and that's going to be true regardless of who owns the majority of the shares. I certainly don't think we should discourage outside capital and enterprise. That would be totally unacceptable to most Canadians in most parts of the country.

"I understand the source of the concern about foreign investment but I don't think we should express this concern in the form of restrictions on outside enterprise, except, of course, with regard to institutions of basic economic importance to the country, like banks and communications.

With regard to the Canada Development Corporation, I have no objections on ideological grounds but I have some doubts as to how effective it might be.

●

Newman: The main legislative thrust of both the Diefenbaker and Pearson governments has been to erect a basic social welfare structure in this country. Do you believe this process has now gone as far as it should go?

Stanfield: I'm not satisfied that we have a perfect welfare program in the country. I think that sometimes we tend to think of welfare spending as being non-productive but this isn't necessarily so, particularly for the programs that help to keep families together. But at the present time, government revenues are pretty badly stretched and we have to consider carefully any further commitments.

●

Newman: You have always shown a concern about poverty. What role can the federal government play to help overcome it?

Stanfield: I think Ottawa has to ensure that all provinces have the financial resources necessary to carry out adequate welfare and rehabilitation programs and that the federal government implement in full the principle of equalization which has been recognized in the tax-sharing arrangements.

●

Newman: Do you approve of the guaranteed annual income approach?

Stanfield: I believe in an adequate floor of security but I'm sympathetic to a little more flexible approach than the guaranteed annual income.

Can All This Grandeur Perish? Why Certainly!

By ART STOTT

The double-flowering Japanese cherry—the pride of my parents' springtime garden years before I took over the home—has now grown to the point where it effectively blocks out half the view of the Strait and the Olympics beyond, except from our upstairs bedroom windows.

Stott

We can look out from the living room on what some well-travelled visitors have called one of the finest vistas in the world and see little more than a mass of foliage. Any day now the tree will shed that green, and I'll have to start raking.

In recent years I have said unkind things about the double-flowering cherry. Its roots have spread so that a yellow path stretches diagonally across one corner of the lawn where the tree draws all the nutriment from the soil. The vegetable plot is shrunk by their subterranean expansion, and when I'm digging and strike a root I'm jarred from the shoulders down.

Common sense dictates the removal of the growth whose girth now rivals that of a forest giant. The double-flowering cherry has to go.

And yet—

* * *

I remember when the tree was planted, a pencil-slender seedling as dainty as a fawn. I remember how we nurtured it, protecting it with sprays from a peculiar bark infection that roughens the skin of that variety. I remember winters of sleet and silver thaws when we went out in the dark of night to shake the branches, freeing them of an extra weight which might have split them from the trunk. I recall a time of heavy snow when we were tardy and a split did occur—a split we bandaged carefully, like a wound.

And I recall the glory of spring bloom—a cloud of deep pink, engulfing shiny bronze foliage. Passers-by stopped to stare in the most genuine of tributes.

A house-proud robin nested there one year and fathered a brood, proclaiming vaingloriously the magnificence of his estate. Small birds swung from the upper branches in spring's song festival. In the winter, those preparing to migrate, flocked up there, nervously twittering their travel plans.

The tree has given us shade and beauty—and the practical services of a barometer. Each season of full bloom has invariably heralded high winds quartering from the south. The flowers, fading, have scattered a pink snow on the green grass. Two generations of children have climbed its reaching limbs, finding lookout quarters high above the earthbound.

* * *

In its way, the cherry has been our compensation for human inroads on the property which changed it from a small area of large trees and thick brush to a cultivated place where negligence alone restores some of its former wild character. The tall hemlocks disappeared years ago, victims of age and too close cultivation at the roots. A balsam of Christmas tree symmetry, languished from the smoke of rubbish fires laid beneath it, and thick bodied, sprawling alders went the way of their kind from rot at the heart.

I tell myself that the towering variegated cedar we planted in the foot of a border, along with creeping cyprus, a wild red currant and a delicate dogwood, which has still to blossom, provide all the trees we need.

The decorative Japanese import is superfluous; roots all over the place; blossoms that shower on the lawn and turn brown; leaves that fall and require raking; branches that eliminate a good portion of the view for which Oak Bay taxes me so highly.

The tree's a damnuisance, a land hog, a destructive influence in the rest of the garden. It should have been removed years ago. Who was Alfred Joyce Kilmer anyhow?

This business of tree-worship is a ridiculous, knot-headed Victoria phobia that should be cured.

I'll cut it down.

Wish I didn't feel quite so much like a prospective murderer, though.

Architectural Sculpture 'Presences of a Sort'

* * *

By PAUL RICHARD

"Our eyes are made to see forms in light; light and shade reveal these forms; cubes, cones, spheres, cylinders or pyramids are the great primary forms light reveals to advantage; the image of these is distinct and tangible within us and without ambiguity.

It is for this reason that these are beautiful forms, the most beautiful forms. Everybody is agreed as to that, the child, the savage and the metaphysician. It is the very nature of the plastic arts."—From Le Corbusier's "Towards a New Architecture," 1926.

WASHINGTON—Five years ago, Tony Smith, an architect, sculptor and geometrician then 60 years old, telephoned an industrial welding company and ordered a closed steel box, exactly six feet high, six feet wide and six feet deep.

When the box was delivered, he neither polished nor painted it. He placed it in his back yard and left it there, rusting slowly among the trees.

There are other objects in Smith's yard, strangely primitive, strangely heavy forms that seem as if they have always been there. They have ambiguous names. The steel cube—as tall as a man, as deep as a grave—is called "Die."

"I don't think of them as sculptures," Smith has said, "but as presences of a sort."

More Complex

Another Smith object — far more complex than the cube, far larger than anything in the yard, but generated by the same rigidly modular geometry that controls all his work—is now being fabricated in the basement workroom of the Corcoran Gallery of Art here.

For days now, the gallery's maintenance crew has been carefully sawing 4-by-8-foot sheets of plywood into triangles. Eventually those triangles will be assembled into an enormous cellular space frame, 22 feet high and more than twice that long.

This fall, the structure will find the rectangular, balcony-lined void of the Corcoran's atrium. It will be one of just four pieces (the others, all huge, will be the work of sculptors Barnett Newman, Mark di Suvero and Ronald Bladen) that will be included in a major Corcoran exhibition of experimental sculpture.

A 'Ghost'

Smith's work is not sculpture in any conventional sense. It is more closely related to architecture—or rather, to the ghost of architecture.

His structures are not "buildings." They have no doors or floors or plumbing. They fulfil no practical function. Yet there is something about them that makes one think of caves and old stone piers, of temples and tombs.

It is as if the ghost of those monuments had been liberated from function and symbolism, cleansed of the practicalities of earthly building, and then been given form.

Smith was trained as an architect. In the late 1930s, after attending the New Bauhaus, in Chicago, he went to work for Frank Lloyd Wright at Taliesin East. He supervised the construction of a number of Wright houses and then, for 20 years, had an architectural practice of his own.

The scale of his structures is architectural — and monumental. Their dimensions are never arbitrary. They have been scaled to the world of men.

Smith has written that the size of "Die" was determined by the famous Leonardo drawing of a man whose outstretched hands and feet describe the corners of a square. A 10-foot cube is a small house. A three-foot cube is a piece of furniture. "Die" is a monument.

Forms do not have to be enormous to be monumental. It is true that the Washington Monument would look silly if it were 50 feet tall, but it is equally true that the giant figure of Jefferson in the Jefferson Memorial looks puny despite its size.

Never Puny

Smith's structures are never puny. But their power derives not only from bigness but from a finely trained sense of architectural scale.

The big canvases of Pollack, Still and Barnett Newman—all painters who were friends of Smith's—generated huge visual spaces. Looking at those canvases, the viewer is aware of the act of painting, of the scale of the painter's hand and arm, and then of the awesome difference between that scale and the scale of the canvas itself and of the room it dominates.

Smith's modular fabricated structures evoke less the handwork of the artist than walls and doorways and columns—the impersonal, familiar components of architecture.

The spokes now being assembled are made of standard sheets of three-eighths-inch plywood. Wandering among those piers, peering up at the geometrical space frame above him, the viewer will pass among forms that evoke familiar columns in apartment buildings and offices.

The structure itself is formed by standardized units efficiently used in accordance with a complicated and astonishingly beautiful geometrical system.

Each spoke is made of two 8-by-4-ft. sheets of wood that have been sawed into triangles. The standard module is a triangle with a base of 32 inches—one-third of the figure's 8-foot height.

Triangles Join

Each plywood sheet is cut diagonally, on the lines of an italicized N, to produce two such triangles and two others with bases of 16 inches. The smaller triangles are then joined at the base to make a third figure of the standard size. Two plywood sheets thus produce the six matching triangles that are used to make each spoke.

Despite the comprehensibility of Smith's geometry, there is something about the structure now being built that is mysterious and inscrutable.

If viewers peering down into it from the balconies or up at it from the floor shut one eye, they will see a nicely understandable arrangement of hexagonal openings and four-spoke joints.

But the voids described by those spokes, the geometrical hollows contained within that frame are almost impossible to figure out. One can try. One can lie on the floor examining Smith's model, one can stand over it and glare down, but the invisible geometrical solids that constitute those voids seem to blend into one another and disappear.

Smith once wrote that his figures can be "thought of as part of a continuous space grid" in which "voids are made up of the same components as the masses."

"This one is different," he said. "The voids are illusive. I'm thinking of calling it 'Smoke'."

Try this sociable new combination of flavour.

Why Gilbey's London Dry weds perfectly with Bitter Lemon.

The answer is remarkably simple.

Some gins have rather strong flavouring. Others are utterly tasteless. But Gilbey's London Dry has a perfect balance of flavour for mixed gin drinks.

In fact, Gilbey's dry flavour has been an international favourite since 1873. Quite a long time.

Gilbey's London Dry marries joyfully with the sharp new taste and lively bubbles of bitter lemon.

Prove it to yourself. Tonight.

Note: not surprisingly a slice of lemon makes the perfect garnish.

NEW COURSE TEACHES WHAT GOES ON BACKSTAGE

'Actors Must Learn It's Team Effort'

If an actor knows something about set design, lighting and sound, and what the designer, the man in the lighting booth, and even the man on the curtain are trying to do for him, it helps him while he's on stage, and he can learn to use it to his own advantage.

So says Jack Trueman, instructor of the new theatrical design course which began Friday at Bastion Theatre School.

He says: "It's my belief, and that of many theatre school authorities, that actors, expecially young actors, should take a stage-craft course in order to have an understanding of what goes on around them, and so learn to appreciate the production as a team effort."

The new theatrical design course covers a wide area and a varied age group. Young people interested in backstage work will have the chance to find out where their interest really lies—in properties, construction, lighting, set painting, or stage management.

Rather than producing designers, the course sets out to promote understanding and appreciation of the many parts that fit together to make up a show.

Jack Trueman himself is fully acquainted with the complicated pattern of show business.

A graduate of summer courses in design and stagecraft at the University of British Columbia, he has long been associated with the Jerry Gosley Smile Show and with many other leading theatre groups in Victoria.

Jack has been on stage himself, but found his real interest lay in production work, and he now firmly refuses acting roles.

He wants the students taking his course in theatrical design to learn by doing, and arrangements will be made for practical experience gained through working on an actual stage production.

Speaking enthusiastically about his plans for the course, Jack says: "It's an old story that the actors always get the glory. But if your interest lies backstage, this course makes you aware of the importance of the production staff, and gives you an approach to professionalism."

The fifth fall and winter session of Bastion Theatre School began this week under the direction of Eugene Gallant.

"See where letter rates are going up one cent. That's a 25 per cent boost on local mail, 20 per cent for out of town," complained the man from Beach Drive.
"They could hardly raise them less," said his friend as they dawdled over their coffee in IMPERIAL poolside dining room.
"Anyway," he added, "I write a letter, a truck comes my corner to pick it up. It gets sorted, stamped with time, place and date, bagged, put on a plane, transhipped, sorted again and delivered by hand to my friend in Toronto two days later. Where can you get a better deal for six cents?"

"Shift" Your Business Into "High" Through Newspaper Advertising

The Sounding Board

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

On the self-denigrating principle that Victoria is unlikely to attract any first-class talent outside gardeners, fishermen, golfers and retired industrialists, one pervading question looms whenever an artist forsakes a big city to come and live among us.

The question is voiced with the skepticism of a youngster challenging his parents to prove there is Santa Claus.

Why would anyone that good come to live and work in Victoria?

The implication is that we have been indulging in some fancy window-dressing.

The question might have had validity 15, 20—even 10 years ago. But not today.

What the doubters must soon come to understand is that this city is no longer the Sleepy Hollow of the Pacific Northwest. Its nature has undergone a change, due to certain new factors.

●

It is like a person on the threshold of a fresh vital career.

A career that could quite reasonably make Victoria one of the major fine arts centres of the West Coast.

In the last month people who will be invaluable in contributing toward this goal have been arriving in the city almost weekly.

One of the most recent is Raymond Ovens.

Mr. Ovens has come from England to be concert master of Victoria Symphony Orchestra and to teach at the School of Music, where he joins the string faculty headed by former Vancouver Symphony concert master, Jack Kessler.

Having noted Mr. Ovens' impressive orchestral career to date—15 years with the London Symphony Orchestra, the Boyd Neel Orchestra, the London Mozart Players; as Beecham's principal second violin in the Royal Philharmonic and associate leader of the City of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra, I anticipated The Question.

And decided to have the answer straight from the artist's own lips.

●

Relaxing in a garden chair in the warm September sun with his curly-haired two-year-old daughter, Phillipa, on his knee, Mr. Ovens smiled amiably at me.

"It's a case of musical indigestion," he said.

Life in a big professional orchestra is an unremitting grind, the violinist explained.

"Financially my position with the CBSO was excellent," he went on, "but artistically it was anything but happy.

"In London it was the same thing—a regular rat race. On paper I was under contract to the CBSO for a 25-hour week but actually, with the orchestra constantly on the road, we put in 80 to 90 hours a week.

●

"I had already planned to resign and seek some position where there would be time for solo performance, study, chamber ensemble playing and teaching, almost none of which can be managed on the Birmingham and London orchestra schedules."

The offer from the Victoria Symphony came out of the blue, Mr. Ovens says.

"I never had a second thought other than accepting it."

After a tour of the eastern part of this continent with the BBC Symphony a few years ago, he had discussed with his attractive wife, Sheila, the desirability of moving to North America.

When friends and associates knew he was coming to Victoria they were unanimous in envying his good forutne. Some of his fellow musicians told him they would give anything to come and live and work "in such a place."

"We're already in love with Victoria," Mr. Ovens told me. "It's everything and more than we were led to imagine."

But apart from pure geographical delight he is stirred by a sense of growth and challenge in this city where the future is still in the making.

"There's much to be done and a good basis to work from," he said, speaking of the orchestra. "It's a real challenge.

●

"I heard a tape of Mr. Gati's first concert here and I'm really impressed with the good sound of the orchestra," he observed with genuine enthusiasm.

Tall, lean, with fine long hands and a warm, friendly personality, Raymond Ovens is also the father of another personality, Jonathan, a six-year-old potential string player who is not at all concerned about leaving his bike behind in England as long as he can have his first violin by Christmas.

"It's a better life for the children out here," Mr. Ovens summed up, "and I'm confident it will prove a better life artistically speaking, for me."

Petula Clark Concerts Set

A dainty and miniature English lass who took the whole world "downtown" on wings of song, Petula Clark, will appear at Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre in two performances, Friday, Oct. 27 at 8:30 and Saturday, Oct. 28 at 2 p.m.

The most programmed international songstress in the world, the five-foot, blue-eyed girl is a top guest star on every major television variety show in the United States and Europe and a headliner at all the most famous nightclubs.

Tickets for her Vancouver appearance are on sale now at the Vancouver Ticket Centre, 630 Hamilton Street.

FOCUS

By BRAD NUGENT

The October '67 issue of Offbeat leaves the printers early next week and will appear on newstands throughout the city.

This, the second edition of its new format, should bring just as much, if not more praise than the September issue.

Radio stations, record shops and newstands across the country have been quick to realize that Offbeat has a lot to offer. One Vancouver D.J., referring to the September issue, said "Offbeat, is the best paper of its kind in Canada;" then he corrected himself saying, "in North America."

This month the Beatles take the spotlight in an article titled "The New Beatles, What Are They Saying."

This, a probe into why the Beatles are singing what they are. It explores their own lives and the lives which they create in their music.

The article discovers that the imaginary lives they create aren't so imaginary after all.

Fashion has found a place among the pages in a new section, "Fashion Frolics," and Mark Lindsay takes the Soapbox, sounding off with a few ideas of his own.

All in all, October's Offbeat has to be the best yet. Don't miss it.

●

Well, Victorians have gone down another rung in the minds of promoters and agents in the U.S.

After last weekend's Frosh Dance and light show at the Esquimalt Arena with the Peanut Butter Conspiracy it is small wonder that Victoria is not on the track of tours and shows that cross the nation.

Sone of the Conspiracies' equipment was damaged making it almost impossible for the Conspiracy group to return to the stage that evening.

When so many Victorians, including many local band members, are fighting for top-names to appear in town what a shame that some people should act in such a way as to give the city a bad name.

Subsidies? This Group Says No Thanks

A contemporary absurd comedy, Just Wild About Harry, by Henry Miller, will introduce Victorians to a young professional, unsubsidized company from Vancouver — the Canadian Art Theatre.

There will be three performances at McPherson Playhouse, Oct. 6 and 7, one a matinee at 2:30 on the 7th.

The play was given its North American premiere at Vancouver's Metro Theatre last month.

Recently its director, John Stark, told a reporter who asked for a plot outline: "I suppose you could say it's a chaotic adventure in the philosophy of love, western politics and the insanity of life itself. The condemnations are vicious and sometimes shocking."

Just Wild About Harry was written for the 1963 Spoleto Festival in Italy and the following year was presented in the Edinburgh Festival.

'MELO-MELO'

Author Miller hesitates to call it a play but describes it as "a melo-melo in seven scenes."

The title role is taken by John Destry-Adams, who starred in the winning production of Gilliam in this year's Dominion Drama Festival, receiving for himself the most promising actor award.

The Canadian Art Theatre was formed two years ago as a professional company dedicated to using only Canadian actors and directors and as many Canadian playwrights as possible.

So far John Stark has produced with considerable artistic success, The Iceman Cometh, Electra and A Touch of the Poet.

His first Canadian play by B.C.'s George Ryga will follow the current production.

Mr. Stark began his theatrical career at the University of Arizona where he majored in English and Theatre.

His first professional work was done with CBC-TV Vancouver in 1958 and later he appeared in productions in New York and London.

The company is planning to build its own theatre, a replica of an Elizabethan playhouse, in a wooded area near Vancouver.

Mr. Stark says his company is unique in that it is actually opposed to any form of subsidization and confidently asserts that it will continue to operate on a self-sufficient basis.

Teddy Roosevelt Stock Raised by Historians

THEODORE ROOSEVELT; The Man As I Knew Him. By Nicholas Roosevelt. New York: Dodd, Mead and Company, $7.25.

Reviewed by James E. Hendrickson

Whatever else he was, Theodore Roosevelt was certainly one of the most exciting men ever to occupy the White House. Few men have brought to the presidency a greater diversity of talents and interests; few men have inspired greater loyalty and devotion on the part of their followers. Newsmen found "TR" eminently quotable, and his entire administration exhibited many of the attributes of a three-ring circus.

Before Pearl Harbor, estimates of the man tended to emphasize his erratic and juvenile characteristics at the expense of his more substantial qualities. Henry Adams, the historian and an intimate acquaintance, complained privately of his "childlike and infantile superficiality."

Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, warned a friend, "you must always remember the president is about six."

ROOSEVELT
. . . diverse talents

Roosevelt's major biographer labeled him "the most adolescent of men," and John Morley, the English statesman and writer, pronounced him "an interesting combination of St. Vitus and St. Paul." ("Do you know the two most wonderful things I have seen in your country?" Morley continued. "Niagara Falls and the president of the United States.")

Nevertheless, Adams, Spring-Rice, and Morley held TR in much higher regard than these comments might indicate, and historians of the Cold War generation have substantially modified earlier assessments of the man. We are today in a much better position to appreciate the political realism he displayed in forging a new departure in domestic affairs and, particularly, a new approach to foreign policy.

●

Although the book under review is a personal memoir rather than a comprehensive analysis, it reflects the trends of current interpretations.

The author, Nicholas Roosevelt, enjoyed a particularly close relationship to the president's family. The early death of his father, who was TR's first cousin and devoted friend, caused TR to take a special interest in young Nicholas' welfare, and except for TR's own children he probably saw as much of the President as any other member of that generation.

Because the author was only 15 when Roosevelt left the White House, his account emphasizes TR's relationship with his family and friends rather than his public career.

●

Young Nicholas frequently participated in backyard games and overnight outings with the Roosevelt family. In 1912 he accompanied Roosevelt to the Republican national convention in Chicago, where TR led the progressive "Bull Moose" revolt against the Republican party. The following year Nicholas joined TR and two of his sons on a hunting expedition in northern Arizona.

The portrait that emerges from these pages is of Roosevelt the cousin, father, husband, and brother to the clan that spent their summers together at Oyster Bay on Long Island Sound; of Roosevelt camping, hiking, riding, boating, cooking, playing tennis, reading poetry, and telling ghost stories; of Roosevelt at home to members of his cabinet and visiting dignitaries — and attempting to induce them to join in the favorite family game of hide and seek in the old barn.

●

This is a well-written account that offers some interesting insights into TR's personality, but it is neither penetrating nor profound. I would question, for example, the author's assertion that Roosevelt's efforts to have the American people intervene on the side of the Allies in the first World War was his "single greatest contribution . . . to American history."

●

A journalist by profession, the author does not approach his subject uncritically, but neither does he obscure his family connections. The strongest feature of the book is the author's reliance upon a personal diary to reconstruct his first-hand impressions of the man and his times.

Readers interested in Roosevelt's family life will enjoy this book, but serious students will find greater rewards elsewhere.

Book, Exhibition Both Draw Attention To '67 Centennial

By JOAN COLDWELL

A fortnight ago I listed the best-selling titles of 1904 and airily admitted that I'd never heard of any of them. Now I have to apologize to the Ellen Glasgow fans and the John Fox addicts and all the people who've accused me of being an ignoramus and sent me well-thumbed copies of My Friend Prospero, which, by the way, I have now read and enjoyed. (But still nobody mentions Miss Miriam Michelson!)

* * *

Also in the mail this week was a book of more topical interest. Entitled British Columbia and Confederation, it is a collection of essays on B.C. history, the result of extensive researches into the Provincial Archives.

The unusual feature is that the contributors are not professional historians. One, for example, is a farmer, one a barrister and two are housewives. What they have in common is that they are all former history students of the University of Victoria (or Victoria College).

Their book is a centennial project, designed to encourage others to share an enthusiasm for research into the province's past.

British Columbia and Confederation is published by the Morriss Printing Company for the University of Victoria and is edited by Professor W. George Shelton of the department of history. A review of the book will be carried on this page shortly; I draw your attention to it now in case you're curious about what students do between sit-ins.

There's another centennial project coming up that will feature books of local interest. This is the Centennial Exhibition of Books to be held in the McPherson Playhouse on Oct. 13 and 14.

The exhibition has been planned by Miss Gwen Scott of the Marionette Book Shop, with the assistance of the Provincial Archives, the public library and the university. The aim is to illustrate the progress of Canadian publishing. Rare and out-of-print works will be displayed but the emphasis is to be on contemporary books.

Miss Scott believes that Canadian publishing has made enormous advances in recent years. It's refreshing to hear such an optimistic note for a change. All summer I've been listening to people in the book world repeating the same old remarks about how backward we are, how lamentable our cultural deprivation.

Let's not lay claim to being more lively than we are, but at least let's stop thinking of ourselves as hopeless philistines, incapable of reading anything more challenging than the mail order catalogue.

* * *

People in Victoria buy books, read books and talk about books. The trouble is, these are usually not Canadian books. People spend vacation hours browsing in bookshops in the United States who never go into a bookstore at home; I know one person who spends an average of $700 a year on books from abroad against $300 for Canadian orders.

It isn't that the books are unavailable here; it is simply that we are conditioned, in this as in so much else, to thinking that "British is Best" and "the U.S. is for us."

Here is one chance to have a look at what Canada can offer to book buyers and readers; a general invitation to the Centennial Exhibition of Books.

WEST COAST'S FAMOUS LONG BEACH

CENTENNIAL BOOK A DISAPPOINTMENT

Text Saves 'Pretty Pictures'

CANADA: A YEAR OF THE LAND, published jointly by the National Film Board and The Queen's Printer, Ottawa, 1967, illustrated, 260 pages, $25.

Reviewed by Alan Forrest

This new picture essay of Canada cries out to be compared with Roloff Beny's similar epic production.

Canada: A Year of the Land comes out second best in almost every department.

This new effort consists of 260 pictures — 240 in color — on pages a foot by 15 inches wide and selected from the collections of 68 photographers.

The pictures are divided up into spring, summer, fall and winter shots with lyrical introductions to each section by Bruce Hutchison of the Vancouver Sun in the English edition and Jean Sarrazin of CBC Montreal in the French edition.

Mr. Hutchison's prose piles effect upon effect in convincing fashion.

In tone it runs ". . . the honk of geese, the chirp of robins, the splash of trout, the frog's love chorus from the swamp. . . ."

Out of context and in a small dose it might appear singularly unextraordinary but, after three or four pages, seduction begins to creep in.

The pictures were selected for beauty and design. They are beautiful and well-ordered.

But many of the pictures of Canada in spring could just as well be of the United States in summer or Holland in fall. A picture of Peggy's Cove, Nova Scotia, in summer looks like midwinter at the end of the world.

As a whole the book is pretty — but no more.

●

It suffers from 68 different personalities giving 68 versions of what is eye-catching and noteworthy in the Canadian scene.

As a Centennial project it falls short of its goal of saying: Here is Canada, look, learn and admire.

What it is is a book of pretty pictures.

By contrast Mr. Beny travelled Canada from coast to coast, climbing up to the highest point of land, lying flat on his tummy, struggling to get the best angle on the most significant shot.

He captured the cruel rocks and soaring trees of the west coast, the stark flatness of the prairies the rock and roll of Ontario and the petite tranquility of the east.

●

How Beny told the story of Canada, impressed upon us that existence is worth the struggle and even argued that there is a blissful life after death. He did all that in pictures.

Canada: A Year of the Land entertains for half an hour. It's a fun book but not very enlightening.

One hurries back into the text by Mr. Hutchison to try to reassure oneself that the pictures are really about our country as we know it.

The text is consistently rewarding, especially in such local gems as:

WINTER

". . . Vancouver is reduced to chaos in a minor storm which the rest of the country takes in its stride. Victoria, its crocuses and jasmine entombed, its golf links actually closed, admits that the 'evergreen playground' is somewhat discolored for the moment — a civic scandal and humiliation."

Newsman Envoy Tattles on Hosts

THE REDS AND THE BLACKS, by William Attwood. Fitzhenry and Whiteside. $8.75.

Reviewed by Edgar S. Efrat

Although the book is subtitled "A Personal Adventure," there is a public message to executive authorities responsible for the conduct of foreign affairs: be wary of appointing journalists to sensitive stations!

Attwood, formerly foreign editor and now editor-in-chief of Look Magazine, was selected by President Kennedy as ambassador to Guinea, and later by President Johnson as ambassador to Kenya.

The publication of this book created a furor among Africans who suddenly discovered in the public domain conversations that they considered private and confidential.

These include numerous observations made by President Kenyatta about his own ministers, or the Soviet Ambassador's expressed attitude towards his African assignment.

Both men considered Attwood their friend and confidant. Following publication, American embassies throughout Africa received instructions from the Department of State on how to respond when queried about it.

RAISES QUESTION

The book is entertaining, amusing and generally pleasant light reading about current affairs as experienced by a New Frontiersman from the inside. But it does raise again one of the most important literary questions of our day: to what extent should those who are privy to the lives and secrets of the great of our day be permitted to capitalize upon their privilege?

Was Lord Moran justified in revealing medical and other details about Winston Churchill, which he would not have known had he not been his friend and personal physician?

What about Schlesinger, Sorensen, Salinger and other Kennedy intimates who published million-dollar personal memoranda and memorabilia before the late president's body was even placed in his final resting place?

This view may, of course, be parried by the very strong defence of "the public has a right to know," eloquently stated by Woodrow Wilson's assertion that diplomacy must consist of open covenants openly arrived at. Yet even those governments that are most sensitive to the public's right to know, those who constitutionally guarantee free speech and abhor censorship, keep their archives closed for a "cooling-off" period after the occurrence of public events, save for bona-fide research.

INDEXING 'CURIOUS'

For the researcher and student in contemporary affairs much of the value of this book is impaired by a curious system of indexing and by poor proofreading: the index cites Kennedy, Jacqueline, as the recipient of a Kenya market basket gift complete with strap design to show that the widow is no prostitute, while Kenya's major political parties, though amply discussed in the text, are omitted. In the latter category, one may assume that a prominent journalist ought to know how to spell the name of one of Italy's foremost newspapers, the "Corriere della Sera."

Nevertheless, The Reds and the Blacks is a useful and informative book. It vividly portrays an American ambassador at work, which consisted largely of fighting a word-war against the Reds while living among the Blacks. It also attempts to exonerate much maligned villains, such as the Department of State, British colonial administration, and the CIA among others.

If it succeeds in showing us the other side of issues of which we see mostly one side nowadays, Attwood's only-too-early chronicle is a worthwhile effort.

'Burns' Love Wholesome, Country Thing'

Rabbie Burns, the bard of Scotland, was a poor man given to high living and promiscuity, according to a book published here by Gray Campbell of Sidney.

Entitled Burns and his Bonnie Jean, it is the work of Victoria author Yvonne Helen Stevenson.

She insists that "Burns' love of women was a wholesome country thing that was fine in its environment before the church started this one-man-and-one-woman thing."

DECADE OF RESEARCH

Miss Stevenson is a great-great-grandniece of Bonnie Jean Armour, Burns' "true love," and her book is the result of 10 years' research in Canada and Scotland.

She shows that Burns married Bonnie Jean three times: first in a common-law relationship that was recognized by Scottish law, then before a justice of the peace and finally in a kirk.

Bonnie Jean is said to have been pregnant when she became his common-law wife.

Miss Stevenson said she got the impetus to show that Bonnie Jean was Burns' true love from a statue in Beacon Hill Park of Burns and Highland Mary Campbell.

"Highland Mary was just one of his many passing fancies, but he was married to Jean for 10 years until they soured the marriage," she writes.

ADORED ALL WOMEN

The book suggests that Burns was a life-loving libertine who adored all women, and his poems are quoted in support of this belief.

Of Bonnie Jean he wrote:

She is a winsome wee thing
She is a handsome wee thing
She is a lo'esome wee thing
This sweet wee wife of mine

Miss Stevenson also quotes the poems he wrote about Highland Mary and Bonnie Lesley.

She says that, while Burns is a national hero, he is still disapproved of by members of her family.

"My old aunts still refuse to have a book of his poems in the house, let alone a print or a picture. Yet he was the one who made them famous."

'Trivia From Periphery of History'

THE BUTT OF MALMSEY by Hugh Ross Williamson. Thomas Nelson & Sons, $6.75.

Reviewed by Anthony Jenkins

The chief drawback of the historical novel as a genre is the frequent awkwardness of the conversations that are put in the mouths of characters who belong to the non-fictional past. There is not only the difficulty of choosing a level of diction that is both bearable to modern ears and yet not too inappropriately twentieth century, but, more problematic, is the necessity of conveying the researched facts in seemingly natural dialogue.

These problems are particularly relevant to Mr. Williamson's latest book since he concentrates primarily upon character in providing an account of the life of George, Duke of Clarence, the brother of Edward IV and Richard II, and the victim of a renowned and spectacular death, drowned in a butt of Malmsey.

The author plumps for dialogue of a decidedly neutral character which is, for the most part, efficient but which on occasion seems naive and gauche:

"Mother, will they be long?"

"Not by the sound of it, George. Don't you hear them?"

"Of course. But it's been like that for some time. . . . Will they kill us?"

"It is possible. Die well."

Surely no human beings ever talked and felt like that.

Because of such awkwardnesses, the book succeeds more as a thoroughly researched and reliable account of the events rather than as an analysis of the personalities concerned in them. In attempting to alter the image of Shakespeare's drunken and vacillating Clarence, Mr. Williamson has ended by whitewashing the prince. One can believe in a "gentle George," but his portrait of an acutely sensitive and noble prince, the innocent victim of others' viciousness is less convincing.

Even as a young boy, Clarence is made to question the values of the times, wondering if the relics at Canterbury are really genuine, and when he grows older, he is shown to be critical of the sensuousness of his royal brothers and sisters, choosing for himself a life of pure and noble love.

The villains are in consequence more interesting. Edward IV's ineffectiveness is made credible by his sottish and sensual personality, while Elizabeth Woodville, his Queen, emerges as a grasping schemer eager to build the power of her family against that of Warwick, the Kingmaker.

Perhaps the most delicately drawn portrait of all is that of Henry VI, abstractedly seated in his tent picking primroses and staring into nothingness while the battle for the English crown rages around him.

Mr. Williamson has dealt lightly and tactfully with the contemporary background. There are few elaborate setpieces, and the figures move across a comparatively bare stage. An enlightening and often entertaining book (if his reading of the central characters is taken with several grains of salt), it offers an instructive glimpse into the rivalries of York and Lancaster and provides some fascinating trivia from the periphery of history.

The Queen's youngest brother, a youth in his teens, is married off to the wealthy Dowager Duchess of Norfolk, a lady of eighty: "In the country this was known simply as 'the diabolical marriage.'"

On another occasion, the Queen's relatives are shown looting the house of a rich merchant in order to get their hands on a tapestry he had refused to give them. If the path cut through the tangle of events is often a little too neat, the book is at its best in such ironic moments as these.

Clinic to Open in Duncan For Alcoholism Treatment

DUNCAN—A travelling clinic for treatment of alcoholics will make Duncan a regular port of call starting in November.

The Alcoholism Foundation Clinic will spend one half-day every two weeks at Duncan health centre.

Island supervisor Reg Clarkson said here Friday the clinic will provide professional psychotherapy.

Treatment will be available for voluntary patients and those referred to the foundation by the courts.

These clinics sponsored by the foundation have been operating in various parts of B.C. for nearly a year.

News of their introduction to Duncan was given at the start of a two-day institute on alcoholism and alcohol.

It is sponsored by the Family Court Committee of Duncan in co-operation with the foundation.

About 100 people attended the opening session in St. John's Church hall Friday night.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said the answer to the alcohol problem lay in the work of organizations like the foundation.

He said it was a "sobering" experience to realize the big-take days in many hotels came when people received either their old-age pension, family allowance or welfare cheques.

Executive director of the foundation E. D. McRae said alcoholism is an illness not only on the increase in B.C. but out of control.

He said: "It should give us real cause for concern but unfortunately we are able to sweep alcoholism under the rug and go on living with it."

Not everyone agreed alcoholism is a problem in this country. It has been extolled as God's gift to mankind.

A second group realized it is responsible for untold suffering and misery.

Mr. McRae said one hope of the institute was to disturb the thinking of the third group which is indifferent to the problem.

He said: "We are asked—Why is the problem not solved?"

One reason is that drinking as a social practice is deeply embedded in our culture.

ON INCREASE

Secondly, problems arising from drinking are exceedingly complex.

The fact that 70 per cent of Canadians drink alcohol has a bearing on people's attitude. They don't like to point the finger at themselves.

In 1953 Canadians drank 1.55 gallons of alcohol per capita.

The figure in 1964 was 1.85 gallons per capita.

Canadians spent $98 per capita on alcohol in 1964 and 2.5 per cent of the adult population was alcoholic.

Mr. McRae said: "We are spending more on drink, we are drinking more and the rate of alcoholism is increasing."

Today's sessions were to include panel debates; a presentation of the breakdown of the family structure where there is an alcoholic member; a film, and workshop discussion groups.

If I were out to impress people, on occasion I'd hang my head in shame. But since I'm not, I don't!

Chiropractors Told To Raise Standards

NANAIMO — Chiropractors must improve their educational standards before they can be integrated with the medical profession, Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of medicine at UBC, told a meeting of chiropractors here Friday.

It was the first time a member of the B.C. Medical Association has officially addressed chiropractors as professional men.

Dr. McCreary explained why they had not been included in the forthcoming arrangements at UBC to integrate health professions.

"I don't see how we can have a common meeting place at present," he said.

DIALOGUE POSSIBLE

He urged chiropractors to bring their educational facilities up to standards accepted by the health professions.

"This could enable us to begin a dialogue which would eventually lead to mutual acceptance."

One of the chiropractors said improving educational facilities would require government help through taxation and this was not forthcoming.

"Then maybe you'd better take a close look at yourselves," Dr. McCreary replied.

He told the group that, for the first time in Canadian medical history, research is being done to determine the effectiveness of various health services upon the community.

He said the new program of integration at UBC is designed to ensure that all health services speak a common language.

The same will be true of the basic medical sciences, but the common language will be stressed so that each profession will know what the others refer to.

HEAVY LOAD

"The physicians of Canada are carrying too heavy a load," Dr. McCreary said. "There are some areas of B.C. which have no physicians at all.

"The saving factor in the past has been immigration of doctors from other countries, where the medical profession has become dissatisfied with situations they face.

"The United Kingdom provided 900 doctors this year, but we cannot be sure this will continue," Dr. McCreary said.

He said new medical information is being published every 28 seconds throughout the world.

"It is difficult for a doctor to find the time to keep abreast of increasing knowledge in his own field."

Dr. McCreary was given a standing ovation by chiropractors when he concluded his one-hour address.

Socreds Seek Subsidy On Hay Cost

DUNCAN—The provincial government should seek an agreement with Ottawa and the railway companies to absorb one-third of the cost of transporting hay within the borders of B.C.

This is the text of a resolution to be presented to the Social Credit Party's annual convention in November.

It will be advanced by the Cowichan-Malahat delegation.

Constituency president Patrick Rogers said Friday such an agreement already exists in Quebec.

The idea is to "avoid severe economic dislocations in those areas of the province affected."

The resolution states "moisture conditions prevailing in many parts of B.C. result in serious shortages of forage and hay.

"Increased rail freight rates are making shipment of hay so costly there is a build-up of surpluses in one area and shortages in another."

A second Cowichan-Malahat resolution to the convention will call on the provincial government to give some financial assistance to communities constructing sewer plants which conform to standard.

Cowichan delegates will also press for government leadership to co-ordinate the efforts of different agencies concerned about soil erosion and flood control.

Mr. Rogers will lead an 11-member Cowichan delegation to the convention.

An idea to have a bridge span Sansum Narrows to connect Salt Spring Island and Central Vancouver Island will be taken to the area council meeting Oct. 14.

Mr. Rogers said: "We want to sound out feeling among Island representatives before taking the idea in resolution form to the annual party convention."

Man, 77, Missing

PARKSVILLE—A search continued Friday for David Telning, 77, who disappeared from Echo Lake Lodge Rest Home at Hilliers Tuesday morning.

RCMP and a tracking dog have co-operated in the search with Nanaimo Search and Rescue and Parksville Fish and Game branch.

Mr. Telning was wearing a brown plaid shirt and jacket, dark blue trousers and a wine-colored tie. He is 5 ft. 1 in, weighs 110 pounds, wears glasses and has recent scars on his forehead.

Campers Face Tighter Rules

Regulations to control litter and camping on Long Beach will be tightened, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Friday.

The minister was answering complaints that Long Beach is being spoiled by litter and the lack of control on campers.

"Certainly we will have to tighten up our control of camping on the beach and of litter," he said.

"We are going to have to come to the philosophy that the things people pack into the bush, or into campsites or along trails or in parks, are capable of being packed out, too."

Long Beach and Bamfield are two sites which have been recommended for a national marine park and a decision from federal parks officials is expected in the near future.

Impaired Driving Nets Six Weeks

Thomas H. Lidgate, 485 Fraser Street, was sentenced to six weeks in jail when he was convicted of a second offence impaired driving charge Friday.

He was remanded to Oct. 10 for a decision on possible suspension of licence.

The charge arose from an incident June 29, when the accused drove in such a manner, police said, as to force two cars to swerve to avoid an accident.

A breath test gave a reading of .16.

THE TWO FACES OF ELECTRIC HEAT

They Tell You
- Electric heat is just as economical as oil heat.
- Electric heat is healthier than oil heat.
- Electric heat is cleaner than oil heat.
- An electric water heater is better than an oil-fired water heater.

We Tell You
- For the average home, electric heat costs up to 100% more than oil heat unless extensive insulation is used.
- Electric heat is stagnant heat. Unlike oil heat, it does not circulate and freshen the air in your home. With electric heat, your family keeps breathing stale air.
- Recent research at Columbia University proves that there is no cleaner heat than modern automatic oil heat.
- It is a proven fact that an oil-fired water heater heats water 6 times faster than electricity and much more economically.

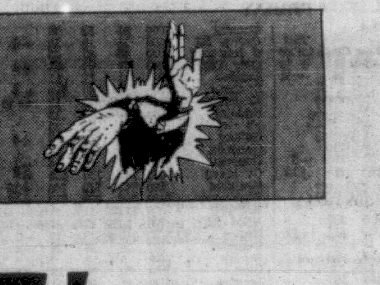
GUILTY UNTIL PROVEN INNOCENT!



THE MISUSE OF INJUNCTIONS IN LABOUR DISPUTES IS AN AFFRONT TO THE DIGNITY AND MEANING OF LAW.

The present crisis in British Columbia's industrial relations results largely from the misuse of injunctions . . . in particular their "ex parte" application to prevent picketing. Labour has an inalienable right to strike. The full majesty of the law backs that right, protects it, provides the means whereby both sides of the dispute can bargain fairly and in good faith.

Yet by a twist of the law . . . made possible by Bill 43 of the Trade Unions Act . . . the right to strike can be rendered almost meaningless by an "ex parte" injunction to prevent picketing. An injunction used in this way has the effect of denying the right to protest in the only tangible way available to those legitimately withholding their labour.

IT IS AN ABUSE OF THE LAW . . . AN ABUSE OF YOUR BILL OF RIGHTS!

Prosperity in British Columbia depends entirely on the establishment of creative and harmonious relations between labour and management. It's as simple as that. With this perversion of current labour law, there can only be continuing friction and mutual hostility. Nobody gains by it. The striker is pronounced guilty until he can prove his innocence . . . and in the meantime his only effective bargaining weapon is taken away from him. When you are asked to sign our petition to end this inequity in the Trade Unions Act, we urge you to sign it.

Financier, Associate Convicted

NEW YORK (AP)—Financer Louis Wolfson and his business associate, Elkin B. Gerbert, have been convicted of conspiring to unlawfully sell $3,500,000 worth of stock in 1960-62.

A U.S. District Court jury of 10 men and two women brought in its verdict Friday after deliberating six hours.

The government charged that Wolfson, 55, of Miami Beach, Fla., and Gerbert, 58, of Jacksonville, Fla., were "insiders" who illegally sold the stock of Continental Enterprises, Inc., while public investors were unaware of the sale by the two men.

They were convicted on all 19 counts of an indictment accusing them of conspiring in the illegal sale of some 690,000 shares of stock in Continental, a firm once headed by Wolfson.

Wolfson is chairman of the Merritt-Chapman and Scott Corp. Gerbert is a director and vice-president of Continental.

The stock dropped to $1.50 a share from a high of about $8 after sales by Wolfson and Gerbert.

The two men each could be given as much as 95 years and fines totalling $95,000.

VIOLATED ACT

Wolfson and Gerbert were indicted a year ago on charges that they wilfully violated the Securities Act by selling unregistered shares of Continental Enterprises between 1960 and 1962.

The key issue was whether the shares should have been registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission prior to their sale and whether Wolfson and Gerbert knew they should have been registered.

The act stipulates that no more than one per cent of a corporation's outstanding shares may be sold in a six-month period by the individual or group which controls a corporation.

Prosecutor Michael F. Armstrong presented evidence during the trial that Wolfson netted about $1,300,000 on the stock deals, while Gerbert made about $130,000.

SHARP INCREASE SEEN IN FEDERAL DEFICIT

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal treasury ran an $82,100,000 deficit in August, up sharply from $28,200,000 in August last year, the finance department reported Friday.

The month's revenues were $683,000,000 and expenditures were $765,100,000.

In the first five months of the fiscal year that began April 1, revenues ran to $3,616,700,000 and expenditures amounted to $3,574,100,000, leaving a surplus of $42,600,000. In the same period last year, the surplus was $246,600,000.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

New Arguments For Tax Boost

NEW YORK (AP)—Government statistics showing a rise in living costs and wholesale industrial prices in the U.S. this week gave President Johnson additional arguments for his 10-per-cent income tax increase proposal.

Living costs are up 2.7 per cent so far this year and might reach nearly three per cent by the end of the year, commissioner Arthur M. Ross of the bureau of labor statistics reported.

If they reach three per cent, they would approach last year's 10-year high of 3.3 per cent, he said.

And Ross added: "A tax increase would mitigate price pressures."

He said wholesale prices rose five-tenths of one per cent in the last two months after five months of virtually no movement.

He called wholesale prices most significant because "they move into consumer prices."

The administration argues that a tax boost would take some steam out of inflationary pressures, such as rising prices.

Meanwhile, prices continued their upward movement.

Allied Chemical Corp. said it is boosting its price of sulphuric acid, a widely used industrial chemical, between $2.25 and $3 a ton.

Freeport Sulphur Co. said it was increasing by $5.50 a ton its price on domestic sulphur, in short supply.

Some shoe manufacturers announced three to four per cent price increases on some spring lines.

Admiral, Philco, Magnavox and Zenith said they would raise color television prices, following the lead of Radio Corp. of America.

Crucible Steel Corp. said it would raise the price of stainless steel in bar, sheet and strip form.

There was one notable price cut. Chrysler, which had announced 1968 auto prices cut its prices by about an average of $31 a car from those originally announced. This would make them about $140 above the 1967 list.

The Ford auto strike went into its fourth week meantime with no immediate sign of settlement.

With the Ford strike, auto production this week was estimated at 140,858 cars, down from 147,447 the previous week.

In other economic developments, the commerce department said corporate profits fell in the April-June period for the third consecutive quarter. Before tax profits totalled $78,900,000,000 at an annual rate in the second quarter, down from $79,000,000,000 in the first quarter.

Imports declined to a seasonally adjusted August total of $2,114,800,000, lowest since August 1966.

Steel production totaled 2,440,000 tons, down from the previous week's 2,469,000 tons.

STRIKES HIT U.K. AUTO INDUSTRY

LONDON (CP)—Labor troubles at a number of plants have left parts of Britain's automobile industry sputtering and there are strains elsewhere on the industrial front.

About 26,000 of the auto industry's 500,000 workers were idle Wednesday.

A strike by 120 transport drivers at a body plant in Birmingham caused the temporary layoff of 2,300 Austin workers there.

An unofficial stoppage by 150 workers at Rootes plant in Scotland, designed to back up wage demands, led the company to send home 2,500 other factory men.

About 16,000 employees of Vauxhall Motors Ltd.—the British branch of General Motors—were idle following rejection of a pay and productivity offer from the company.

WEEK ON MARKETS

Brokers Look For Rebound

By LARRY DWORKIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Canada's major stock exchanges backed off this week after three weeks of steady increases.

However, brokers say they expect the markets to rebound because of inflationary pressures on the economy as well as anticipated increased earnings in the fourth quarter.

They say the Bank of Canada's announced increases bank rate and the higher interest rates on National Housing Act mortgages are not expected to have too much effect on the markets.

David Bryson, an analyst with J. H. Crang and Co., says that despite the increased yields in bonds, equities are still more attractive because inflatinary pressures are expected to push stock prices even higher.

He says people are wary of buying bonds because of the uncertainty of future bond prices.

INDUSTRIALS FALL

At Toronto, the industrial index, which measures the price movements of key issues, dropped .94 to 168.72. Volume was 20,761,000 shares compared with 18,626,000 last week.

Westcoast Transmission declined 1¾ to 25, Inco 1¼ to 114½, CPR 1⅛ to 62⅞, Dofasco ⅞ to 23¾, Bell Telephone ⅝ to 46 and Walkers ¾ to 35¼.

Bank issues were also weaker as Imperial-Commerce and Toronto-Dominion fell ½ each to 13¼ and 13½ and Nova Scotia and Royal ¼ each to 14 and 16⅛.

Laura Secord climbed 3½ to 16⅞ after Salada Foods offered to buy 475,000 outstanding common shares at $16 a share. Salada was up ⅝ to 11⅛.

Jefferson Lake advanced 1¼ to 63¼. Brokers say the stock's rise is related to the continuing price increase in sulphur.

Other big gains went to Peel-Elder up 4½ to 15½, BACM Industries 2¾ to 16¼, Versatile 2⅜ to 17⅜ and Imperial Oil 1⅜ to 65⅞.

SPECS ACTIVE

Lake-Osu jumped 15½ to 29½ cents on 1,481,000 shares after the company announced it had encountered mineralization north of Nakina in northwestern Ontario.

PCE Explorations slid 35 cents to 1.45 on 1,051,000 shares. The company said it hadn't decided whether it would continue drilling during the winter at its Coppermine River area property in the Northwest Territories.

The company said its camps were designed and equipped for operating throughout the winter.

Among other speculatives, D'Eldona was down 28 cents to 1.42 on 1'161,000 shares.

Western oils weakened. Central-Del Rio slipped 2¾ to 20¾ on rumors that its latest drilling in Alberta was discouraging.

Pacific Pete was off ¼ to 19½ and Banff ⅛ to 15½. Home A was up 1¾ to 23⅝, Dome 1 to 58¾ and Canadian Homestead 50 cents to 5.40.

Uranium issues, which scored sharp gains past week, backed down in profit taking. Rio Algon fell 1¾ to 37⅜ and Denison ⅛ to 83½. Roman Corp., whose chief asset is Denison shares, dropped 1 to 27½.

Among other base metals, Hudson Bay retreated 2 to 61 and Placer 1⅜ to 33.

On index, base metals were off .03 to 109.18 and western oils 1.40 to 205.39. Golds were up 3.65 to 167.75.

At Montreal, industrials were up .14 to 173. Utilities declined .69 to 142.92, banks 2.69 to 127.73, and papers 1.78 to 104.60. Volume was 6,938,000 shares compared with 7,900,000 last week.

Mutual Funds Need Explaining

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Sooner or later the fledgling investor is likely to be confronted with a mutual fund pitch, a situation about which he probably knows very little.

For that reason alone he may be taken advantage of by one of the inexperienced fund salesmen eager to make sales without fully explaining what his particular fund can do, or by one who misrepresents the facts.

Kent

And there are such salesmen because the turnover in that field is high. Some may not have passed their qualifying examinations.

Of course there are fully experienced mutual fund representatives, licensed by the government as are stock and bond salesmen, and they deplore the unfortunate cases that come to their attention from time to time as a result of inexperience or overzealousness.

Part of the blame for this must be put on the buyer for not taking the trouble to find out certain things for himself. After all, it is his money and the old Latin applies: caveat emptor.

* * *

But it seems that the mutual fund companies might make a greater effort to explain themselves, since there are so many of them, designed to perform in varying ways.

For example, there are funds designed to provide income, others to hedge inflation by steady growth, still others to give the investor a "run for his money" through exaggerated performance, and there are combinations of these.

There are different ways of charging for the mutual fund company's services, different methods of paying or reinvesting dividends; there are voluntary and contractual payment plans, completion insurance, exchange privileges and custodian services.

To make things more confusing there are nearly 200 mutual funds operating in the U.S. and more than 60 available in Canada. Only about half of them belong to a mutual fund association.

It is the association of Canadian mutual funds that has a chance to explain the funds more clearly, since it is illogical and impractical for a representative of an individual fund to try to present any fund but his own.

If a buyer himself is keen on the funds, he may get some information from the Canadian Investment Dealers' Association, or look for a book published by Arthur Weisenberger and Co., titled Investment Companies, considered a good source.

Dominion Construction Co. reports its fullest energies are going into preparation of working drawings for the $6 million Hillside - Shelbourne shopping complex announced early in the summer.

Representatives have started work on leasing of premises and are encouraged by the response, according to a company spokesman. Construction starts early in 1968.

The 1967 convention of Canadian Association of Real Estate Boards will take place in Vancouver Oct 8-11, with more than 1,100 agents and their wives attending.

Waterborne B.C. lumber shipments both for the month of August and for the eight months since January showed a sharp drop from last year.

Total shipments for the month came to 172.1 million board feet compared with 235.4 million in August, 1966 The eight-month total dropped from 1.68 billion to 1.67 billion board feet.

Principal markets in decline in August were the western hemisphere Australia, Germany and West Indies.

In the western hemisphere — essentially the U.S. — the total last month was 65.8 million board feet against 136.9 million in August 1966, with the eight-month total falling from 964.5 million to 738.6 million board feet.

ENDING YEARS of research and development, opening of the $235,00,000 Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. plant at Fort McMurray, Alberta, took place today. Officiating at the opening was Premier Manning. The Alberta Oil and Gas Conservation Board has estimated the sands contain 626,000,000,000 barrels of crude oil, of which perhaps 370,000,000,000 can be recovered. Great Canadian plans to produce up to 45,000 barrels a day to start. Seventy-five per cent of the oil will go to Sun Oil Refineries at Sarnia, Ont., and Toledo, Ohio. Sun Oil of Philadelphia holds an 81.1 per cent interest in Great Canadian. Shell Canada, Ltd. will take the remainder of the oil. (CP Wirephoto).

WIDE CHANGES SEEN

Broadcast Bill Due Next Week

OTTAWA (CP) — After more than a year in preparation, a government bill containing sweeping changes for broadcasting is expected to be unveiled in the Commons next week.

The overhaul, the first big government measure to be put before the fall session of Parliament, is expected to touch virtually every important aspect of broadcasting.

The bill will put into legislative form the ideas the government outlined in a white paper 14 months ago. The white paper was drafted after the government received a report from a special committee under Montreal businessman R. M. Fowler that carried out a year-long study of broadcasting.

The paper suggested a revamped hierarchy for the CBC. The duties now shouldered by President J. Alphonse Ouimet would be split. Day-to-day running of the corporation would be handed to a general manager and the president would be concerned mainly with policy decisions.

INCREASE MEMBERS

It also proposed wider powers for the BBG and a new physical format. The number of full-time BBG members would be increased to five from three and there would be up to seven part-time members. At present there are 10 part-time members.

The white paper suggested powers of the BBG over private broadcasters be defined clearly. They would include issuing warnings, ordering fines or lifting broadcast licences where there had been breaches of the regulations or failure to comply with the conditions set by the board when it recommended a licence.

The Fowler committee recommended that the regulatory agency be placed clearly above the CBC and be made responsible for the corporation's management.

The white paper did not agree with this but did suggest that the CBC be subject to BBG regulations "in all matters affecting general broadcasting policy."

It is expected the bill will follow the white paper recommendation that cable television systems be placed under the authority of the BBG. At present, they come only under the transport department's communications section.

The bill's provisions for educational TV could spark some spirited debate.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT
BUILDING SUPPLIES LTD.
PURCHASED BY LOCAL LUMBERMEN

Shown below are the new owners of Shawnigan Building Supplies Ltd., they will take over this well-known firm on Monday, October 2nd, 1967. The new owners are looking forward to meeting the many loyal customers of Shawnigan Building Supplies Ltd., and would also like to take this opportunity to welcome their many friends and customers to whom they have had the pleasure of helping with their building material needs over the past years. The policy of the new owners is very simple, but very sound, it is—"Excellent service and quality materials at the right price." Customer satisfaction is guaranteed at Shawnigan Building Supplies Ltd.

M. F. (Mike) Jiggins
President

Mr. Mike Jiggins has had many years of experience in the field of retail building supplies sales and millwork. In 1962, Mr. Jiggins opened the Doman Retail Store in Victoria which he has managed until recently. He is largely responsible for many new ideas in merchandising building materials and spearheaded the first complete self-serve building supply store in British Columbia. Among his many distinctions Mr. Jiggins covets highly the winning in three consecutive years of the National Award for merchandising building materials. This award was terminated after his third win. Mr. Jiggins is a graduate of the Marketing Management School in Banff and holds the City and Guilds Certificate in Joinery. He extends a welcome to his many clients in Victoria and invites your enquiries pertaining to building material estimates or ideas.

C. A. (Cliff) Wanless
Vice-President

Mr. Cliff Wanless has a wide background in both retail and wholesale sales of building materials. For many years Mr. Wanless was manager for Grant Industries Ltd., a well-known national wholesaler of building materials. Whilst in this capacity Mr. Wanless attended many courses and acquired a vast technical knowledge of the applications of a wide range of building materials. This knowledge will be readily available to customers of Shawnigan Building Supplies Ltd. Until recently, he was manager of Cubbon Building Supplies Ltd. in Victoria and was responsible for many innovations in that firm. Mr. Wanless' experience in the wholesale field will add considerable strength to the Contractor Dept. at Shawnigan Building Supplies and he extends a welcome to his many clients in the construction industry. Mr. Wanless invites enquiries regarding new homes, summer cottages, etc.

L. (Les) Crutchlow
Secretary

Mr. Les Crutchlow is well known in Victoria for his untiring work in home improvement sales. He has spent many years assisting customers in the construction of rumpus rooms, carports, garages, sundecks and home additions, etc. Until recently he was assistant manager with the Doman retail store in Victoria and has spent the past 5½ years with that firm. Mr. Crutchlow brings to Shawnigan Building Supplies Ltd. a comprehensive knowledge of home improvement ideas and will be readily available to give free consultation and advice to all customers wishing this service. Mr. Crutchlow has many contractor clients who work closely with him to supply their labour services if required by his home improvement customers. Mr. Crutchlow's successful sales background has been built on his belief that fast, efficient service is the keynote. He extends a welcome to his many clients and invites enquiries regarding all types of home improvement projects.

TRACK STEWARDS SUSPEND OWNER

By HAL MALONE

An owner-trainer today was suspended for 30 days after urine tests on his horse proved positive.

Sandown Park stewards suspended Robert S. Kean after a hearing.

The stewards said tests on Kean's horse Wallaroo, winner of the fourth race on Sept. 16, "proved positive for the drug procaine or a derivative."

The suspension is effective Sept. 22-Oct. 21.

* * *

He is denied the privileges of the track and cannot enter horses he owns or trains unless they are sold or transferred to "persons acceptable to the stewards."

The stewards said Kean was suspended under the rule that a trainer "shall be the absolute insurer of and responsible for the condition of horses entered regardless of the acts of third parties."

Wallaroo was disqualified under the ruling and the purse monies redistributed to 1. Basket Carrier, 2. Punters Joy, 3. Miss Cye C, 4. Bevy's Boy and 5. Whaang Leather.

Objection Sign Has New Tune Going at Track

By HAL MALONE

The old racetrack refrain "Don't throw away your mutuel tickets, the photo sign is on the board" is getting competition at Sandown Park this week.

The new song is "Hold onto your tickets, the objection sign is on the board."

For the third consecutive day the stewards were faced with more crises than the United Nations sometimes has in a week.

And for the third time a winner was disqualified by permission of the stewards.

War Top joined the unusual if not elite "sinners' club". He was found guilty of lugging (leaning) in on Betty's Pride in the seventh race.

DROPPED TO THIRD

She had finished third behind War Top and Sunday Session. In the realignment Sunday Session was moved to the top, Betty's Pride to second and War Top relegated to third.

The amendments found little savor with a segment of the punters who exercised their rights and lungs in the usual fashion. Spell fashion "BOO-O-O-O!"

The "inquiry" sign was given a workout as early as the second race. Rogelio Trejos on Jayleen contended that he had been crowded by the winner Banquet Knight at the head of the stretch.

Banquet Knight won handily at $44.10. Jayleen was second.

FOURTH OF WEEK

The movie critics couldn't fault Griff Ray's steering on Banquet Knight. The inquiry was thrown to the winds along with win tickets on Jayleen.

The disqualification of War Top was the fourth this week. On Monday Alcaloe and Milord of Kent had their numbers taken down. On Wednesday Jokellina was moved from third to fourth.

The total (four disqualifications) is a new track record for Sandown and doubtless for some punters who wagered on the fallible foursome.

Despite heavy morning rain the track was surprisingly bouncy. Witness Sunday Session's 6½ furlongs trip of 1:19.2. Nobody has trespassed the distance faster since the meet started.

MUTUEL MURMURS . . . The number "two" was prominent throughout the day . . . Jockeys Jack Phillips (Murrayville and Woody Nite) and Jim Broomfield (Commander Joe and Pidges Pride) dominated the cavalrymen . . . Trainer Don Jaggard saddled two winners (Commander Joe and Pidges Pride) and three horses posted their second wins of the meet — Western Chief, Woody Nite, and Sunday Session . . . For the first time in eight days the mutuel play was off . . . It dropped from $103,037 to $98,626 . . . Gladys Ann, the queen of the handicap division last year, arrived at Sandown.

Lions Get Sparks

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders Friday traded defensive halfback and flanker Len Sparks to B.C. Lions for the rights to a future Canadian player and an undisclosed amount of cash.

Newcomers Spark San Diego Victory

CHILLIWACK — Phil Maloney is 40 and has seen his best hockey-playing days. Nonetheless, Vancouver Canucks' coaach Jim Gregory wouldn't mind having "three or four more like him."

Maloney scored once and performed with the zest of a rookie Friday. But it didn't help Canucks. They lost their second straight Western Hockey League exhibition, 6-3, to San Diego Gulls.

Seattle Totems edged Canucks 3-2 on Wednesday.

Canucks, who visit Victoria Tuesday for their first preseason meeting with Phoenix Roadrunners, also got goals from Norm Schmitz and Gord Vejprava Friday.

Willie O'Ree and Jack Faulkner, two newcomers to the San Diego lineup this season, each scored twice to pace Gulls. Len Ronson and Butch Morris scored Gulls' other goals.

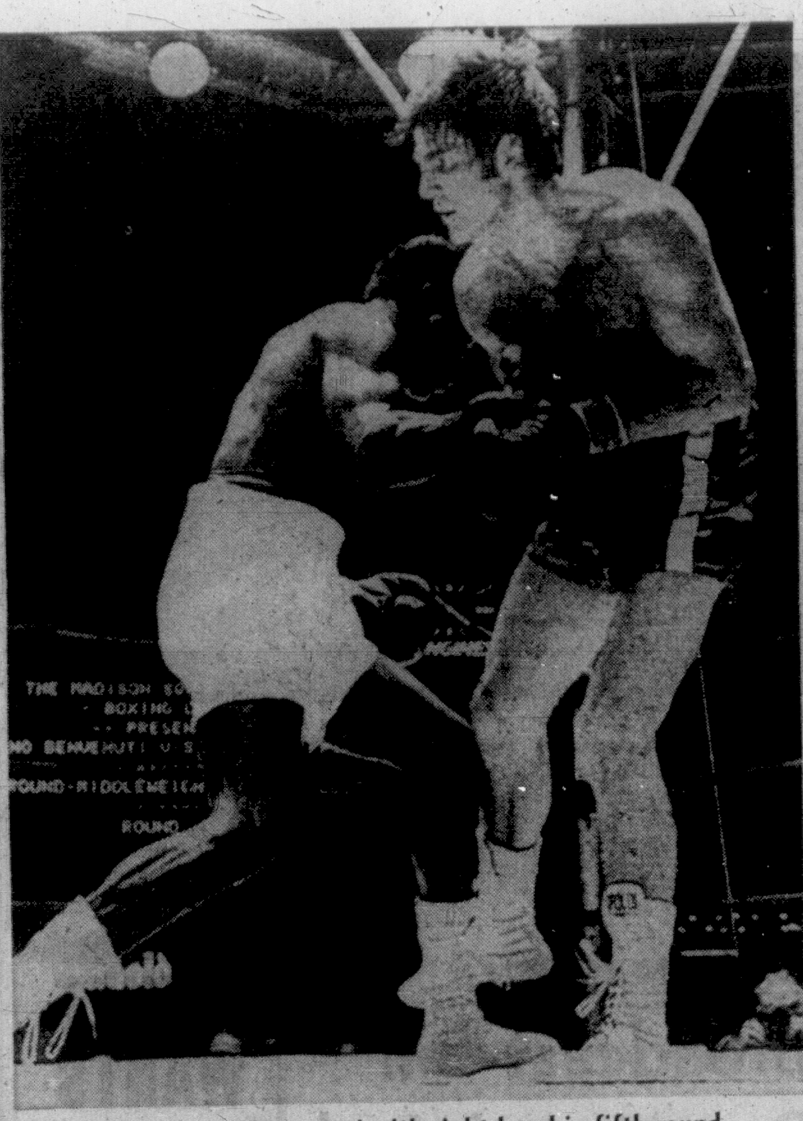
School Lures 109

It could be a big season for basketball if prevailing enthusiasm is an indication of things to come.

A whopping total of 109 coaches had registered for the Victoria Basketball Commission's two-day coaching clinic which opened at the University of Victoria this morning.

All enrollees are from the Greater Victoria area.

The two-day clinic winds up Sunday.



Griffiths hurts Benvenuti with right hand in fifth round.

Emile Goes to Party —Nino Visits Hospital

By MURRAY ROSE

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith had the world middleweight title again today, Italy's Nino Benvenuti had bruised ribs, and Madison Square Garden might have a third fight between the two for its new 20,000-seat arena in February or March.

Griffith bloodied the handsome Italian's face and pounded his body in regaining the 160-pound division crown on a decisive, one knockdown, 15-round victory at misty, damp Shea Stadium Friday night.

Then the recrowned champion went to a victory party at a hotel near the ball park while the aching Italian went to Polyclinic Hospital to see whether he had suffered broken ribs in the defeat.

First reports from the hospital, where Nino was kept overnight for observation, was that he had suffered "contusions of the upper left abdomen."

His handlers said Nino's ribs were hurt in the third round of the rough fight and that he was in pain thereafter.

They were pleased when Harry Markson, the Garden's director of boxing, suggested the third and rubber bout for the magnificent new building.

"It's okay with me," said the jubilant Griffith. "I'll fight him any time. Ten times in a row if they want it. I knew I could beat him if I fought my fight. I did."

Benvenuti took the title from Griffith decisively last April 17. He boxed beautifully, floored Griffith in the second round and then rallied after being floored in the fourth round.

ANOTHER NIGHT

But the situation was reversed in the somber surroundings of Shea Stadium. Griffith took charge from the start, worked the rangy, taller and heavier champion over with stinging left jabs to the face and thumping blows to the stomach, ribs and kidneys.

In the 14th, the 154-pound New Yorker dropped the 159¾-pound defender with a fast left-right combination to the head.

Nino jumped up quickly and signalled to referee Tommy Walsh that he wasn't hurt and that it wasn't a knockdown. Walsh said it was a knockdown and gave him the mandatory eight-count.

SURPRISING CALL

It was surprising then that Walsh called it a draw 7-7-1 in rounds and 7-7 in points. The knockdown should have been the difference in points on his card.

The two judges, Joe Eppy and Johnny Dran, each scored it 9-5-1 for Griffith, a tally closer to what most ringside writers had. The Associated Press card had it 10-4-1 for Griffith.

Benvenuti, a 6-to-5 favorite, earned a purse of close to $100,000 on his 40 per cent of all receipts. Griffith will get about $50,000 on his 20 per cent.

Rain forced postponement of the bout on Thursday night and threatening weather Friday held the crowd to about 20,000 and the receipts to an estimated $200,000, according to Markson.

MARR MOVING

Take a Gander . . . Goosie Co-Leader

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The Professional Golfers' Association tour may have become just too serious for J. C. Goosie and his booming laugh, but his absence apparently hasn't hurt the Largo, Fla., pro's game.

Goosie, a non-touring pro since 1960 and playing in only his second tournament of the year, is deadlocked for the 36-hole lead in the Atlanta Golf Classic with former PGA champion Dave Marr at 141, three strokes under par.

They have a two-stroke lead over Randy Glover, who held a share of the four-way tie for the opening day lead, and left hander Bob Charles of New Zealand.

Three other opening round co-leaders—Texans Miller Barber and Don January and Negro star Charlie Sifford—ran into putting troubles Friday and dropped back into the field.

The 38-year-old Goosie, whose joking with galleries once trademarked him as the "Wild Goose," carved out a five-under-par 67 over the frosty, wind-swept Atlanta Country Club course Friday, the best round of the $110,000 inaugural tournament.

Marr, winless since his 1965 PGA victory, rolled in five birdies Friday and finished with a two-under-par 70 to go with his opening round 71.

Marr, whose best finish this year was a tie for ninth in the U.S. Open, has won less than $20,000 in 1967. But he said his game is improving steadily.

"I'm just not too good in the morning," he said. "I'm a night owl."

January soared from a 69 Thursday to a 75 Friday, as did Sifford, and dropped back to even par at 144. The leathery Texan made a late charge but four-putted the next to last hole from 20 feet.

EIGHT RELEASED . . . . . . BY JUNIOR CLUB

New Pair in Cat Camp

Take away eight . . . add two . . .

Victoria Cougars' coach Doug Anderson went through the arithmetic manoeuvre today and came up with the total of 22. That's how many players are still vying for berths with the B.C. Junior Hockey League team.

Eight out-of-town players were released and two newcomers were added as Cougars continued their preparations for the league's opener Oct. 13

Released were Dave Fedun of Duncan, a brother of Seattle Totems' defenceman Don Fedun; Paul Trustham of Comox; Mike Andruff and Lon Miles of Alberni; Ron Lamont of Clinton, and Bill Robertson, Bill Westover and Joe Piper, all of Nanaimo.

Despite their release, Anderson feels "at least three" may wind up playing with the team later. Fedun, Miles and Andruff still are of juvenile or midget age, and Anderson was quite impressed with their play.

Anderson also said two new forwards arrived in Cougars' den at Memorial Arena. They are Greg Wedderburn, a 160-pound forward who played for Calgary Buffaloes last year, and left winger King Cam of Vernon.

Cam, six-foot and 200 pounds, "looks like a very rugged performer," said Anderson. He also tried out with Calgary last season but had to be released because Buffaloes were already over their import quota.

Two goalies, eight defencemen and 12 forwards continue to work out and Anderson expects to start signing players next week.

Victoria's first home game is Oct. 21.

Deal In Weather For Showdown . . .

It's Between But Three After Chisox Knocked Out

By Associated Press

Eddie Stanky's tenacious Chicago White Sox dropped out of the American League pennant struggle Friday night, succumbing meekly to Washington Senators 1-0 on Phil Ortega's four-hitter.

Now it's up to Minnesota . . . or Boston . . . or Detroit to pick up the pieces. But all three were holding a cold hand and watching the weather today.

The Tigers, who have dropped two of their last three starts, were frozen out of a scheduled twi-night doubleheader against California Friday night and now must beat the Angels four times in two days to assure themselves of a first-place tie.

If Detroit wins all four, the Twins, one game in front despite two setbacks in their last three games, need to sweep their two-game set at Boston today and Sunday to nail a share of the top spot.

And the Red Sox, shocked twice by Cleveland Indians earlier in the week, need nothing less than two victories over the Twins plus at least one Detroit loss to grab a piece of the pennant pie.

New York Yankees beat Kansas City Athletics twice, 4-3 and 1-0, in Friday's only other AL action. St. Louis Cardinals trimmed Atlanta Braves 3-1 in 11 innings, Philadelphia Phillies blasted San Francisco Giants 9-1, Pittsburgh Pirates topped Houston Astros 4-1, Chicago Cubs beat Cincinnati Reds 4-1 and New York Mets whipped Los Angeles Dodgers 5-1 in National League games.

Erase the Three-Way Prospect . . .

The White Sox' demise—they needed a three-game sweep over the Senators to stay alive — erased the possibility of a three-way playoff. A Tigers—Twins or Tigers—Red Sox deadlock, should it develop, would force a best-of-three playoff beginning Monday . . . weather permitting.

The World Series is set to start Wednesday, if no playoff is necessary, or two days after the completion of the playoff.

"I don't want any flowers when I'm in the mortuary," Stanky said after his White Sox handed the Senators an unearned run in the first inning and then went out with their bats at half mast.

"All year long the elephants feared the mice. Well, they can have it all to themselves with a sigh of relief. We're out of it.

"But I wish we would have lost that one on a home run or a clean hit. I hate to lose on an error."

Fred Valentine's single delivered the run that finished the Sox in the first inning after errors by Tom McCraw and Don Buford opened the gate. Ortega's shutout pitching drove in the coffin nails, already set in place by the last-place Athletics, who swept a twi-nighter from the Sox Wednesday.

There Were No Cares, Some Tears

"Don't ask me who I think is going to win it now," said Stanky, tears beginning to run down his cheeks, "I don't care."

Bill Bryan's sixth inning homer gave reliever Fred Talbot and the Yankees their nightcap victory over Kansas City after Mickey Mantle's sacrifice fly in the eighth inning of the opener broke a 3-3 deadlock.

In the National League, 23-year-old Ferguson Jenkins of Chatham, Ont., became the first Canadian in recent years to win 20 games in the major leagues in Chicago's rout of Cincinnati. He was helped by Billy Williams' two solo homers and limited the Reds to just six hits.

The Cards pushed over two runs in the 11th, one on Mike Shannon's single and the second on Curt Flood's double, to squeeze past the Braves.

John Briggs' two-run homer capped a six-run second inning burst that helped southpaw Chris Short subdue the Giants.

Rookie Bob Moose hurled the Pirates past Houston while Bob Robertson, another rookie, homered in the Pittsburgh attack. Third inning singles by Maury Wills, Manny Mota, Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell keyed a decisive three-run flurry.

Bill Graham checked Los Angeles on six hits for his first major league victory and singled a run home for the Mets, who snapped a five-game losing streak.

REG FLEMING
. . . draws misconduct

Rugged Reggie Is Ready For Boisterous Season

By The Canadian Press

Rugged Reggie Fleming of New York was in mid-season form Friday as the Rangers whipped Montreal Canadiens 6-4 in one of three National Hockey League exhibition games.

Fleming, formerly Montreal property, was sentenced to 37 minutes in penalties, including a game misconduct, before 10,616 New York fans. The game was marked by 26 penalties, including eight majors.

In other games, Pittsburgh Penguins downed Minnesota North Stars 7-2 and Eric Nesterenko provided the winning goal as Chicago Black Hawks edged Boston Bruins 3-2.

In New York, Phil Goyette paced the Rangers with two goals. Camille Henry, Rod Gilbert, Jean Ratelle and Arnie Brown shared the others.

Dick Duff, Jacques Lemaire, Ralph Backstrom and Claude Provost were Montreal marksmen.

Another former Canadien, Ab McDonald, shared scoring honors for Pittsburgh. He managed two goals and his production was matched by Andy Bathgate. Art Stratton, Leo Boivin and Val Fonteyne tallied one goal each.

Bonavena's Back Bit of a Bother

BUENOS AIRES (AP)—Oscar Bonavena, Argentina's hope for the world heavyweight boxing crown, has been ordered to rest and be treated for a spine condition, his doctor said.

Bonavena has complained of backaches since he outpointed Germany's Carl Mildenberger on Sept. 16 in their elimination bout for the title last held by Cassius Clay.

DON McKETA . . . expects tough road

Steelers' Coaches Also Owners Now

By DOUG PEDEN

"We don't know how we are going to do it, but we want to save this club.

"It's worth saving."

So said Don McKeta Thursday after announcing that the ownership of Victoria Steelers had changed hands for a second time this year.

Head coach McKeta and assistants Fred Forsberg and Steve Bramwell, all residents of the Seattle area and all former stars with University of Washington Huskies, have purchased the city's Continental Football League franchise.

McKeta said they had acquired the franchise by taking over equipment debts to the Seattle Athletic Supply Co., with no responsibility for other debts incurred prior to Thursday.

"From now on, we'll be operating on strictly a cash basis," said McKeta. "There is no other way."

It was the newest development in the two-year, financially-troubled career of the Steelers, who were formed last year when a group of Victorians obtained a franchise in the semi-pro Pacific Football League.

After a poor start, the club made a creditable showing in its final games but failed to attract enough fans to prevent a considerable financial beating.

Tab Too Rich for 'Sugar-Daddy'

When the Continental League expanded this year to include a western division a franchise was offered to the Steelers. This proved to be a more expensive operation and Bill Bowes of Vancouver eventually stepped in to acquire the club with the understanding he would clear up last season's debts, reported to be about $22,000.

Before the season opened, Bowes obtained financial support from Vancouver businessman Robert Yenor, who apparently found indebtedness greater than he had expected and finally declined to give further support.

Under terms of the new takeover announced Thursday, it is expected former owners will pay off previous debts incurred this year and the new franchise holders must carry the ball the rest of the way.

As an economic measure, the Steelers will do their training at Everett, Wash., since several of the players reside in that area and McKeta believes more job opportunities are available.

However, McKeta stressed his group still considers Victoria to be the home of the Steelers. He plans to complete the schedule of home games at Royal Athletic Park and hopes it will be possible to base the club here next year.

League Won't Switch Game Date

One big concern is next Saturday's home game against Eugene. That is the night Bobby Hull and the Chicago Black Hawks are going to attract about 5,000 hockey fans to Memorial Arena and McKeta feels the Steeler gate would probably suffer.

"That is the only game we would consider moving from Victoria," McKeta said. "I can't say yet. Things have moved so fast we haven't had time to make definite plans. We have to consider season ticket holders."

It had been announced earlier that the game would be switched ahead one night but the league will not permit a change.

SACRAMENTO TRIP

"You must have three of the most stupid coaches in the league," McKeta said wryly after announcing the takeover. "We don't know how we are going to do it, but we want to save this thing.

"I'll tell you we have a tough row to hoe. We don't know if we can make it, but we're not going down without a fight.

"We just hope we can revive it and convince people we're on the level."

McKeta disclosed that his group had raised enough money for the trip to Sacramento for Sunday's game against the Buccaneers and that future plans would be announced early in the week.

ON RIGHT TRACK

He feels that the league has a definite place in the future to provide farm clubs for major professional teams and undoubtedly hopes to get a working agreement next season with a National or American League team.

"I think McKeta is on the right track and we'll give him all the support we can," said Steeler president Pat Frumento. "Unfortunately I was out of town for the past two days and don't yet know all the details, but I'm pleased to know football is still here."

The austerity program launched by the new owners has cost the Steelers five experienced players — linemen Ed Ost, Bernie Hines, Jordan Ellis and Lutz Keller, and flanker Bob Wilson.

FULL COMPLEMENT

However, McKeta listed a full complement of players for Sunday's game, naming Ben Hammond, Don Pahl, Malcom Williams, Keith Roundy, Bob Coutts, Bruce Kramer, Dick Zampese, Hayward Williams, Warren Jackson, Steve Jones and Pat Mills as his offensive starters.

His starting defensive unit will consist of Glen Gardner, Pat O'Connor, Mose Watkins, Wendell Jones, Gerry Williams, Dick Wetterauer, Forsberg, Tom Foster, Jim Whitmore, Tom Thompson and Dave Dillon.

"We haven't got much money, but we think we can make this thing go," said McKeta. "We're sure going to try."

BOURNE JOINS CANUCK TEAM

VANCOUVER — Breakaway forward Tom Bourne of Victoria was one of three players added Friday to Canada's representative rugby side.

Also joining the Canadians, who faced England's touring team at Empire Stadium today, were centres T. K. Kariya and Tom Fraine, both of Vancouver.

The changes were made because of injuries to Al Bianco, Tim Cummings and Gerry Lorenz.

It is the third match of a five-game Canadian tour for England, which defeated Alberta 22-3 at Calgary and blanked the B.C. Reps 27-0 Wednesday at Victoria.

Astros Drop Two Coaches

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Astros have released coaches Nellie Fox and Al Heist, effective with Sunday's close of the National League season.

H. B. Richardson, general manager, also announced Friday coach Jim Owens has been rehired for the 1968 season. Richardson said the status of coaches Jim Busby and Buddy Hancken will be determined later.

Fox, a 14-year major league veteran, has been a Houston coach three years. Heist joined the coaching staff last year.

Rugby Berths Open

All boys 16 years of age and under who are interested in playing fourth division rugby with Oak Bay Wanderers are invited to attend a workout at Carnarvon Park, Sunday at 2 p.m. All are asked to bring rugby gear.

Defending Tyees Off on Right Foot

Defending champion Victoria High Tyees, Claremont and Mount View all marched off on the right foot as the Inter-High School Soccer League turned to chapter 1967-68 Friday.

Tyees, spotting their rivals the first goal, charged from behind to defeat rival Oak Bay 3-1 at Vic High.

Penalty kickers provided the difference in Friday's other matches.

Claremont edged Mount Douglas 2-1 while Mount View slipped by Esquimalt Dockers 1-0.

Oak Bay jolted Tyees early, Dave Morgan scoring in the first half.

The Vics equalized just before the half when an Oak Bay defender inadvertently knocked the ball into his own net. Second-half goals by Glen Robinson and Stu Wallace wrapped up Tyees' first victory.

SPOT SHOTS DO IT

At Claremont, Ross Clague scored on a penalty midway through the second half to give the home team the victory.

Ted Clark scored Claremont's first goal while John Leier counted for the Dougs in a game that featured brilliant play by goalies Ken Lundeen and Jim Marshall.

Dennis Somner's penalty kick against Esquimalt goalie Mike Yager, a game standout, provided Mount View with its win.

All six teams will be in action again Wednesday.

City's Volleyballers Meet Czech Coach

One of the world's top-rated volleyball coaches will visit Victoria next week to pass on some helpful hints in a sport that has been gaining increasing popularity here.

Jan Prasala, head coach of the Czechoslovakian national team and senior physical education lecturer at the University of Prague, will be the main speaker at sessions Monday and Tuesday.

Two clinics will be held Monday at Claremont. The first, between 4 and 5:30 p.m., will be for players while the second, from 7 to 10 p.m., is for coaches.

Prasala also will be guest speaker Tuesday at Oak Bay High School, starting at 8 p.m. Players wishing to play in the Victoria Senior Men's League also will be asked to register for play at that time.

Additional information may be obtained from Andy Bryant at 652-1425.

New Dutton Arena Base for Nationals

WINNIPEG (CP) — Mervyn A. (Red) Dutton, a great man in a bygone era of hockey, Friday officially opened a new $550,000 arena built to assure survival of Canada's young national team.

The Dutton Memorial Arena is named in honor of Red's two sons, Joe and Alex, who were killed during the Second World War. Located on the tree-shaded campus of St. John's - Ravenscourt School in neighboring Fort Garry, it will serve as a permanent practice base for the national team's western section.

The opening ceremony signalled the start of Hockey Night in Winnipeg honoring Red Dutton, a member of the Hockey Hall of Fame.

CO-CHAIRMEN

A reception and dinner, at $25 a plate, gave testimony to the former Calgary resident who spent 10 seasons in the National Hockey League as a player and coach with Montreal Maroons and New York Americans.

Co-chairmen for the dinner were G. Max Bell of Calgary, a millionaire oilman, publisher and horseman; and James A. Richardson of Winnipeg, who heads an investment empire.

Jim Coleman, sports columnist for Southam News Services, was master of ceremonies for the gathering in the Fort Garry hotel.

Other speakers included NHL President Clarence Campbell; Rev. David Bauer, special adviser to Canada's national team; John Wintermeyer, president of the Canadian Hockey Foundation; and Walter (Babe) Pratt, who holds the record for most points collected in one season by an NHL defenceman —57 in 1943-44.

Three Pairings In Cycling Lead

MONTREAL (CP)—The two German teams spurted ahead to share the lead with Switzerland early today as Montreal's semi-annual six-day bicycle race approached the halfway mark.

Gaining a lap over the rest of the 10-team field were the Germany A team of Klaus Bugdahl and Clemens Grossinghaus and the Germany B pair of Rolf Roggendorf and Belgian Robert Deloof.

Rewriting of Regulations Causes Delay of Unification

OTTAWA (CP) — Implementation of armed forces unification has been postponed for at least another month and may not occur until Jan. 1, 1968, informed sources said Friday.

The original target date for proclamation of the one-uniform unification bill was Oct. 1. It then was moved to Nov. 1 and now, officials say, the earliest possible date is Dec. 1.

A more likely proclamation date is Jan 1, they added. For financial reasons, the timing will be set for the first of a month.

The great problem, officials say, is the rewriting of three sets of Queen's Regulations for the navy, army and air force into a single book of regulations governing all servicemen.

Many meetings were required for individual sections of regulations and the results had to be approved by the defence staff and then the minister.

Informants said the problem of unifying the padres—militarily, not ecumenically—has been solved by the naval chaplains giving way. The solution has not yet been approved by Defence Minister Leo Cadieux.

Naval chaplains wear no badges of rank. Army and RCAF chaplains do. The navy always felt it made it easier for padres to deal with the men if they did not wear officers' badges.

The solution: all chaplains will wear officer rank badges. Highest rank for chaplains will be, as now, brigadier-general.

New Board Member

Eric W. Lewis was appointed a member of the Central Saanich Zoning Board of Appeal Friday by the B.C. cabinet.

He replaces Alan M. Hutchinson who has moved out of the district.

ELECTED a director of the Canadian Education Association at Regina Friday was G. N. Perry, B.C. deputy minister of education.

Earth-Like Rocks Cover Moon Surface

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chemical analysis of lunar surface measurements taken by the Surveyor V spacecraft indicate that a large part of the moon surface may consist of earth-like basaltic rock, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration said Friday.

Leading scientists on the Surveyor project reported preliminary results from the spacecraft's two weeks of data-gathering on the lunar surface during the moon's daylight period.

Their reports showed the lunar surface measured contains, in atomic composition, 58 per cent of oxygen, as do rocks on the earth, and 18.5 per cent of silicon, which also is the second most common element on the earth surface.

A magnet aboard the spacecraft also was found to have attracted iron particles in the loose material thrown up by the spacecraft's feet.

Dr. Donald Gault, of the Ames Research Centre, Moffet Field, Calif., said the Surveyor chemical analysis represented "one of the greatest scientific achievements of the civilization of man."

HIPPIES ASK COURTS TO END NEWSPAPER BAN

VANCOUVER (CP) — Editors of the Georgia Straight, Vancouver's Hippie newspaper, applied for a B.C. Supreme Court injunction Friday that would force the city to reinstate the publication's business licence.

City licence inspector Milton Harrell Thursday revoked a licence permitting street sales of the paper after consultations with Mayor Campbell.

The mayor and other city officials ordered the move after learning the sometimes-weekly paper was being sold to school children on school property.

Role of Computer In Hospital Seen On Sunday Special

H.I.S. is a massive computer "hospital information system" at Monmouth County Medical Centre, Long Branch, N.J. How it cares for patients and serves as a doctor's electronic assistant will be shown in a two-part study, "The Computer Revolution," on "The 21st Century", Sunday afternoon at 4 on Channel 7.

CBS news correspondent Walter Cronkite is the reporter.

Scene: A 35-year-old woman enters Monmouth County Medical Centre, a prototype of computerized hospitals of tomorrow.

Action: Her case is covered from admission until release two weeks later.

The patient's personal data and case history are fed into a computer, which assigns her a bed. The computer orders laboratory tests and informs the kitchen of special dietary requirements. In the pharmacy, medication is ordered. The computer determines that the patient is not allergic to the drug and performs a relative-dosage check.

Every detail of patient care is under the watchful electronic memory of H.I.S. The data of this patient and others are stored in the computer's memory and provide immediate information for the care and feeding of every patient. Finally, the computer bills the patient.

H.I.S., as a doctor's aide, frees physicians and nurses from workaday tasks and provides them with one of the most precious commodities of all — time to concentrate on treating patients.

Face to Face

How Square Is Dad?, a half-hour look at the "generation gap" is slated for KING-TV's social issue series Face To Face on Sunday afternoon, at 4:30 on Channel 5.

The program's focus is the gap between the attitudes of Americans over 30 and those of the increasing proportion under 30 sometimes known as "the electronic generation."

Three young men representing considerably different backgrounds within the Puget Sound area will touch on topics ranging from the difference in values in the United States and abroad, to relationships, needed and desired, with parents, particularly fathers.

INDIAN ORPHAN Raji (Sajid Khan) finds he's worth his weight in jewels when he agrees to swap clothing with a look-alike young maharaja in episode of "Maya" on Channel 5 tonight at 7:30.

Smothers Brothers

Singers Jane Powell, Noel Harrison and The Cake join Tom and Dick Smothers with Pat Paulsen in a spirited hour of fun and music on "The Smothers Brothers Comedy Hour" Sunday at 9 on Channels 7, 8, 12.

Tom and Dick, with bass and guitar, open with their inimitable treatment of an old favorite, "Molly Malone." Noel Harrison sings "Sunshine Superman" and "Suzanne."

In his monologue spot, Pat Paulsen makes his entry into the presidential race as Tarzan.

Accompanied by four male dancers from the Louis DaPron ensemble, Jane Powell lends her lilting soprano voice to "After Today" and in subsequent duets with Dick and Tom, respectively, sings the standards "Will You Remember?" and "Indian Love Call."

The Cake, three attractive girl vocalists, perform "You Can Have Him." In a comedy sketch, "True Love," Dick sings the title song while Tom appears as an anxious centaur suitor, with Jane Powell as his sweetheart and Pat Paulsen as her recalcitrant father.

The Smothers Brothers join Noel Harrison and four girl dancers in a sketch about a tomato vendetta and the entire cast participates in the grand finale, "What's More American Than I Am?"

Disney Drama

The "Fighting Prince of Donegal," a swashbuckling three-part drama about a fiery young Irish prince who battles against heavy odds to gain his country's independence from England, will be presented on Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color starting Sunday at 6 on Channel 2.

British actor Peter McEnery stars as Irish Prince Hugh O'Donnell, and pretty Susan Hampshire as his sweetheart, Kathleen. Others in the cast include Gordon Jackson as the evil Captain Leeds; Tom Adams as Hugh's friend Henry O'Neill; Andrew Keir as Kathleen's father and clan leader; and Peggy Marshall as Hugh's mother, Ineen.

To lend authenticity to the production, art director Maurice Carter took on the task of recreating the city of Dublin, Ireland, as it was in the 16th century. When the last nail had finally been driven and the last brick laid, he had completed several streets fronted by 150 houses, and a castle complete with drawbridge, moat, secret passages, dungeon and courtyard.

In addition to costumes and decorations, of 400 years ago The Fighting Prince of Donegal will feature four genuine Irish Wolfhounds, courageous dogs which almost became extinct in the 18th century but which now, thanks to a few breeders are making a strong comeback in Europe.

'I Believe'

"Lutheran Open House" at Bethlehem Lutheran Church in Ridgewood, N.J., a suburban community 10 miles northwest of New York City, will be presented on the annual "I Believe" program on Channel 5, Sunday morning at 10:30.

The program will be a salute to the 450th anniversary of the Reformation and to the thousands of churches around the U.S. observing that event in October. To dramatize the continuing Reformation and renewal of life within the church, more than 17,000 Lutheran congregations are holding "Lutheran Open House" on one Sunday in October, opening their doors to their communities and inviting people of other creeds to enter and become better acquainted with their Lutheran neighbors and with what they believe and practice.

Joining in an ecumenical discussion in the church parlor with the Rev. Ewald Mueller, the church's pastor, are Ridgewood clergymen representing different faiths: Msgr. James F. Kelley, former president of Seton Hall University and now pastor of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church; The Rev. William Powell of the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Church; The Rev. Alfred J. Miller, reitred rector of Christ Episcopal Church; Rabbi Zachary Heller of Temple Israel, and Dr. Melvin Campbell, pastor of the West Side Presbyterian Church.

MODERN MATA HARI role is played by Joyce Jameson as she is assigned to entice information from John Banner about espionage activities among prisoners at Stalag 13 on "Hogan's Heroes" Saturday night at 9 on Channel 12.

Name Change Turned Trick For Actor

Some changes are for the better.

"I was never so amazed as when I changed my name," said Henry Darrow.

He was born Henry Thomas Delgado.

Darrow is presently starring as the carefree, mysterious Manolito Montoya in "The High Chaparral," on the NBC television network Sundays.

"I kept being typecast as a Latin," said Darrow. "I'd been advised to change my name for years but I refused to believe that it would make a difference."

Darrow's manager finally insisted.

"He lost two parts for me in one day simply by giving my name and describing me," said Darrow. "He said we had to do something. We sat down and decided to create a whole new image. That's how I became Henry Darrow."

Darrow was given instant and dramatic proof of the effectiveness of the name change.

BREAKTHROUGH

"The day after I changed my name I was interviewed by a casting director who had interviewed me before under my former name," said Darrow. "He did not connect the two. He gave me the part of a German. Then he mentioned that there was also a Spaniard in the drama. He wanted to know if I had ever played a Latin."

The name change proved an acting breakthrough for Darrow, who got a chance now to play everything from Western heavies to Hungarians.

Oddly enough, Darrow didn't start out to be an actor.

He was born in New York City. When he was 13 years old he and his parents moved back to their native Puerto Rico.

"I had my own television show in Puerto Rico," said Darrow. "Everyone always said I would be an actor. However my 'bag' was political science which I studied at the University of Puerto Rico. I was going to be an interpreter."

A friend told him of a contest that offered a dramatic scholarship.

"I gave it a go," said Darrow. "I won and I was given a choice of the Yale Neighborhood Playhouse or the Pasadena Playhuse. I asked how far Hollywood was from Pasadena. They said 10 miles. I chose the Pasadena Playhouse."

He graduated with a BA in Theatre Arts. From 1956-65 he played in 12 feature films and 75 television shows including such series as "Gunsmoke," "The Iron Horse," "Wild, Wild West," "Bonanza," "Daniel Boone," and "T.H.E. Cat".

Darrow doesn't seem to mind being typecast again, because he finds the role of Manolito Montoya intriguing.

World Series to Open

Baseball Classic Starts at Park Of AL Champions

Opening of the world series next week will hold the interest of baseball fans. National League champion St. Louis Cardinals are scheduled to open the classic at the park of the American League winners.

ROLE of hot-rod champion who meets dancer Ann-Margret in Nevada is played by Elvis Presley in film "Viva Las Vegas", to be seen Friday night at 9 on Channels 7 and 12.

With the pennant fever still holding the American League the Cardinals cinched the pennant early, hoisting their 11th league flag on Sept. 18.

The St. Louis mound staff is led by fireballing righthander Bob Gibson. The Cards also have power at the plate in Orlando Cepeda, Roger Maris, Lou Brock and Curt Flood.

If the series opens Wednesday it will be carried by Channels 2, 5, 6 starting at 9:30 or 10:30 depending on the American League winner.

Should a playoff be necessary to determine the AL winner NBC and CBC will carry all games.

Burr in Vietnam

"I go to Vietnam simply because Americans are there and because I think they appreciate seeing someone from home."

This is the sentiment of Raymond Burr, veteran television actor and central figure of the NBC new color special, "Raymond Burr Visists Vietnam," to be presented Friday at 10 on Channel 5.

"Anyone who has ever been overseas knows how it feels to see a familiar face. I keep going back, not as a performer but as a fellow American who is interested in our servicemen and civilians and what they are doing.

"I have always found the morale in Vietnam excellent. The men are anxious to get the job done and get home."

One of the first performers to go to Vietnam, Burr has visited servicemen there, and in Greenland and Korea as well, over the past 16 years. Until now, his trips have had virtually no publicity. He goes as an individual and gets his impressions of the Vietnamese war at first hand.

"I used to contact the families of some of the servicemen I met, but found it very depressing to learn sometimes that a boy I had seen was later killed," Burr said.

Music Special

Maureen Forrester, the international Canadian contralto who has rated so many raves that critics are running out of adjectives, headlines the second Centennial Performance in the three-concert series on Wednesday night at 9:30 on Channels 2, 6.

Described recently by Kenneth Winters of The Toronto Telegram as "the profoundly beguiling singer," Miss Forrester interprets arias by Mozart and Verdi on the hour music special, in color, which also features two rising young artists—ballerina Martine van Hamel, and pianist Richard Gresko. These two are among the winners of Centennial Year scholarships in the performing arts, a project of the International Nickel Company of Canada.

In staged and costumed excerpts from two operas, Miss Forrester sings Non piu di fiori, from Mozart's La Clemenza di Tito (the last opera by this great composer), and the dramatic incantation of Ulrica, the sorceress (Re dell'abisso affretati), from Verdi's The Masked Ball.

Cohan Portrayed

A nostalgic view of America's vaudeville stage during the First World War will be presented when host Bobby Darin portrays George M. Cohan in "Give My Regards to Broadway," the full-hour color special on NBC television network's "Kraft Music Hall" Wednesday night at 9 on Channel 5.

Guests on the colorcast will be Liza Minnelli, Dennis Day, Kay Stevens, pantomime comedian George Carle and ragtime pianist Max Morath.

Darin opens the show "backstage" at the New Amsterdam Theatre recalling the 1917 musical scene and then as Cohan, joins the singers and dancers onstage in a production of "Yankee Doodle Dandy." Miss Minnelli sings and dances to "I Don't Care" and, in duet with Darin, sings "Oh, You're a Wonderful Girl." George Carle performs his pantomime comedy and then Dennis Day takes the stage to sing "Mary, Mary" and joins Darin for a duet of "Harrigan." Max Morath follows playing his jazz specialties.

Miss Stevens is spotlighted singing "You're a Grand Old Flag" and "Over There." In one of vaudeville's best-remembered acts, Darin, Miss Minnelli, Day and Miss Stevens, appear as the Four Cohans to sing a medley of tunes. Darin closes the show singing "Always Leave 'Em Laughing."

Wyeth Dynasty

Countless U.S. children first came across Wyeth paintings in illustrated copies of "Treasure Island" or "Robin Hood." The Wyeth name belongs to an ambitious U.S. art dynasty founded by book illustrator Newell Converse Wyeth and continued today by Andrew Wyeth, "centrepiece" of the dynasty.

Andrew Wyeth is the subject of "The Wyeth Phenomenon" on "Who, What, When, Where, Why, With Harry Reasoner" Tuesday night at 10 on Channel 7.

Wyeth is a shy man who attracts controversy. His paintings are called both refreshingly realistic and too realistic, beautiful and unemotional. He, himself, merely says that he wants "to show Americans what America is like."

"Yet he is most frequently critized," notes Harry Morgan, producer of "The Wyeth Phenomenon," "for painting his own little world that is allegedly withdrawn from 20th-Century America.

"Wyeth's subjects are the people and places he knows best in Chadds Ford, Pa., and Cushing, Maine. Critics may view his art as portraying remnants of a simpler life outside the American mainstream, but the public is responding to Wyeth's 'little world' in record-breaking numbers."

Alaska Flood

The human side of Alaska's recent flood disaster—how its citizens are preparing to meet the approaching winter freeze—is probed in "Fairbanks Revisited," on the weekly documentary series "Spectrum," Thursday night at 10:30.

In the wake of the devastating Fairbanks flood, townspeople faced an imminent deadline—the onslaught of freezing temperatures that could force the halt of re-building efforts.

The flood, which ripped through the city in mid-August, subsided just six weeks before the yearly winter freeze was expected.

Newsman Don Dickson, and cameraman, Mahlon Brosseau, travel to the disaster city to survey methods used in dealing with the perennial "freeze," and progress the city has made. They visit with those most affected by the flood—average Fairbanks citizens—in addition to talking with city officials leading the re-building.

TV TIDBITS

WHEN DAN BLOCKER had to sport a fancy vest for an NBC-TV "Bonanza" episode, a crew member quipped: "Gee, Dan, when they got out the material for that vest, there was so much of it I thought they were going to reupholster the divan."

LEIF ERICKSON, star of NBC-TV's "The High Chaparral," had Norwegian parents but was turned down for a role in the feature film, "The Vikings," because they said he wasn't the type.

SAKID KHAN, of India, who co-stars in NBC-TV's "Maya" series, rooted for anyone up at bat when he attended his first baseball game. "I didn't know you were supposed to have favorite teams," he said. "I though you were just supposed to cheer to help the batter make a good hit."

NBC-TV's "I Spy" series used a "floating stage" while filming in the Greek Islands for the new season. The show obtained the use of a luxurious "Lina A," a 58-passenger yacht with 29 cabins.

SIR LAURENCE IN VANCOUVER NEXT WEEK

One of the world's greatest actors, Sir Laurence Olivier, will appear in both plays to be presented next week at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, when the National Theatre of Great Britain opens its Festival Canada tour, Tuesday night.

Sir Laurence will be seen as Tattle in William Congreve's comedy, Love for Love, and as Etienne Plucheux in the Georges Feydeau farce, A Flea in Her Ear.

Visitors to Britain this year who saw the company present the plays at the Old Vic Theatre, are enthusiastic about the absolute perfection of the productions and the extraordinary skill of the two casts.

Love for Love plays Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with curtain at 8:30 and A Flea in Her Ear will be seen Friday and Saturday at 8:30 with a 2:30 matinee on Saturday.

ONE OF THE finest ethnic groups of singers and dancers in Canada, the Polish Sokol Choir of Winnipeg, is coming to Victoria to participate in the Greater Victoria Centennial Society-sponsored Folk Arts Fiesta at McPherson Playhouse next month. A major centennial attraction, it will feature artists from several parts of Canada as well as local groups and soloists. Dates are Oct. 20 and 21 with a possible matinee on Oct. 21.

Lighting Plan For Theatres

A scheme has been put forward by the B.C. Drama Association, where a complete set of stage lighting equipment would be made available to member groups throughout the province at a nominal rental.

It is proposed that the lighting equipment costing about $6,000 would be purchased by the BCDA, held and maintained by a competent agent in Vancouver and sent out to community halls on a first ordered-first served basis.

Funds for the purchase would be sought through donations from government and industry and from the clubs themselves.

In conjunction with the scheme the BCDA would send to all participating clubs a technical team to give a workshop on the setting up and use of the equipment in the club's local auditorium.

Conductor John Avison Joins Fine Arts Faculty

Outstanding Canadian conductor John Avison has joined the faculty of the School of Fine Arts at University of Victoria, president Malcolm Taylor announced today.

Mr. Avison is giving a new course on the character and use of the instruments of the orchestra as part of the bachelor of music program.

A resident of Vancouver, he is best known as conductor of the CBC Vancouver Chamber Orchestra which he helped to found. He holds degrees from the University of British Columbia in arts and music.

He also studied at Yale with Paul Hindemith and at the Julliard School in New York.

As a conductor, Mr. Avison has had experience with all of Canada's major orchestras and in Britain with the London Philharmonic.

He has been honored for his services to contemporary music by London's Institute for Contemporary Arts.

AVISON
. . . wide experience

Mr. Avison has written the scores for a number of prize-winning Canadian documentary films. He has accompanied many of the world's leading singers in recital and performed as pianist of chamber ensembles.

He also pioneered youth concerts on television in Canada and served as musical director of the National Youth Orchestra.

TV CONCERT PIONEER

On Tuesday, the School of Fine Arts opens its season of free noon-hour concerts with a recital by baritone William Reimer and pianist Bryan Gooch.

Recitals and lectures on musical subjects will be included in the series which will be given Tuesdays in the Education-Arts lecture theatre, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

A Canadian baritone who is following a successful career in Europe, Mr. Reimer is home on a concert tour.

He will offer a program of songs by early Italian composers, Beethoven and Schubert, accompanied by Mr. Gooch of the University's English department.

On Oct. 10, violinist Jack Kessler and pianist Robin Wood will present a program of sonatas by Mozart and Brahms.

Mr. Kessler recently resigned his post as concert master of the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra to head the violin faculty at Victoria School of Music of which Mr. Wood is director.

Future offerings for noon-hour concerts will present soloists and ensembles from Victoria and elsewhere, and a number of distinguished Centennial lecturers brought to Canada for 1967.

Members of the university music faculty will also be heard.

DISTINGUISHED CRITIC

Among visitors will be the renowned British music critic, Arthur Jacobs, who will discuss opera in the 20th century.

Also appearing will be the Consort of the University of Manitoba, Canada's outstanding ensemble for the performance of early music.

This troupe took part in Benjamin Britten's Aldeburgh Festival in Britain last year.

Another notable artist who will appear at the University next month is Tessa Birnie, a leading authority on the keyboard music of Schubert, who will give several lecture-recitals between Oct. 13 and 27.

A highly gifted pianist, Miss Birnie is currently completing recordings of all the pianoforte sonatas of Schubert.

Dates and times for her series will be announced shortly.

New Job for Newsman

Victoria newspaperman Jack Fry Friday was appointed administrative assistant to Mines Minister Donald Brothers.

The appointment, effective Oct. 16, was made by a cabinet order which set the salary range at $7,488 to $9,120 annually.

TIPS FOR HOME GARDENERS

When to Pick and Store

By JACK BEASTALL

This is an attempt at answering a few of the many questions regarding the harvesting and storing of fruits and vegetables.

Home storage is not what it was when houses were built with deep basements and good frostproof attics. Today it is difficult in the modern home to find suitable quarters where the temperature and humidity is anywhere near the requirements of garden produce in storage.

Jack

On the other hand, we have expected time and labor for six months producing some good crops and it is only natural we should want to enjoy them over the longest period possible.

All we can do under the circumstances is determine the optimum conditions for good storage and approximate them as closely as our dwelling will permit.

Starting with tree fruits, each variety of apple and pear has a definite picking date and every home fruit grower should have this information on hand for the varieties being grown.

Identification of varieties can be obtained by taking, or sending, two or three representative specimens to the B.C. Dept. of Agriculture (BCDA) office in the Douglas Block, Government Street (Victoria). Attach a number to each set of specimens and the same number to the tree from which they were gathered.

QUESTIONS REPEATED

Unfortunately, there is no charge for this service. If the gardener had to pay five dollars he would jealously guard the information he receives, but since it is free we find many gardeners returning year after year asking the same questions.

Anyone not seriously interested in knowing the variety, the picking time, and the storage life of his fruits, and not prepared to label the trees and record the information for future use, should not consume the time of an already overtaxed staff.

The majority of apples prefer a storage temperature around 32 to 33 degrees Fahrenheit, excepting Cox's Orange, King, and Newton, these doing best at 36 degrees. Relative humidity should be 90 per cent. Pears have the same requirements, but are first ripened at 60 to 70 degrees, and stored at 32 after reaching the "yellow" stage.

Stone fruits and berries are not storage crops although a low temperature will hold them for a few days until processing is possible.

Beets, carrots, cabbage and turnips keep best at near 34 degrees with a relative humidity of 95 per cent. Parsnips may be left in the garden, the flavor improving after a few sharp frosts. Root crops can often be stored in sand and kept in a cool part of the basement.

HARD TO HOLD

Cauliflower and celery are both difficult to hold in storage, and cabbage will only keep for a week or so.

Potatoes need a little more heat to prevent sweetening, doing nicely at 38 to 40 degrees with 90 per cent humidity. The tubers must be well dried before being sacked or boxed.

Onions need to be kept dry and preferably stored in net bags for good air circulation. A temperature near 50 degress with low moisture in the air (around 60 per cent) should be satisfactory.

The storage temperature for tomatoes depends on the degree of ripeness. To develop full flavor the fruit must show orange coloring when picked, it can then be ripened at 55 degrees, after which it is held at 40 degrees. A relative humidity of 90 per cent is necessary at all times.

Many gardeners are asking how to determine when a squash is ready for picking. There are two kinds of squash, summer squash and the storage varieties. The summer squash are used when young the same as vegetable marrows and never put into storage.

Storage squash must be well matured on the vine before picking, and being able to judge the state of maturity is largely a matter of experience. The skin takes on a different appearance and has a different feel, and when the fruit is tapped with the knuckle a hollow sound is heard.

Squash must always be cut from the vine with a length of stem attached, the same as marrows, but pumpkins are pulled from the vine.

Pumpkins will not store as long as squash, but both should be kept in a warm, dry place at 55 to 60 degrees with a relative humidity around 60 per cent.

Relative humidity is important to the length of time fruits and vegetables can be kept in storage. It is the amount of moisture in the air at any given time compared with the amount of moisture the same air would hold if completely saturated, and is expressed as a percentage of total saturation.

The home gardener's greatest difficulty is to maintain a relative humidity that is anywhere near the 90 to 95 per cent figure that is necessary, especially in a family dwelling.

Enterprising gardeners have circumvented this difficulty in many ways, but in each case the method used has been suited to prevailing conditions and is not adaptable to all conditions.

But the gardener who can solve the problem in his home domicile is well on the way to enjoying the results of his summer labors at least until Christmas, and maybe later.

WEEK'S WORK

By JACK BEASTALL

Set out pansies, wallflowers and other spring blooming biennials wanted in beds, borders or planters without delay.

Lift all frost tender plants from the open, putting them into a cool greenhouse or a coldframe according to their kind.

Rock gardens, terraces and sloping banks are better planted now than in spring. Following are useful for small areas; aubrieta, arabis, androsace, Aster alpinus, rockery campanulas, dianthus, gentians, alpine phloxes, saxifrages and sumpervivums.

Continue routine work of weeding, planting and transplanting.

Leave main crop potatoes as long as possible to size up as foliage withers.

Cut down and mulch asparagus bed with compost. Discard any plants bearing red berries, for they are females and will never produce thick edible stems.

If tender vegetable crops are still outdoors, be prepared to bring them in if frost suddenly threatens, or provide covers. Use sacking, cardboard, newspapers or matting, never plastic materials.

LIBERALS 'RARING TO GO'

Will Bennett Try Byelection Stall?

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislative Reporter

Premier Bennett has two strong reasons for wishing to avoid a byelection before the next session to fill the Vancouver South vacancy caused by last week's death of Social Credit MLA Tom Bate.

And the New Democratic Party caucus decided in Penticton last weekend it wouldn't break tradition by using the Constitution Act to force his hand.

Mika

The NDP likely will put up their party president, Norman Levi, again to run for the seat. He and a colleague were about 3,000 votes short of the 11,740 Mr. Bate took to win the riding along with Trade and Industry Minister Ralph Loffmark who topped the poll Sept. 12 with 12,259.

There is very little "form" for betting on the outcome in the dual-member riding, one of the new ones that came into existence last fall.

But the Socreds maintain that the Liberals showed they just aren't in the picture because their two candidates fell by the 5,000-vote-level wayside last year.

Mr. Bennett, who left for Europe the day after Mr. Bate died, hasn't discussed strategy with his colleagues yet (not that he ever does anyway) but there are two obvious reasons why he would want to avoid a campaign before the session expected to open Jan. 25.

First, his control of the House isn't at stake so why take even a small risk of defeat in a still-new riding just before the sessions when opposition MLAs would have the floor for weeks of rubbing it in publicly.

With all the shocks of the Manning book fiasco and the Olson defection on the federal level, Mr. Bennett is desperately anxious to keep up a brave front within his own bailiwick and he wouldn't want to chance any cracks opening in this regime just now.

●

Secondly, although it's not widely known yet, there is some prospect of a vacancy in the opposition benches early next year.

So, Mr. Bennett will want to wait to see if that transpires because two byelections at the same time not only is a neater arrangement, but slightly less hazardous for the government since it could win a new seat as well lose an old one.

And the traditional anti-government bias of any byelection—when even supporters may take a slap at the ruling powers without overthrowing the government—would be slightly decreased by increasing the stakes and therefore the pressure on Socred voters to turn out as usual.

●

Besides these reasons, Mr. Bennett has a habit to strengthen a sit-tight stand (I know that sounds self-contradictory but he's adept at sitting and standing at the same time on political questions).

The last time an MLA died in office, Socred George McLeod, it also happened shortly before a session and Mr. Bennett went into the House saying he would represent the North Okanagan constituents as well as his own.

In fact, he witheld a byelection call so long that it never was issued because the general election intervened.

So now we come to the interesting part.

Surprise, surprise—the third-place Liberals are spoiling for a byelection in Vancouver South so much that they are going to use the Constitution Act to force the premier's hand.

"The premier is going to have to call an election before the session because we're going to notify the speaker of the vacancy in the next few days," one of them told me.

This notification will compel Speaker Murray to order deputy provincial secretary L. J. Wallace to issue an election writ. Mr. Wallace in turn must do so within six months of the order. And the returning officer must set Election Day not later than 60 days after receiving the writ.

(Theoretically, this would enable the premier to stall the day to June but it would be almost suicidal policy to callously refuse full representation to the riding before the session when demanded that way and then afterward ask them to elect a government candidate.)

And why do the Liberals want the byelection so badly? They think they've found a candidate so strong he's bound to win.

●

My informant wouldn't name him but said he's "got the calibre of the kind of man who could obviously help form a government when we take over from Bennett."

Of all parties, the Liberals have most to gain by winning Vancouver South and not only because it would be a tremednous boost to jump from last to first place in the voting.

Right now they're smarting from Socred and NDP jeers that the Liberals only represent the "waterfront aristocracy" because it's true that all six ridings they hold are prime residential areas with marine drives.

Vancouver South would give them an inland penetration and scotch the unfair label of being a "class" party.

●

They would have the political organizations of Northern Affairs Minister Art Laing and popular Liberal Ron Bassford to help but their hopes of winning apparently rest on the mystery candidate.

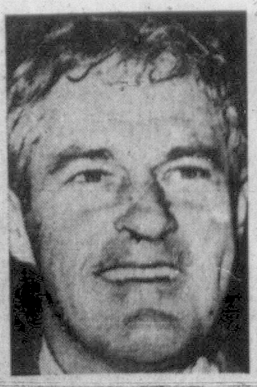
He won't be either lawyer James Grant or Dr. R. G. Hepworth who ran and lost in the riding last fall because "we have enough lawyers and professionals now in the caucus," said my informant.

Well, it so happens that Ed Lawson is being ballyhooed as the keynote speaker this Sunday at the Young Liberal convention in Vancouver.

Mr. Lawson is 37 and has become a prominent, vigorous and controversial labor leader as president for the past 11 years of the 10,000 Teamsters in this province.

His nomination certainly would make the Socreds gulp because they've been ardently wooing him themselves.

I wonder.



CONVICTION of Dr. Timothy Leary, 45, controversial advocate of LSD and marijuana, was upheld by the 5th Circuit Court of Appeals Friday in New Orleans. Leary was sentenced to 30 years in prison and fined $30,000 in Laredo, Texas, last year on two marijuana charges.

New School Open For Handicapped

Opportunity for education is every child's right regardless of handicap, chairman John Bartanus of the Sooke district school board said Friday night.

He was speaking at the official opening of the Dogwood School for retarded children, an event attended by Education Minister Leslie Peterson.

The $38,000 school is a joint project of the Sooke and rural Saanich school boards and Mr. Peterson congratulated both trustee groups on working effectively together.

With the current surge in junior and senior levels of education, people are inclined to lose sight of minority groups like retarded children, said the education minister.

PRODUCTIVITY

Too often the criteria in judging an educational project is the productivity potential for the expenditure involved, he said.

"But every human being is an individual, and perhaps these youngsters deserve more attention than the average."

There are now more than 500 teachers instructing 6,800 retarded children throughout the province, he said.

But it is the dedicated teacher who makes the system work, who enables handicapped youngsters to be helped to their place in society, he added.

ENROLMENT

The new school, located on Jacklin Road at Brock in Langford, has 16 pupils aged six to 18 who come from as far away as Sidney.

Principal is Mrs. Tomena Ross and the other teacher is Mrs. Ann Smith.

The function of the school is to cater to the happiness and individual needs of its pupils, said Mrs. Ross, and to fit them for the fullest possible role in society.

The school has two classrooms, an activities room and a covered play area.

$450 Fine Imposed For 'Outrageous' Driving of Car

A sailor's last day in the navy was marked with a $450 fine imposed in central court Friday when he pleaded guilty to impaired driving.

Robert T. Fenn, 18, was charged following an accident in Oak Bay Thursday evening.

Police said the accused was driving on the wrong side of Crescent Road when he hit a parked car, continued on his way at speeds up to 60 miles an hour and finally hit a concrete abuttment on King George Terrace after failing to negotiate a curve.

"You could well have been charged with criminal negligence," said Magistrate William Ostler, imposing the fine and ordering a year's licence suspension. "You might have killed someone. This is outrageous driving."

Students Rap Uvic Cafeteria Food, Service

Student dissatisfaction over the quality of food served at the University of Victoria's cafeteria has caused an official investigation.

The campus cafeteria, which serves the 400 persons living in residence as well as off-campus students, is operated by the Canadian Institute for the Blind and partially subsidized by the university.

Students have complained about poor quality food, no choice because of unvaried menus and poor service. The forthcoming investigation resulted from a committee meeting earlier this week of student and administration officials, residence representatives and a Vancouver CNIB official.

SEVERAL PROBLEMS

Alma Mater Society president Dave McLean, who attended the meeting, said officials will look into the problems of providing faster service, more and better food, and more variety in menus.

Mr. McLean said a petition has been circulated in the new men's residences and a good majority of the students have signed it in protest against cafeteria conditions.

"If something constructive doesn't come out of the check then we (students' council) are prepared to work with the students on the food problem."

"We're fed up with the CNIB stand," Mr. McLean said.

"If they intend to change for the better, that's fine. But if they don't then we'll recommend the university administration take ove campus food services," he added.

BANK CLERK CHARGED WITH $1 MILLION THEFT

NEW YORK (AP) — A clerk in a Canadian bank on Wall Street was charged Friday with the theft of $1,000,000 in negotiable bonds from the institution where he worked. None has been recovered.

Ronald Geruntino, 22, of Brooklyn, was accused of grand larcency from the Toronto-Dominion Bank of Canada.

The bonds vanished Sept. 8 and shortly afterwards Geruntino disappeared. Learning that he had formerly lived in Utica, N.Y., a special New York City police unit traced him there and, with the aid of local police, arrested him Wednesday.

Strike Costs Expo $900,000 a Week

MONTREAL (CP)—A mediator reported Friday he was receiving full co-operation from both union and management in his attempts to settle a transit strike that is costing Expo 67 $900,000 a week and causing countless aching feet.

Mr. Justice Francois Chevalier said Friday night he will continue to meet with both sides in the dispute all day today and Sunday if necessary.

The strike began Sept. 21 when 6,000 bus and subway workers walked off their jobs to back up demands for higher wages and better working conditions.

Philippe de Gaspe Beaubien, Expo's director of operations, reported Friday that the world's fair could lose as much as $7,000,000 if the strike lasts until the end of the fair, Oct. 29.

He told a press conference the strike has resulted in a weekly loss in revenue to the fair corporation of about $900,000, not including the loss by concessionaires on the site.

The strike halted regular bus and subway services to the fair although on site transportation was functioning normally.

Strike Violence Ends

PITTSBURGH (AP) —Relative peace returned today to the highways in this area for the first time in two weeks as striking steel haulers got ready to vote on ground rules for ending their violent, eight-state walkout.

The only incident reported in the first six hours after a tentative agreement was reached Friday night was aimless rock-throwing from a bridge on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

That was a sharp contrast to the nights of gunfire, ambushes, beatings and vandalism that marked the strike since it spread from Gary, Ind., to the big steel centres of Ohio and Pennsylvania.

Truckers also struck in Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, West Virginia and New York.

Patience, my friends . . . I will soon be done inflicting Our Trip upon you. Meanwhile, here are a few more notes brought back from Canada's largest and liveliest city.

The sky-busting downtown hotel that soars in tier upon tier of arched windows is the new Champlian. Montreal watched it rise, then gave it the seal of approval by nicknaming it 'The Cheese-Grater'.

A few blocks away, dwarfed by neighboring giants, stands the Church of Mary Queen of the World. Statues of saints are ranged in a row along its roof; to the light-minded, those well-loved figures are 'The Baseball Team.'

Older citizens might frown on such impertinences, but the diminutive given to the spanking new though temporarily strike-idled Montreal Transportation Commission subway is universal.

It's 'The Metro', and whatever else Montrealers may disagree on, they are convinced that they possess North America's finest rapid transit system.

★

The subterranean stations are enormous, bright-lighted, and uncomfortably hot — a fault that engineers are working to correct. All are architect-designed, and each differs from its neighbor.

Stairs, and escalators convey brisk-walking crowds to ticket turnstiles and long platform. There the passengers wait in groups spotted where front and rear doors will open. A train has just pulled out; but missing a Metro train is no tragedy.

Before you can settle to wait, another multi-carred silver projectile hurtles into view.

The doors slide open. For a moment there is a confused tangle of pushers-out and divers-in. Then the doors close — in two stages so no luckless loser in the scramble will be trapped—and we're away.

The trains roll on fat rubber tires, but the impression we got on our first ride was that we were being fired through the tunnel. A sustained 'whoosh' . . . lights flick past in a blur of speed . . . and there's McGill station with a department store sitting above it.

Here's a furtive scribble that reads, 'Dig 'em out with a fork'.

The reference is to escargots, or snails, and the visiting diner-out who escapes sampling them has missed either an ordeal or a treat. We liked these chubby morsels in their subtle sauce.

I could linger on the fine food of Montreal, a city where lunching and dining are given the attention they merit. But here's a stray note on Expo housekeeping to be passed on.

The cleanup crew numbers 700, which is none too many for the mammoth job.

Arrive at the fair at its morning opening, and those spacious acres of blacktop from which the pavilions rise are clean as a fresh-scrubbed floor. Moreover, from their overnight hosing through a day of roving, munching, smoking crowds, they remain all but spotless.

The maintenance people boast that a cigarette pack tossed aside will be fielded within two and a half minutes. Let litter of any sort mar the scene, and a groundsman with dustpan and brush materializes. Perhaps even more to the point, trash cans fitted with plastic liners are never more than a few paces away.

★

One more note to end this account.

It is plain, on the home swing, that the season has turned. Ontario's wilderness lakes are still blue and the sun shines bright, but yellow leaves glow among the green of the birches.

The prairie wind, when we get off the train for a breath of outdoor air at Saskatoon, has acquired an edge.

At Edmonton, trainmen hook on the dome car, and long before the mountains can possibly come in sight, we're up there. At dinner, the train is well into the foothills, but still no mountains.

I look up, and the dark, serrated line has emerged like magic from broken cloud to stride across the skyline. The couple out from Scotland peer gravely. The far-Westers smile.

"Hey," says the boy from Vancouver at the opposite table, "we're almost home!"

EXPERT IMPRESSED

Monster Seen By Prospectors

Provincial officials Friday said two Victoria prospectors have given them "the best account we've heard yet" on Sasquatch sighting.

The prospectors are brothers who do not wish to be identified but "their story held together" said provincial anthropologist Don Abbott.

One of the brothers met Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan Thursday to repeat the story but Mr. Kiernan made no immediate comment.

IMPRESSED EXPERT

"They're trained observers and they impressed us as people who knew what they were talking about," Mr. Abbott said.

The two brothers said they saw footprints in snow in the Pitt Meadow area south of Garibaldi Park two winters ago.

"The footprints were similar to the ones I photographed this month in California," Mr. Abbott said.

"Then they described actually seeing the creature—a giant hairy man-like creature—at a distance of about two city blocks but in clear view.

"The creature was looking at them in the same way they were looking at him—rather curious. Then it went away."

Mr. Abbott said the propsectors accurately described the geography of the area and were able to indicate it on an aerial photograph.

"This is something other people who have reported such sightings haven't always been able to do. They took some colored slides of the footprints too but these weren't of sufficiently good quality to allow a proper examination."

Mr. Abbott said the next move is up to Mr. Kiernan.

"I don't know if this will be followed up or even how it could be followed up," he said.

"I don't know if it would be worthwhile going into that country for a search—the creature might be somewhere else entirely by now."

AURORA CLOSING

Aurora Lanes, one of Victoria's two tenpin bowling establishements, is going out of business.

Co-owner Roy Begg said this morning he has "no choice." He added that the Brunswick-Balke Company, which leases equipment to Aurora, "is taking out its supplies on Tuesday."

Mr. Begg, who owns the 16-lane establishment along with Charles Cowie, said "there is a possibility" Aurora may come to an agreement with another bowling supplier but that "we won't know for at least a week."

Arrangements have been made to move Aurora-based league's to Gibson's Bowladrome.

Shipyards Will Handle Conversions

Major conversions on three navy ships will be handled by shipyards in B.C.

While no contracts have yet been awarded, HMCS Columbia is already at Esquimalt and tenders have been called.

All three vessels are destroyer-escorts of the Restigouche class and the second ship, HMCS Chaudiere, will leave Halifax Monday to arrive here in November after stops at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and other ports.

The third ship has not yet been named.

Each of the three contracts will involve about a year's work and will include installation of variable depth sonar to improve the ships' submarine detection capacities.

CMHC BORROWERS RUSH TO GET LOWER INTEREST

By AB KENT

Victoria staff of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has been doing a land office business in housing loan applications before the interest rate jumps to 8¼ per cent Monday.

A local CMHC loan processor said staff is deluged with applications from prospective builders and renovators wanting to get in on the last of the 7¼ per cent mortgages guaranteed by the federal government.

He said an effort is being made to deal with all applications on hand before the rate jumps one per cent, effective Oct. 1.

The new rate will be reviewed early next year.

It may then be raised again, or lowered, according to the money market indicated by Canada bonds.

AVOID BURDEN

But people who take out a mortgage at the new rate could be burdened with that rate for a time ranging up to the life of the mortgage, which is usually 20 or 25 years.

Provisions for retiring the principal early are contained in law, however. Under the National Housing Act a borrower may pay off within three years, taking out a new loan to complete the financing if rates have declined in his favor.

'Better Ask for A Raise'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Want to buy an $18,000 house with National Housing Act money?

Better ask the boss for a raise of about $500 a year ($10 a week) before you try.

That's one way of looking at the increase in NHA mortgage rates to 8¼ per cent from 7¼ per cent effective Monday.

The example is based on an $18,000 house (including cost of land) and assuming taxes of $25 a month net.

Under this, a person would be allowed $16,150 for the mortgage with the difference—$1,850—being the down payment, said a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation official.

Repayment—principal, interest and taxes—would be $1,810 a year or a fraction over $150 a month.

To carry this over a 25-year period, a person needs an income of $6,700 a year.

(The average weekly income of Victorians is $95, or a fraction under $5,000 a year).

The reason for the $6,700 a year income for the $18,000 house is that an NHA regulation requires mortgage and taxes must not exceed 27 per cent of income.

Under the former 7¼ per cent interest rate, for the same example, a person would need about $6,250 a year income to get going.

'Think Big' —Bonner

Builders were urged Friday to stop thinking in terms of 50-house subdivisions and start erecting multiple-family dwellings with 50 suites and sell them to individuals.

"If a solution to the housing crisis is to be produced, industry must show the way," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"The construction industry has the capacities, talent and the people who want and need to do this work all at hand."

Mr. Bonner said he is "aghast" at the federal government's increase in the NHA mortgage rate to 8¼ per cent from 7¼ per cent.

WANTS REVERSAL

If the decision wasn't reversed, preferably in a matter of days, nothing but "compounded gloom" can be predicted for housing, he said.

The attorney-general said multiple-family dwellings with suites are particularly adaptable to non-profit organizations such as credit unions.

Meanwhile, a member of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce told a meeting Friday night it is impossible for a young man to buy a home under present costs and interest rates.

"It's just about time the federal government took a realistic look at housing," said George Robbins.

BUG—YOU BUG ME! With all those legs, why don't you beetle off? But first year arts students like Marion Doan must overcome scruples and she's trying. The idea is you let a bug loose in a maze and watch his progress. He usually repeats the same course. Marion's expressions suggests she'll chuck it if she has to repeat her course in bug psychology. Anyone Here Seen Ma'ah? He's Gone Missing Again

HUMPHRY DAVY

Has anyone seen Ma'ah?

Ma'ah is the California grey whale who has been nosing in and out of harbors, coves and bays around Victoria for the past month.

His whereabouts is sought by Dr. Clifford Carl, museum curator, and other biologists.

The reason scientific attention is focused on Ma'ah is that he is a "rare bird." His kind was nearly exterminated at the turn of the century by whalers who hunted them for their oil.

And what makes his presence here particularly interesting is that it's the first time the species has been seen in inland waters.

Since Ma'ah arrived off Smugglers Cove early in September, marine biologists have been recording his movements and his habits — even the sounds he makes.

FRIENDLY

He's a friendly chap and has allowed boatmen to come within a few feet of him.

One of his favorite rendezvous was a small bay at the foot of McAnally Road.

Mrs. Stanley C. Mitchell, whose home faces the bay, and who was the first person to spot the mammal, now looks upon the whale as one of her pets.

But of late he hasn't been around. And this is what concerns Mrs. Mitchell, Dr. Carl and other scientists who take a personal interest in Ma-ah.

"We would like to know where Ma'ah is," said Dr. Carl. "If he is seen please report his whereabouts."

Ma'ah by the way is no ordinary whale. His kind is protected by law by Canada and the United States.

PLANTING bulbs Friday was Labor Minister Leslie Peterson in Confederation Garden near the Legislative Buildings to mark the opening of Tulip Planting Month. Similar ceremonies were held in Ottawa and in other provinces. Netherlands Flower Bulb Institute provided the bulbs, aptly named Canadian Centennial.

Reeve Curtis Runs For Another Term

Saanich municipal elections warmed up today with Reeve Hugh Curtis and Couns. William Campbell and William Noel announcing they will seek re-election.

In a poll of council members whose terms expire in December, Coun. Edith Gunning said she "very likely" will be a candidate. Coun. Digby Kier was undecided, depending on whether or not he leaves Victoria for another job.

Reeve Curtis was elected in a by-election in October, 1964, and gained re-election by acclamation two years ago. Before that he won two elections as a councillor.

"Thanks largely to progressive councils since I was elected reeve, we've been able to do a great deal of catching up," he said.

AVOIDS POLITICS

"I'd very much like to be able to lead council for the next two years to further the work we've been doing."

He also said earlier speculation about his political future has been "of concern to me. I haven't been busily engaged in looking for political work elsewhere but others thought I was. I see my service, if acceptable to the electorate, for the next two years to the municipality."

The reeve is also chairman of the Capital Regional District, the Saanich finance committee and Saanich police commission.

Coun. Campbell, chairman of the lands and planning committee, has served on council three years. He was first elected in October, 1964.

He wanted to serve another two years to finish work that council has begun, particularly the $1.25 million recreation program and implementation of the Greater Victoria sewerage survey.

Coun. Noel, elected two years ago, also said he wants to "see through" the work already started.

Only non-council candidate who has come forward so far is A. W. (Bud) Mesher.

City School Official Honored in Alberta

A local school official is in Red Deer, Alta., today to receive a tribute for his contribution to education in that province.

E. G. Callbeck, named coordinator of special educational services for the Greater Victoria school district this month, is being honored by the Alberta Teachers' Association Council on school administration.

He will receive a distinguished service award for his work as director of the elementary program commission of the Calgary school board.

B.C. Ferries Shutdown Threatens

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Arrangements have been made "for a complete shutdown" of B.C. Ferries if it becomes necessary, a union spokesman said today.

The comment came two days after ferries manager Monty Aldous discounted reports of strike aboard the 20-ship fleet.

Tom Gooderham, regional director of organization for the Canadian Labour Congress, said "no progress" was made in discussions this week between the ferry authority and the unlicensed employees on "recognition and checkoff of union dues."

He is acting as official spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Employees' Union, a branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association. The union represents more than 500 deck, catering and shore staff.

The provincial government recently reintroduced checkoff of union dues for the association at $2 a month. But the ferry union wants $3 and $4 a month, depending on individual earnings, claiming higher costs of operation.

"The B.C. Ferry Authority is unable to accede to the union's request for recognition for dues checkoff arrangements as requested by the unlicensed personnel because of government policy," said Mr. Gooderham.

"Therefore the ferry employees' union executive council wired Provincial Secretary Wesley Balck requesting an immediate meeting for discussion on the dues deduction problem and recognition for the union which is a branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

"The ferry employees' union executive council is exploring every possible avenue to prevent a work stoppage and have taken this step in the hope the government will give recognition to the union, dues checkoff and thus avoid a work stoppage which would very definitely inconvenience the travelling public."

AUTHORITY REPLY

Mr. Black was not available for reply to the telegram.

Earlier this week, Mr. Aldous said union recognition is not the issue because for more than a year management has recognized the group "dealing with them in all matters concerning the unlicensed employees with full knowledge and consent of the government."

He quoted Premier Bennett as stating previously that if the B.C. Government Employees' Association wanted to have different groups within its organization with differing dues structures, "this was their own business and had nothing to do with government.

"From a viewpoint of government policy, however, these additional assessments for dues were internal union matters and the union must accept responsibility for their collection.

"The basic privilege of ($2) checkoff of uniform dues is available to all government employees."

Mr. Gooderham replied that a section of the Civil Service Act makes it clear the government recognizes the association or a branch of it, therefore it should recognize the checkoff.

More Members Sought by Y

Faced with a $35,000 debt, the YM-YWCA today is holding its centennial open house in the hopes of receiving greater public support.

More members are sought and more funds wanted for the Y's health and recreational programs.

The event was opened by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, who stressed the important role the institution is playing in society today.

Mr. Pearkes presented medals to members who completed the 100-mile run in the Y's centennial physical fitness program.

David G. Titterton, chief accountant, said membership stands at about 4,000. About half are children. Another 1,000 members are sought.

He said the Y would seek to reduce its debt this year by obtaining larger city grants in lieu of tax relief. The institution's tax bill was $33,000, but it received $13,000 in grants.

Ask The Times

Q. When was the Tijuana Brass formed and how many albums has the group issued? P.H.

A. The group was formed about 1961 and since then has issued eight albums.

Q. How much did Centennial Square cost to build? F.H.

A. The actual landscaping cost $230,000 but the square itself, including city hall, police station, McPherson Playhouse renovation, building of the restaurant, shopping arcade and car park, plus land acquisition and street work, cost $3,600,000.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or antiques. These should be submitted to a dealer.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

COUNTRY MOUSE GETS BAD NAME

But City Mouse Is the One to Blame

Remember the country mouse who came to visit his city cousin?

Confronted with cats and traps and all the other problems of urban living, he was glad to get back to the farm.

Well, he's in trouble again.

Metro Health Officer Dr. J. L. Whitbread is on his tail.

●

"Due to the extremely warm and dry weather during the summer there has been a noticeable increase in the field mouse and small rodent population.

"With the advent of cooler and moister mornings, there has been a tendency for the small field rodents to invade households and similar types of buildings," says Dr. Whitbread.

He offers to any householder unable to cope with the invasion the full weight of local pest control services.

But mouse-expert, provincial museum director Dr. Clifford Carl, thinks the country mouse may be subject here to an unfair attack.

The country mouse most often seen (there are dozens of types) is the white-footed mouse. The one most often seen doing the town is a European import, a ship-jumper.

He has small (shifty?) eyes and tiny ears, a brown or grey coat with a lighter color underneath.

●

The white-footed mouse has larger eyes and ears. He's darker on top and white underneath.

"He's really quite appealing," says Dr. Carl. "He will come into empty houses or houses on the outskirts. But he's principally a seed eater."

The villainous city mouse has a huge appetite for things in your cupboards. He has a rapacious appetite and he will spoil much of what he doesn't eat. Then there's those icky nests in old mattresses.

Call the health department mice-catchers at 384-0571, or 386-3251 if you live in Saanich or on the peninsula, or 478-1757 at Sooke and Langford if the city mice are out of hand.

But take it easy on the country mouse with the big brown eyes. He has a job to do.

●

He's a food source for small carnivorous animals and birds. Some foresters don't like him because he dines on Douglas fir seeds, but they get him with those slash fires so it's a saw-off.

And as Dr. Carl says, he's appealing.

RICHARDSON-SQUANCE

New Home in Illinois For Newlywed Couple

Following their wedding in Wilkinson Road United Church on Friday afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alan Richardson left on a honeymoon trip to New Lennox, Ill., where they will be making their new home.

The bride, the former Miriam Fay Squance, wore a gown of white shantung styled on empire lines, fashioned with sleeves ending in lily points and a full cathedral train that swept back from the shoulders. A crown headpiece held her veil of silk illusion and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses and stephanotis.

Rev. T. R. Haythorne officiated at the service uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Squance, 445 Brookhaven Road, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Pitsker, of Oakland, Calif., who travelled to Victoria for the service. Mr. Squance gave his daughter in marriage.

Baskets of yellow, mauve and white dahlias decorated the church. Mrs. Vincent Evensen, the bride's sister, was the organist.

Maid of honor, Miss Valerie Squance, the sister of the bride, and bridesmaids, the Misses Sherrie Postle and Jacqueline Van der Gracht, wore matching afternoon dresses of yellow shantung styled on empire lines with lace medallion and net headpieces en tone. They carried bouquets of white and yellow daisies.

Peter B. Pitsker acted as best man for his brother and David R. Squance, the bride's brother, and Allan R. Haythorne ushered the guests.

A reception followed in the home of the bride's parents. A three-tier wedding cake, topped with multi-toned flowers, which was made by the bride's mother, centred the head table. Pat Hoole proposed the toast to the bride.

Travelling from out of town for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. W. Fraker, the groom's sister and family, of Mill Valley, Calif., Mrs. V. Evensen, of Oakland, Calif., Miss Valerie Squance, the bride's sister, of Tacoma, Wash., Mrs. R. S. Halbert of Chase, B.C., and Mrs. S. Johnson, the bride's aunt, of Haney, B.C.

For travelling the new Mrs. Richardson chose a navy blue dress and jacket ensemble which she accented with white patent leather accessories.

PRINCESS IN WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG (CP)—Sweden's attractive Princess Christina was obviously touched Friday when 600 guests at an annual dinner dance sang the Swedish national anthem as she arrived.

Many people of Swedish origin were among the guests and the singing started after the playing of God Save the Queen at the black-tie affair given by the junior committee of the Winnipeg Symphony Orchestra.

The princess joined the singing. The guests started shyly but ended singing lustily, as she walked to the head table on the arm of Lt.-Gov. R. S. Bowles.

The 24-year-old granddaughter of King Gustav Adolf drew admiring glances; slim and sun-tanned, wearing a semi-fitted long dress diagonally striped in green and shocking pink. From a high neckline, wide straps fell to a low-cut back.

Open house for all nursing sisters, resident or visiting, Wednesday, 2:30 to 5 p.m., home of Mrs. G. M. Stewart, 3337 Richmond Road.

Doing The Town

with DOROTHY FRASER

Fall coats with fashion finesse . . .

Saw a topcoat in Wilson's that's an absolute stunner . . . a full length model in white leather with black leather bands down front, sides and across, forming the unique trim . . . but here's the payoff: this coat is completely reversible . . . the other side is soft, gleaming black mouton, trimmed with black leather . . . and we wouldn't know which side to choose . . . It's like owning two separate and distinct coats . . . one casual, the other dressy. Size 12, and tagged at $300 . . . Wilson's have a good selection of new coats for fall and winter . . . many of them colorful imported tweeds blended with finesse and tailored to perfection . . . There's a monotone tweed coat from Sweden . . . the deep purple of wisteria . . . A blue and black mohair tweed from Rodex of London . . . A bold grey, red and camel tweed from France . . . double-breasted and slim at the top, falling into a slight A-line . . . Several shades of rose form the check design in a tailored Munrospun tweed from Scotland . . . There are lovely English Cotsmoor tweeds . . . A beige and white basket weave tweed, double-breasted, and buttoning up to a blond sheered beaver collar . . . Remember, fall's now officially here . . . you're going to need a warm coat practically any moment . . . so go see the fine collection at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Chain or link belts are worn on all sorts of costumes . . . from sweaters to dresses to overcoats.

One touch of mink . . .

All right, maybe you DO dream of dripping in mink . . . but in our opinion, a little mink goes a long way . . . and a little mink HAT does a terrific job in flattery, sophistication and sheer elegance! . . . On our last visit to Miss Frith's we saw a number of mink hats which literally turned our head . . . Any one of them would lift a simple suit to new heights . . . make its wearer look as if she had just stepped out of a page in Vogue! . . . There are pastel minks . . . white minks . . . rich gleaming dark minks . . . in toques, pillboxes, bretons, cloches and brimmed chapeaux . . . shapes to suit every face . . . and oh, so very smart and luxurious-looking! . . . Priced from about $50 to $125 . . . For a mere $30 you can get a pet of a pillbox made of mink tails . . . a most ingenious hat that zips half way up the back . . . so when it's unzipped it turns into a pert bonnet to tie beneath the chin with narrow velvet ribbons . . . Like having two different hats . . . and adorable framing a young face . . . If, however, your millinery taste runs to furs other than mink, you'll find some beauties at Miss Frith's too . . . like the dark brown Persian lamb breton . . . or the deep brown mouton . . . Miss Frith's Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Mid-calf dresses and coats shown by Jacques Esterel were regarded as an experiment . . . or a joke . . . on the part of this publicity-conscious designer.

Distinctive Gordi ensembles at M & E . . .

Time was when you saw mostly sweet young things trooping into the Madam and Eve Shop . . . but now, more often than not, their mothers go along too . . . because they're finding such smart, wearable clothes suited to their own young-at-heart tastes! . . . We saw some very attractive Gordi outfits at M & E this past week . . . a wool gabardine dress with the popular low waist, and wide box pleat in front . . . a beige, size 13, and a brown size 11 . . . For the gal who wears a 7, there's a hot pink wool dress and jacket . . . the latter quite short, with stand-up collar, and gilt clasp fastening . . . skirt gathered at the waist . . . Another smart jacket dress is navy with raspberry red stripes on the yoke . . . military collar, double-breasted jacket . . . size 7 . . . and a similar ensemble, size 9, in a soft moss green with melon colored stripes on the yoke . . . We think these outfits are particularly good-looking . . . and while they're styled alike, the difference in colors makes each one quite distinctive . . . Another eye-catcher is the high-style purple wool dress and coat ensemble . . . with wide blue stripes on the dress . . . blue collar, cuffs and bands on the full-length coat . . . this one size 9 . . . Madam & Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

In Paris, Torrente showed a white brown-belted trenchcoat over a brown jersey dress . . . worn with brown stockings and shoes.

Speak the International language . . .

Music . . . art . . . science . . . these, we're told, are all international languages . . . But there's another one too . . . THE DANCE . . . and believe us, it speaks volumes . . . to people in all parts of the world . . . A good dancer is welcome in every port of call . . . whether it be in far-off climes . . . or just here at home among your own social circle . . . Dancing is the best way to communicate . . . with your neighbors, your friends, with strangers all over the world . . . If you don't already "speak" this international language . . . one, incidentally, which is so very easy and fun to learn . . . we suggest you start taking lessons now . . . with the world leader of dance communication . . . The Arthur Murray Studio . . . A course of dancing instruction at Arthur Murray's will do wonders for your self-confidence . . . your popularity . . . your enjoyment of life's leisure hours . . . And while you're learning to become a proficient dancer, you'll have more fun than you ever believed possible . . . meet new friends . . . widen your interests . . . Our local Arthur Murray Studio is a pleasant, happy, friendly place . . . and their teachers are absolutely tops! . . . H of G stylists off to Europe . . .

In the realm of hair stylists and beauty salons in this country . . . Victoria's House of Glamour enjoys an enviable reputation . . . in fact it's a name to be conjured with . . . and believe us, it doesn't maintain this reputation by standing still and resting on its laurels . . . H of G people really work at being tops in their profession! . . . Next weekend Danny Hajnal and Charles are jetting off to England where they will attend the European hair styling championships at Brighton . . . Danny representing the Canadian National Hairdressers' Association and Charles acting as an observer . . . so that when they come back they'll bring with them the latest European lines in hair styling . . . Danny has been invited, also, to visit several of the well-known salons in London for the purpose of exchanging ideas and information . . . all of which will ultimately be of benefit to us House of Glamour customers . . . And on his way home from Britain, Danny will stop off in Toronto long enough to act as a judge at the National Canadian Championships being held in that city . . . just another indication of the esteem in which he is held in the profession . . . FLASH! . . . just one more week left in H of G's big permanent wave special . . . Make your appointment first thing Monday . . . House of Glamour, 658 View St., 386-6188.

A Pauline Trigere ensemble called Le Snob consists of long trousers with an extremely short coat that flares out in ripples from small shoulders.

A dessert to rave over . . .

If you'd like a really delicious dessert for dinner tonight . . . without having to bother preparing it yourself . . . go . . . or send one of the children . . . to your nearest store and ask for Velvet Fresh Orange Ice Cream . . . Northwestern's feature flavor for October . . . Velvet Fresh Orange has a quite unique flavor . . . Made with fresh orange juice concentrate, it has all the tanginess of freshly squeezed oranges . . . none of that synthetic taste you find in most other orange ice creams . . . Indeed, this use of fresh fruits and pure flavors is one of the things that makes Velvet ice cream so outstanding . . . and is, in our opinion, the essence of a quality product . . . It's one of the many things that make the difference . . . and is, we're satisfied, the reason Velvet continues to grow in competition with other ice creams that cost less . . . Actually, we don't know of any ice cream on the market that costs MORE to produce than Velvet . . . so you're definitely getting more for your money when you buy it! . . . We do hope you're having Northwestern Creamery deliver fresh milk to your door daily . . . and saving money with their 3-qt. plastic jug . . . Get your eggs from Northwestern too . . . they're new-laid, unconditionally guaranteed and competitively priced . . . Northwestern Creamery Ltd., 1015 Yates St., 383-7147.

We're told by a friend just returned from the East Coast that the "little white dress" is much in evidence everywhere on the Montreal, Toronto and New York social scenes.

Trifles add up to perfection . . .

A perfect wedding is made up of a perfection of details . . . each one important, however trifling it may seem . . . and today we're going to touch on a few of these details which Eaton's Bridal and Gift Registry will take over for you in a superlative manner . . . First off, you'll need invitations . . . enclosure cards with return envelopes bearing your parents' name . . . (far more satisfactory than the old-time RSVP) . . . Then you'll want "thank you" notes engraved with your own name . . . place cards, matchbooks and doilies for the wedding reception . . . all of them personalized in accord with your own tastes . . . Instead of running all over town to arrange for these things . . . visit Mrs. Robertson at Eaton's Gift Registry . . . she has samples of everything imaginable . . . You can choose the type of stationery you want . . . the style of engraving . . . get expert advice in correct wording . . . From there on in, you may sit back and relax . . . everything will be attended to for you, without further ado, or any extra cost . . . At the same time you can choose from a nice selection of wedding and guest books to be treasured from THAT day on! . . . Elegant Simplicity . . . a shaft of marigold wool, designed by P. M. Glaser of Vienna, is modelled by Rosalie Essihos. The neckline jewels are an exquisite highlight of this round-the-clock dress. The generously jeweled collar is en tone in color and snaps on or off with a quick flip of the fingers.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Viennese Knits Here

By NONA DAMASKE

"It's a small world" is a somewhat hackneyed expression but there are times when no other words will do.

A few days ago I met Mrs. Ghiga Foulds, a charming, vivacious woman who was born in Poland and lived there until 1944. Mrs. Foulds is a direct factory representative for P. M. Glaser of Vienna.

Damaske

In May, 1966, Madam Megher, Canada's only woman ambassador, was luncheon hostess in the Vienna Woods for the Canadian Women's Press Club group.

Hearing that I was interested in doing a story on Viennese knits, Margaret Meagher offered to make an appointment with me with the owner of the P. M. Glaser Company. It was a most appreciated suggestion as Mr. and Mrs. Glaser showed me every item of their then current collection and took me on a tour of their 65-year-old plant, founded by Mr. Glaser's father. Mrs. Glaser, a most attractive Czechoslovakian, is the head designer for the firm.

Following a tour of the beautiful city of Vienna, I left Mr. and Mrs. Glaser with the promise that I would watch for the arrival of the P. M. Glaser collection in Victoria.

This week Ghiga Foulds brought the lovely Viennese designs to our city.

From an inexpensive A-line modified tent dress in houndstooth check in shades of mauve, aqua and powder blue to a dazzling cocktail ensemble, highlighted with gold lurex thread, there are dresses, suits and ensembles for every woman.

That intriguingly pale green shade which is the inside of a ripe avacado is found in a coat and dress ensemble with a haute couture look. The coat neckline has a low-sitting collar in the flattering mandarin cut.

Green again, this time in a deeper tone, is used for a late-day ensemble. A full-length coat and dress, stunningly simple in design and sparkling with the glint of gold would make any evening function a happy one.

Shades of pale mauve and parma violet combine in a sleeveless dress with a delightful printed embroidery pattern circling the waist. Corono of Vienna is also represented by Ghiga Foulds. My favorite of this collection is a pristine white silk organza sleeveless cocktail dress completely overlaid with fine pure wool ribbon. Delightful for the more mature woman is a midnight blue late-day two-piece suit with just a twinkle of silver.

Mrs. Foulds' third collection is her "fun one" and is very well known in the United States. Triumph of Europe swimwear bears as a signature trademark a small gold coronet.

The Triumph Bikinis . . . there are 30 styles . . . are just "Wow." Such color and such cut you never did see.

The all-in-one suits . . . another 30 styles . . . are designed for all figures from "the twiggy" to the "pleasingly plump." The larger sizes, in pretty gay colors, have a full inner stretchy corset called "inner life." Many have front zippers, so much easier for the heavier woman to manipulate.

It was exciting to see these Viennese designs and again I say, "It's a small world."

After Honeymoon on Oregon Coast

WILL LIVE AT BAMFIELD

Following their wedding in First United Church newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. David Walter Hegstrom left on a honeymoon trip to Portland and the Oregon coast.

The bride, the former Lorraine Ann Ratzay, wore a gown of peau d'organza styled with a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A small floral headpiece held her three-tier veil which was edged with delicate Spanish lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of talisman roses and stephanotis.

White gladioli and yellow and gold chrysanthemums decorated the church when Rev. M. Fowler heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nickelas S. Ratzay, 1955 Taylor Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hegstrom of Bamfield, B.C. Mr. Ratzay gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Ursula Bunt was organist, accompanying Mrs. G. Wadell, who sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride's attendants chose gowns of crystal charm in a deep turquoise shading to teal blue tones, and their headpieces were toning rosettes holding self-fabric veils. They carried cascades of pale yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Diane Moncur was maid of honor, Mrs. Allen Brooks was bridesmatron and Miss Claudia August, bridesmaid.

Clarence Ratzay, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and Allan Skogman and William McDermid, both of Bamfield, ushered the guests.

At the reception following in Wolf's Rathskeller sprays of yellow rosebuds decorated the head table. John Mintianski proposed the toast to his niece.

As her travelling outfit the new Mrs. Hegstrom chose a Tergal Coloque fall-toned Paisley dress styled on A-lines, which she accented with camel-shaded accessories. A yellow orchid corsage completed her ensemble.

The newlyweds will make their home in Bamfield.

SHOPPING GUIDE

School-Time Crisis Brings Quick Action

By Penny Saver

Junior came home from school this week complaining about the loss of both his pens and gym shorts. Searching about the house I found all the pens to be either in use or else not working. Junior and I were looking for his shorts when a neighbor phoned. A mixup had occurred. Her son had been taking a class with Junior and after the class he had taken the wrong pair of shorts, leaving his at school. Leaving Junior to do his homework I decided to go downtown and see if I could do something to prevent other such emergencies.

A set containing a fountain pen, an ink cartridge, a long lead pencil and a ball-point pen is perfect for the youngster going to school. It comes in a small plastic case that makes keeping track of pens very much easier. The cost is a very reasonable $1.29.

Something every family needs is a good supply of combs. If your family is like the Saver household you probably find that somebody is always losing their comb. I find it is a very good idea to keep a supply on hand. A pack containing a large comb with both fine and coarse teeth, a styling comb and four small combs is most useful to have around. The price of the set is 15 cents.

An item I found to be very useful was a small kit containing fabric tape and a pen for putting name tags on clothes. Junior's shorts I labelled by writing his name on the dull underside of the tape, ironing the tape directly to the material, and then waiting for 15 minutes until the two fabrics were stuck. For his white sweatshirt I followed the same procedure, except that the name was written on the overside of the tape. The cost is 49 cents.

If you would like to know where I found these items give me a call at 382-3131.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. N. Hick, 1603 Bay Street, will celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. Married in Wesleyan Methodist Chapel in Truro, Cornwall, England in 1900, the couple came to Canada in 1912 and have lived in Victoria since that time. They will celebrate the occasion at a quiet family dinner with their two daughters and son-in-law, Mrs. Clareta Hardy, Mrs. R. (May) Reed and Mr. Reed, and their grandsons, Leonard and George Reed, all residents of Victoria.

Hawaiian Night

Many of the members of the Gorge Vale Golf Club and their guests will arrive in Hawaiian costumes this evening when they attend the Hawaiian supper dance, being held in the clubhouse. There will be a cocktail party from 6 to 7:30, followed by a smorgasbord featuring dishes from the Islands. The Davis Trio will provide music for dancing, beginning at 9 p.m. Ladies' captain, Mrs. Margaret Fry, is dance committee chairman.

A Business Built on Customer Confidence and Goodwill!

Mrs. Howard Harper's backyard is the land of honey for many of her friends who know the pleasure of tasting the products from the hives she tends. As if this wasn't enough, they're often treated to some of the jars of preserves, fruits and chutneys which she makes to swell her bulging larder shelves. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Bees in Her 'Jungle' Get the Best of Care

By PAT DUFOUR

While many women of her age are doing their tatting or knitting, Mrs. Howard Harper believes in a more active hobby. Nudging 80, she's one of the most enthusiastic bee keepers on Vancouver Island.

She and her husband live at 1125 Clarke Road in Brentwood and the bee hives "in the jungle" at the back of their property have never lacked for attention since Constance Harper found a swarm in a bush 15 years ago and decided to take up a new hobby.

Like most hobbyists, Mrs. Harper has become an authority on hers and the quality of the honey her bees produce is well known among her friends because she believes "I get much more fun out of giving it away than I would if I sold it."

Handicapped with arthritis to a degree, Mrs. Harper has never let this interfere with her chores although she reports, "There's no truth in the belief that bee stings cure arthritis. Believe me, I know."

She's had many chances to disprove the theory. In spite of the fact that she wears the customary protective clothing, Mrs. Harper has often been stung by her "pets" when doing her chores. "Once I had so many stings on my face, I looked as if I had a bad case of the mumps."

While this sort of treatment would probably disenchant most of us, Mrs. Harper writes off bee stings as if they were as painless as freckles.

Her husband, although happy to have honey as a regular item on the table, leaves bee keeping to the distaff side of the family.

His wife teases him with, "He's scared but won't admit it. He was once stung on the hand and that finished him." The smile with which she delivers the taunt takes the sting out of her joshing.

Given any kind of encouragement, Constance Harper can make the family life of a bee hive come alive in graphic sentences. When she told how the males are thrown out of the hive during fall, leaving only the queen bee and the workers, I found the cause of most of the stings I've endured over the years. It must have been some of those thwarted winged spouses avenging their dismissal!

Mrs. Harper assures me that a queen bee would never be so unladylike as to sting a human although she's not exactly dove-like when it comes to protecting her interests in the hive.

Mrs. Harper tells how a queen bee gets rid of any possible competition before it has a chance to get started. She regularly checks the cells in the hive, destroying those that have would-be female contenders inside.

Sometimes, like a human, she misses and a future queen bee is hatched. This means the end of the old queen in her kingdom. Accompanied by those workers that remain loyal to her, she takes off to create a new dominion, causing a similar swarm to that which started Mrs. Harper on her career as a bee keeper.

Mrs. Harper suggests I join the bee keepers' ranks if I ever happen to come across a queen and her court in exile.

I'd like to, but I haven't the skin for it. I find myself a target area for bee stings with enough frequency now without pushing my luck and creating a danger area in my own backyard. The only way I'd face such an assignment would be to have a plucky octogenarian like Constance Harper in the front line with me.

FOR DEMERS-HILL WEDDING

Carries Mother's Prayer Book

Carolyn Brenda Hill carried her mother's white prayer book, covered in lace and topped with a bouquet of white roses when she became the bride of Andre Robert Demers in Christ Church Cathedral.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Norman R. Hill, the bride wore a portrait gown of sonesta which was complemented by her veil of silk illusion which misted from a circlet of white rosebuds.

Rev. Roy A. Hoult officiated at the double-ring service which united the daughter of Mrs. Eric Beech, 3801 Quadra Street and Mr. Norman Hill, of Fort St. John, and the son of Mme. Raoul Demers of Montreal.

Pink gladioli decorated the church for the ceremony.

Miss Pamela Hill was bridesmaid for her sister, gowned in rose pink linen styled on empire lines with a self-fabric headpiece en tone. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and pink carnations.

The two flower girls, Wendy and Sharon Clermont, wore floor-length gowns of floral linen styled on similar lines, and they carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Michael Kitson acted as best man and Robert Beech was ring-bearer for his sister.

At the reception following in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Hill, the bride's grandparents, pink and red gladioli and white asters decorated the rooms. A three-tier wedding cake, topped with pink rosebuds, centred the head table. James Bartlett proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Montreal the new Mrs. Demers wore a pale blue wool dress which she complemented with white accessories and a white rosebud corsage.

Coming from out-of-town for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. T. Riseley, Mr. and Mrs. L. Paterson and Miss Sally Patterson, all of Ladner.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Tell Sister Her Problem Isn't Yours

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband drives a cab and he works nights off and on. We are happily married with three children of school age. My problem is my sister, Ethel. She calls me up at all hours of the morning when one of her kids is late in getting home. It scares the living daylights out of me to get a call at that hour. I always think something terrible has happened to my husband. Well, Ethel called me this morning at 4 a.m. to tell me that her 16-year-old daughter hadn't come home from a movie date yet. Ethel's husband is a night watchman so he doesn't know about this problem daughter of theirs.

Ethel cried and carried on so terrible that I located my husband and we went looking for this juvenile delinquent in all the places we thought she'd be. We couldn't find her, so we went to Ethel's at 6:30 a.m. to calm her down, and the little darling was there! (Flat tire. O. sure!) What can I do with that hysterical sister of mine? My own kids don't get any rest with her calling all the time.

SHOT NERVES

DEAR SHOT: Tell your sister to call her own husband when she has a problem at odd hours. If she doesn't know that it's unfair to disturb you and your family, tell her! But don't expect her to be more considerate of you just because you complained to me.

DEAR ABBY: I proposed to a girl and she has accepted. My problem is this: Although she will accept an engagement ring, she told me that she doesn't like diamonds. I would like to know if there are any other kinds of stones used for an engagement?

GOING SHOPPING

DEAR GOING: Any other kind of ring you wish to buy her may be appropriately symbolic of your engagement. How about her birthstone? (If she was born in April, forget it.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A LIAR" IN MIDLAND: A liar suffers more than you know. Believing no one, he is ever confused, suspicious, and doubting. It's the sickness of the coward.

Baptists Vote to Defy Law

MADRID (UPI)—Spain's tiny Baptist Church rejected a government law requiring non-Catholics to register with the ministry of justice.

The unprecedented rebellion could cost the Baptists their legal status in Spain and put their worship services "outside the law."

The 16th Spanish Baptist convention said in a communique that it had "unanimously decided to advise its churches and pastors not to register themselves in the official book as long as satisfactory legal conditions are not attained."

The communique described the religious law as "incompatible with the Baptist doctrine," which is based on the principle of separation of church and state.

The Baptist convention's stand was the first in opposition to the new law. It is expected to be followed by other Protestant churches in Spain.

Under the new religious laws all churches other than the Roman Catholic are to establish themselves as "associations" and their followers must register with the ministry of justice by Dec. 31.

The justice ministry would thus be in possession of a list of all non-Catholics.

Failure to do so could lead to loss of legal recognition. Worship services would by definition be "outside the law."

Baptists and any other Protestant churches following the Baptist example would only be able to hold "private meetings" with public and functions and ceremonies banned.

There are about 5,000 Baptists in Spain. The total number of Protestants is about 30,000.

In addition there are about 8,000 Jews and 1,000 Moslems who fall under the jurisdiction of the new law.

'Multitude of Dreams'

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

'Unity in Christ'

This Sunday will be observed as World Wide Communion Sunday in most Victoria churches.

"It is Communion Sunday and millions of Christians will meet around the Lord's table to proclaim their unity in Christ," says Rev. John Watson, minister of First Baptist Church.

"It symbolizes the oneness of the church which is expressed in the fellowship of our common bond of love and brotherhood, one to another, in the worship of Christ."

Mr. Watson will speak Sunday morning on the theme Where God and Man Meet.

★ ★ ★

In First United Church at 9:45 and 11 a.m., Rev. Robert Morris will speak on All Things New.

At 9:45 a.m. the junior choir will sing Jesus Bids Us Shine and A Village Hymn. At 11 a.m. the senior choir will present the anthems Of Saviour of the World and Jesu Bread of Life.

Rev. Marvin Fowler will speak on Guests of God during the communion service at 7 p.m.

★ ★ ★

In Metropolitan United Church at 11 a.m., Rev. Albert King will speak on the subject A Fellowship Without Frontiers. At 7 p.m. Rev. Laura Butler will talk on The Christian's Love-in.

The Sanctuary Choir, directed by Frank Tupman, with Eric Boothroyd at the organ, will sing the anthems Open Thy Gates and Bread of the World.

★ ★ ★

Final meetings of the 4th Annual Missionary Conference will be held at Central Baptist Church Sunday when Rev. Ivan Allbutt, area representative of the Overseas Missionary Fellowship, will be the speaker.

At the 11 a.m. service he will take as his topic The Prime Mover in Missions and at 7 p.m., What Do You See?

The Lord's Supper will be observed following the evening meeting.

★ ★ ★

The Prayer for Israel group will meet in Central Baptist Church Monday at 8 p.m.

★ ★ ★

At Trinity Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. G. D. Smith will draw a parallel between what alcohol does for the inebriate; and what the Holy Spirit does for the Christian.

"It is a common accusation against the early Christians that they were drunk," he says.

The sacrament of Christian baptism will be administered at this service.

★ ★ ★

At the family service in Emmanuel Baptist Church Sunday morning, Rev. Norman Archer will present the fourth Bible study on the gospel of John entitled The New Birth.

In the evening he will continue his series of sermons on Victorious Living.

★ ★ ★

Morning and evening worship in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church will be conducted by Rev. Bruce Molloy.

The sacrament of infant baptism will be administered at the morning service, when Mr. Molloy will speak on For the Love of God.

In the evening his topic will be The First Church Council.

★ ★ ★

Very Rev. Donald Gratiot, dean of Christ Church Cathedral, Rochester, New York, will preach at the 11 a.m. service in Christ Church Cathedral, Victoria.

He has been attending the general convention of the Episcopal Church of America in Seattle.

Dean and Mrs. Brian Whitlow are on vacation in Mexico.

★ ★ ★

Garden City and Wilkinson Road will join other United churches in the city, in the observance of World Wide Communion Sunday.

The anthem at the 10 a.m. service at Garden City will be Unto Thee O Lord and at the 11:15 a.m. service at Wilkinson Road, O Thou That Hearest Prayer.

Garden City has issued an appeal for anyone who would like to teach in the junior department of the Sunday school. The juniors meet at 9 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Capt. Robert Prothero of Vancouver will address a meeting of the Victoria branch, British Israel World Federation (Canada) in the Dominion Hotel Sunday at 3 p.m.

His subject will be Our Leaders Reject God to Serve Satan.

★ ★ ★

In Victoria Truth Centre, 1201 Fort Street, Sunday at 11 a.m., Rev. Emma Smiley, DD, will speak on The World Is Made Flesh.

Her evening subject is God Reveals Himself in Harmony.

A prosperity meeting will be held in the church Thursday at 3 p.m.

★ ★ ★

In order to celebrate Thanksgiving in a family manner, St. Dunstan's Anglican Church, Gordon Head, will hold a harvest supper at 6 p.m. Sunday.

"It will be served by women of the parish and the collection will be in aid of the Primate's Relief Fund to relieve distress in under-nourished countries.

"After supper there will be an old-fashioned hymn-sing at which all the old and well-loved hymns will be sung," says P. W. Elwell, church secretary.

REV. WALKER . . . "Journey into Faith"

Two Churches Join In Discussion Course

Cordova Bay United and the Anglican church of St. David's-by-the-Sea have joined forces to sponsor a discussion course known as Journey Into Faith, which opens Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in St. David's church hall.

The course is being held under the auspices of Victoria Council of Churches and the Anglican Diocesan Board of Religious Education.

"It has been found helpful by many inquirers and seekers after the truth, especially doubters and those who have been critical of the church," says Rev. H. Gordon Walker, vicar of St. David's.

"It has proved of great value to some who have been troubled or perplexed with life's basic questions and the world in general; to some who have wanted to become more mature, and to improve their relations with other people."

'Clergy Need Specialized Knowledge'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Rt. Rev. Godfrey P. Gower, Bishop of the New Westminster diocese says he wants to see the Anglican church develop specialized clergy.

He said in an interview that today's society is made up of many communities such as business, unions and politics which require special knowledge on the part of clergymen.

"The church is studying the problem and seeking ways to serve better in the various communities it finds around it," he said.

"I would hope specialized clergy would be more in evidence in the future."

He was commenting on the call for specialized ministers made by Mark Gibbs of Manchester, England, a prominent Anglican layman.

Bishop Gower said he favored more clergy involvement in secular fields as long as they did not go beyond the traditional minister's role of offering help and guidance.

"I would deprecate clergy telling politicians, businessmen or labor people what to do," he said. "That is not the church's business."

WAR VICTIMS REMEMBERED

A plaque in memory of members of the 67th Battalion Western Scots who died in the First World War will be dedicated in the Memorial Chapel, Veterans' Hospital, Tuesday at 3 p.m.

Surviving members of the battalion and their friends are invited.

Rev. Douglas Kendell will conduct the ceremony.

Gospel Chapels Sponsor Speaker Here Next Week

Dr. Frederick A. Tatford will conduct a series of Bible studies on The Revelation of Jesus Christ in Greater Victoria next week.

The services are sponsored by the gospel chapels of Victoria, Oaklands, Quadra, Westview, Bethesda, Ross Bay, and the University Chapel.

Dr. Tatford will speak in Ross Bay Gospel Chapel Sunday at 11:30 a.m. and in Victoria Chapel at 7:30 p.m. His subject will be The Hope of the World.

He is general secretary of the Bible and Advent Testimony Movement, which was founded in England in 1917. He is editor of the magazine The Bible and Prophetic Witness, and the author of some 30 books.

Last Vocal Latin Taken From Mass

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Roman Catholic hierarchy in the United States has authorized an English translation of the canon or central prayer of the mass, beginning Oct. 22, thus eliminating Latin entirely from the audible part of the service.

The canon is the prayer of praise and thanksgiving that includes the words attributed to Jesus at the Last Supper.

Exclusively Latin masses have almost vanished in the U.S. although they are still permissible in some areas.

Communication With Dead 'Dangerous, Open to Abuse'

REV. ARCHER
. . . doubtful

Communication with the dead is possible — but dangerous.

That was the opinion of Victoria clergy when asked what they thought of a claim by Episcopal (Anglican) Bishop James A. Pike that he had communicated with his dead son at a seance in Toronto early this month.

The bishop's son, James Pike Jr., committed suicide in New York in 1966 at the age of 22.

Bishop Pike of California said he communicated with him during the taping of a TV program moderated by Allen Spraggett, religion editor of the Toronto Star. Arthur Ford, a promiment American medium, put himself in a trance and Bishop Pike believes his son spoke through him.

"This is quite possible," commented Rev. Norman Archer, minister of Emmanual Baptist Church. "But I believe such practices are dangerous and are open to abuse.

"I believe many people have been deluded by spiritualistic phenomena when seeking relief from sorrow and bereavement."

Monsignor Michael O'Connell, rector of St. Andrew's Roman Catholic Cathedral, also admitted the possibility of contact with the dead, but said it could lead to emotional instability.

"On the other hand," he said, "we have always believed it is possible for human beings to have visions — and this could be a kind of psychic phenomena."

Rev. Elsie Tingley, minister of Victoria's Open Door Spiritualist Church, said communication with the dead is almost commonplace — among spiritualists.

"We have proved beyond doubt that the spirits of the departed are all around us. All they need is a medium — a kind of radio set — through which to speak to us.

"There is nothing sinister or frightening about spiritualism but it must be approached with a feeling of deep reverence and faith."

Bishop Denys Rankilor, minister of the Reformed Episcopal Church of Our Lord in Victoria, said communication with the dead is mentioned many times in the Bible.

"I see nothing wrong with it so long as the motive is right," he said. "The problem is to distinguish between good and bad spirits, and the Bible makes it clear there are plenty of both."

Bishop Rankilor said he watched the TV broadcast in which Bishop Pike said he talked with his son.

"The spirit who came through the medium (Arthur Ford) was obviously on intimate terms with Bishop Pike and spoke of things that were known only to the two of them.

"For instance he talked of Corpus Christi College at Cambridge University. Bishop Pike's son went to Corpus Christi before he committed suicide in New York. The medium had never even heard of Corpus Christi and didn't even know what it was."

Commented Rev. John Watson, minister of First Baptist Church:

"When this question of communicating with the dead is presented to me, I ask myself 'to what end or what purpose?' If the purpose is to convince one that, after death, there is no loss of self or personality, I would concur on the basis of the Christian faith.

"One of the most moving passages in the Scriptures speaks of the inspiration of an unseen cloud of witnesses. But the purpose of this seems to be to inspire us to get on with the job of living.

"There is much phenomena which may prove to be little more than the complexity of the human mind.

"There is no question as to there being life after death and I would not deny that in some cases people have communicated with the dead. There seem to be authentic records to this effect.

"But to spend one's mind and time seeking contact with the dead is fraught with danger and could lead to great frustration."

AT MEMORIAL ARENA

Centennial Thanksgiving Service Sunday

A colorful procession of Victoria's various racial groups, with Helen and Henry Hunt representing native Indian tribes, will be held in the Memorial Arena Sunday, Oct. 8, at 7:30 p.m.

The procession will open a mass service of thanksgiving to commemorate the centennial of Canadian Confederation.

All Victoria choirs have been asked to join a mass choir to be conducted by Rodney Webster, with Richard Proudman at the organ.

Their music will include the Centennial Anthem and The Heavens Are Telling from Hadyn's Creation.

L. J. Wallace, chairman of the B.C. Centennial Committee, will read the lesson and the address will be given by Rev. A. G. Faraday, command chaplain maritime Pacific.

All Victoria clergy, civic officials and representatives of the B.C. government, the B.C. Law Society and the University of Victoria have been invited.

The service is sponsored by Greater Victoria Centennial Society with the co-operation of Victoria Council of Churches.

Pope Shocks Progressives By His Fears

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul opened his long-awaited world synod of bishops Friday with a stern warning against the perils of change. He enjoined the bishops to fight "immense" and "insidious" dangers to the Roman Catholic faith.

Delivered to about 200 bishops in St. Peter's Basilica, the speech was markedly conservative in tone.

Initial reaction among clerical progressives was a mixture of doubt and dismay.

To the bishops summoned to help him launch a unique experiment — introducing more democracy in governing the half billion-member Catholic Church — Pope Paul made only passing mention of "aggiornament" — updating of the church.

TALKED OF DANGERS

Instead, he said the dangers facing the church were more numerous and serious. He said they were caused "by the irreligious orientation of the modern mentality and insidious dangers which even from within the church find utterance in the work of teachers and writers."

There was a notable lack in the ceremony of the kind of pomp that would have existed before the reforms recommended by the council.

The Pope scored the views of those in the Church who strive to adapt Catholic dogma to "secular thought and language," and he called on the bishops to resist this.

He told them their main task "is the preservation and strengthening of the Catholic faith, its integrity, its strength, its development, its doctrinal and historical coherence."

It was a theme the Pope has often sounded.

To some it appeared a move on the Pope's part to acknowledge the views of the conservatives, who deeply fear transformation under way in the church, and the changes that may come from the synod.

But many progressives were nonetheless taken aback by the vehemence of the Pope's words.

"It's not an encouraging speech," said one progressive cleric. "The fact that almost three-fourths of the speech concentrated on dangers to the faith instead of updating is not a good sign. It's a sobering speech. But it may make the progressives realize they have to work harder."

Renovation Financed

First stage in the $300,000 renovation of Craigflower Manor will be paid for with $175,000 provided by the provincial government out of reserve funds, it was announced Friday.

Junior Choirs Sing at St. John's

A 60-voice choir of girls and boys will sing Greene's Thou Visitest the Earth in St. John's Anglican's Church at the 9:30 a.m. family service.

The junior choirs will join the adult choir in harvest festival music at the 11 a.m. communion.

At the 7 p.m. Evensong Rev. Leonard Jenner, a new staff member of the church, will preach his first sermon in St. John's.

ARRIVING at the Toronto inquest into the June 21 death of Katherine Globe, 18, are Canon Moore Smith and his wife. The girl, who had lived with them in a downtown Anglican rectory, died there of a brain abscess. Witnesses said the rectory was the centre of a spiritual healing cult.

BID TO SAVE GIRL FROM 'CULT'

Father Foiled by 'Blackmail'

TORONTO (CP) — George Globe, testifying at the inquest into the death of his daughter Katherine, said Friday Canon Moore Smith used blackmail to prevent him from rescuing her from a "cult" at the rector's downtown church.

A stout, baldish man in his 50s, Globe said that every time he tried to take Katherine home, Canon Smith brandished adoption papers the father had signed. Canon Smith told him:

"Don't forget. I'm her guardian. I can expose you."

Miss Globe, 18, died June 21 from a brain abscess and meningitis which developed from an ear infection.

The inquest, called to determine if the girl received proper medical treatment, was adjourned to Tuesday.

MAJOR REASON

It was ordered by Dr. H. B. Cotnam, Ontario's supervising coroner, after he heard reports that a cult to drive the devil out of people was operating at St. Matthias Church where Canon Smith is the rector. The girl died in the church rectory where she was living.

Globe also charged that Canon Smith, Rev. Douglas Tisdale, assistant rector, and Alex Globe, 24, (his son) gave misleading evidence in saying he had suffered a heart attack and a stroke. Evidence was that the father's condition was a major reason for removing Katherine from her home.

Globe said "they knew when they testified" that he had suffered only a "suspected coronary."

"I was changing jobs and under pressure," Globe said, explaining the reason for his distress at the time.

BOARDING SCHOOL

He said his son visited him while he was in hospital at Hamilton and told him that Katherine was going to a boarding school or convent.

"The next day he came back with Canon Smith. They had taken Kathy out of high school, gone to our house without any permission and had put her in Smith's daughter's home in Burlington. I think my son was ashamed of the underhanded way it was done."

Alex, a divinity student, stared at the floor during most of his father's evidence.

The father said his son and the rector wanted him to sign guardianship papers immediately, but he refused.

When he left hospital a week later, he went to see Smith who "really sold me" on having Katherine stay at the rectory for the remainder of the school year.

"But he told me: "There is one little hitch. It is going to cost you about $600 to have her stay here. But you can easily get out of that by signing guardianship papers." He signed the papers.

'WORST MISTAKE'

Looking directly at Canon Smith, Globe said:

"That was the worst mistake I ever made. I was blackmailed from then on. He kept telling me: 'Do what I say or I'll hit you with it..'"

He said the St. Mathis cult then tried to work on him, and he stayed one month with them "on account of Katherine."

"I found they were sick. Their work was to divide people and keep them apart. Moore Smith asked me what I was doing about my wife. He went into quite a tirade that I was not doing what I should. Finally I got up and walked out."

Earlier in his testimony, Globe testified that Tisdall had told him to get rid of his wife. "Tisdall told me one day at the church that Kathy was full of hell coming from her mother. I was to get rid of her mother, break up the home, and move to St. Matthias and stop this hell."

His wife sat quietly by herself in the court room while her husband testified.

"I am a church-going man, an Anglican, but the things which have been going on at St. Matthias' Church are not related to the Anglican Church," Globe said. What is going on there is a very sick situation."

Ship Spotters Keep Late Hours

AA Groups to Hold Annual Convention

Alcoholics Anonymous will hold its 17th annual Thanksgiving rally Oct. 7-9 at the Ingraham Hotel.

Theme of the rally is "Life Begins with Sobriety."

Since the first Thanksgiving rally was held in Victoria in 1959, Alcoholics Anonymous has grown locally to its present 16 groups, with membership of more than 300 men and women.

World-wide membership stands at 350,000 in 12,444 groups covering nearly every country in the world.

It had its beginnings in Akron, Ohio, in 1935, when two alcoholics met—one a physician and the second a stockbroker—and formed a fellowship concerned solely with the personal recovery and continued sobriety of individual alcoholics who turned to it for help.

The public will be welcomed to two open meetings of the AA rally.

The first will be held Oct. 7 from 2-4 p.m. at the Akron Hall, 1402 Broad Street.

The second will be at the Ingraham Hotel on Sunday, Oct. 8, at 2 p.m. One of the speakers will be Reg Clarkson, of the Victoria office of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C.

AA members will attend a banquet at the hotel at 7 p.m., Saturday, with featured entertainment by the Adeline Duncan dancers and pipers.

On Sunday night, a closed meeting for AA members will be held at the Akron Hall.

The rally ends on Monday, when members and their wives visit William Head minimum security prison for an AA meeting with inmates at 1:30 p.m.

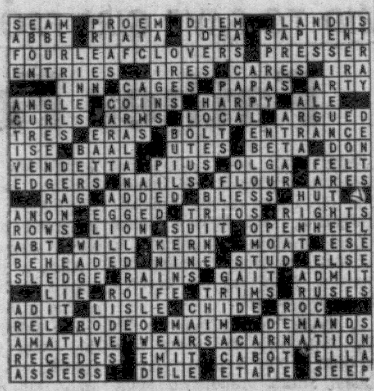
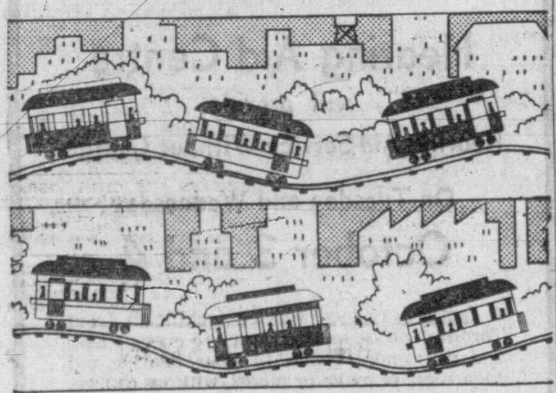
Answers to Previous Puzzle



SMART GALLERY



Regular travellers on the Rock and Roll Railway know which high-speed trolley is theirs by certain distinctive markings. This means they must have sharp eyes to avoid making mistakes. Shown above are cars travelling to and from town. Give yourself two minutes' time in which to discover which two of these cars are alike. That is to say, which two cars have the same markings? Of course, they do not necessarily carry the same passengers in both directions.

CALL THE ROLL?

A wallpaper dealer sold 12 double rolls of paper. If the red with white flower rolls had been blue with white flower rolls, there would have been twice as many blue with white flower rolls sold as white with pink stripe; but if the white with pink stripe had been blue with white flower, there would have been three times as many blue with white flower as red with white flower. How many rools of each kind were sold?

A double roll, incidentally, is really a single roll, that is, just one roll, but it is one that contains twice the volume of a so-called single roll. Is that clear? Anyway, you can usually return the unused rolls within 30 days and get your money back.

Answer: Three red with white flower rolls four white with pink stripe and five blue with white flowers.

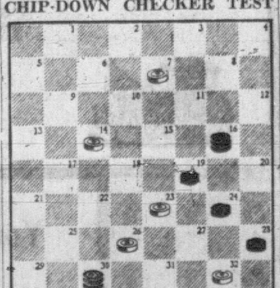
ANASCRAMBLE POWER

Given one common word plus a letter, you are to anascramble the combined letters into a new word of entirely different meaning. For example, RIDE plus W is weird.

1. ODOR plus P is —?
2. SAME plus B is —?
3. TORE plus U is —?
4. VEAL plus G is —?
5. RAID plus C is —?

Answers: 1. Droop. 2. Beams. 3. Route. 4. gavel. 5. acrid. Other solutions may be possible.

CHIP-DOWN CHECKER TEST



White sets his sights on a five-move finish in the checker probem at right. Needless to say, such an outcome will leave Black hopping mad.

White side, moving up the board, to move first and win in five turns, as stated, is the problem. How's it done? Longtime champ Millard Hopper tells below, in case your own efforts fail.

Solution: White 23-18, Black 30-23, White 14-10, Black 28-14, White 7-2, Black 14-7, White 2-11-20-27.

STAMP CORNER

By REG. NAIRNE

On Sept. 29 the U.S.A. issued a jumbo-sized stamp in twin form to honor America's accomplishments in space.

The overall design shows a space-walking astronaut attched by a life-line to his capsule, and it takes two large-sized stamps to complete the picture, which measures three inches in length.

For the sake of convenience the stamps are perforated vertically down the middle, and each half inscribed "5c". So you can use the pair as a 10c stamp, or either of the two halves for the ordinary letter rate.

●

Strange to say this twin stamp idea is no novelty, for it actually dates back to the very earliest days of postal adhesives.

In 1843 the Canton of Geneva issued two 5c stamps, in pairs throughout the sheet, which were "tied" together by an inscription along the top reading "10 Port Cantonal cent".

Collectors refer to these as "double Genevas", and an unsevered pair is listed today at $12,500 unused and $8,750 used. If you happen to have mismated pairs the price jumps to $16,000 and $12,500 respectively. Singles run at $3,500 and $1,600.

Malta on Oct. 7 will issue its three Christmas stamps in values of 1d, 8d, and 1sh, 4d. The sheet arrangement of these is going to be even more unusual than for the U.S. stamps referred to above. Two different sheet sizes will be available:—

1. Each stamp may be had in sheets of 60, but because of the shape of the stamps they will appear both upright and inverted in equal quantities in the sheet.

2. Sheets will also be available with all three values appearing in sequence on each sheet of 60 stamps. In these sheets the three stamps together form a trapezium, lf all things.

As each stamp in the set shows a detail of the scene depicting the Holy Family at Bethlehem, the three stamps together form a sort of triptych making the whole picture complete.

The statement in last week's column that orders for the Cyprus Sports miniature sheets had been cut to 20 per cent should have read "cut by 20 per cent."

LEAVE IT TO GIRLS

Several secretaries had a snack together and agreed to split the cheque equally. When the cheque was presented, it was found that if each girl paid 65 cents, there would be 70 cents too little in the pool. So each one put in 75 cents, with the result that there was 10 cents left over. How many girls were there?

Answer: Eight. The cheque was $5.90.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

The Hideous Hog and the other members of Victor Mollo's bridge menagerie were primarily rubber bridge players. Today we find the Hog engaged in match point duplicate.

Most players would rebid three diamonds over their partner's two spades, but not the Hog. The hand just might play in hearts and in that case he wanted to be the first to bid that suit.

Opening lead—♠5

Looking over dummy carefully, he remarked, "We might have bid a little more," and proceeded to take dummy's ace. Then he ruffed a spade with the ace of trumps, entered dummy with the queen of clubs, ruffed another spade; entered dummy with the ace of clubs, ruffed dummy's last spade, led his last trump, overtook in dummy, drew the rest of the trumps, led dummy's ace of diamonds, laughed triumphantly when West showed out and explained that he had just made an overtrick for an absolute top.

His reasoning was that for a grand slam in either notrump, hearts or diamonds unless all four diamonds showed up in one hand the grand slam would be on, and that he had played so as to make seven against the 4-0 diamond break.

His reasoning was good but when the scores came in his six hearts bid, seven made, turned out to be a very poor score.

It just happened to be one of those poor duplicate games and no one reached seven. No one reached six notrump either and the field divided between six diamonds by South and six hearts with North as declarer.

Poor duplicate or not, everyone knew about the Lightner slam double for an unusual lead. With South declarer at six diamonds East would double for a spade lead. The spade lead wouldn't do any good and South would make his doubled contract.

With North declarer at six hearts, West would double for a diamond lead. He would get to ruff that diamond but North would have no trouble with the rest of the tricks.

NEW HOUSE

Custom built for his own use in beautiful Broadmead the builder has given this house the best of finish with smooth plaster walls throughout, heavy duty carpet in LR, DR, and halls, expensive Crestwood cabinets in kitchen, top quality vinyl floor coverings in kitchen and bathrooms. A well-proportioned plan provides such features as a spacious eating area in kitchen, separate dining room, large master bedroom with separate closets for husband and wife and it's own bathroom with tiled shower two other bedrooms and second bathroom. Downstairs (at ground level) could be easily finished to provide a huge rec room, 4th bedroom or den, utility room and still have space left over. A sundeck of almost 600 sq. ft. is placed over the double carport. This house is located on Edgewood Place, a cul-de-sac of attractive homes more easily accessible from town than Ten Mile Point or Gordon Head. See it and make an offer on asking price of $34,500. PUBLIC NOTICE for ranching purposes in Canada, including commercial production of buffalo meat and by-products.

Call for Tenders for the Purchase of LIVE BUFFALO

Canadian firms or persons resident in Canada who are interested in purchasing a selected herd of 25 buffalo for the purpose of establishing a viable buffalo ranching industry in Canada are invited to submit sealed tenders to the undersigned on or before October 13, 1967, at 2:00 p.m. (EDST).

The buffalo are now being held at Elk Island National Park, Lamont, Alberta, and will be selected by representatives of Her Majesty in right of Canada to form a balanced breeding herd. They will be tested, prior to sale, by an officer of the Health of Animals Branch of the Department of Agriculture.

Interested firms and persons may obtain the forms on which tenders must be submitted and the particulars of the terms and conditions of sale from the undersigned, or from the Regional Director, National and Historic Parks Branch, Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, Customs Buildings, Calgary, Alberta.

A tenderer must forward with the tender a deposit of 10% of the offered purchase price in cash or by certified cheque payable to the Receiver General of Canada. No tender will be considered unless it is accompanied by the required deposit. The deposits of unsuccessful tenderers will be returned.

The buffalo will be sold only to a resident of Canada, a registered Canadian partnership, or a Company incorporated under the laws of Canada or under the laws of any province.

Tenders will not be considered unless the amount tendered exceeds the upset price of seven thousand five hundred dollars ($7,500.00) which represents the cost of raising, rounding up, holding and testing the buffalo at three hundred dollars ($300.00) per animal. Each tender must be in a sealed envelope, marked on the outside "Tender for the Purchase of Live Buffalo," and addressed to the undersigned.

The highest or any tender will not necessarily be accepted.

(Signed)
The Director,
National and Historic Parks Branch,
Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development,
400 Laurier Avenue West,
Ottawa 4, Ontario.

ALD. BAIRD SPOKE OUT FOR A TIDIER PROVINCE

Just for the record:

A keep-British Columbia-tidy resolution passed at the annual convention of the Union of British Columbia Municipalities last week originated with Ald. Robert Baird, of Victoria.

The alderman told city council Thursday the resolution had had no notice in the newspapers, even though it received wide support.

Mayor Hugh Stephen commended him for the resolution asking for a cleanup along highways and waterways now often strewn on both sides with junk and signs.

Peace Formula By Computers!

TORONTO (CP)—A formula for peace on earth may come up if enough numbers and equations are run through computers, says Norman Z. Alcock, nuclear physicist and engineer.

ALCOCK
. . . seeks answer

Enough other people share Mr. Alcock's views to have given the Canadian Peace Research Institute at nearby Clarkson $60,000 last year for research.

The Canadian Council recently contributed a $7,100 grant for his study of the Vietnam war.

Working in his small unmarked laboratory, Mr. Alcock believes that a hard, scientific approach will ultimately turn up an answer for peace in much the same way the biologists and pathologists hope to find a cure for cancer.

"The Vietnam war may be a prototype of the war of the future," he says.

"It is almost a ritualistic war, each side escalating in a measured rhythm, just like—and just as irrationally—as the escalation in an arms race."

Mr. Alcock says that if it is possible to analyze and determine the pressures that result in the kind of escalation, it should be possible to find a depressurizing formula which could result in de-escalation.

"Another special thing about the Vietnam situation is that in most wars, public support for them goes up as the war goes on—in this case the support has gone down.

"These limited wars may be a form of duelling, or tournament, in which representatives of the opposing nations, or blocs of nations, meet and engage each other and fight within certain restricted circumstances."

'Bleeder' Survives Operation

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A London neurosurgeon this week described how a 21-year-old hemophiliac successfully underwent brain surgery at London's Victoria Hospital recently.

Dr. W. B. Barton, who performed the operation, told the London auxiliary of the Ontario Hemophilia Society that surgery was only possible because of a new coagulating substance — cryoprecipitate — which replaced the deficiency in the man's blood.

Hemophilia is an inherited disease in which the clotting of the blood is abnormally delayed. It is believed this is the first time in Canada a "bleeder" has survived such a delicate operation. For a hemophiliac, brain surgery has been considered impossible because a blood leak into the brain would be fatal.

The youth, a University of Western Ontario student from Sarnia, began to suffer dizzy spells last year and then began having seizures. Doctors found a blood clot on the surface of his brain.

Dr. Barton said doctors who specialize in the study of blood believed there was hope in the substance discovered only seven years ago.

Volunteer Job Shop Opens Doors

Volunteer Bureau of Greater Victoria, where citizens can register for volunteer work with groups or agencies seeking assistance, will open for business Monday.

The office at room 206D, 936 Balmoral, will be open Mondays and Wednesdays from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Phone number is 388-9212.

The bureau is sponsored by the Community Welfare Council of Greater Victoria and was started by six housewives interested in community work.

Three Break-Ins Reported in City

A bare-footed burglar who broke into Fernwood Purity Store Friday night must have thought he would feel badly this morning.

He swiped 10 bottles of Anacin.

The intruder gained entry through a window at the back of the store at 2009 Fernwood. He also took nylons, blankets, cigarettes and food to the value of $113.

There were two other break-ins overnight. Thieves entered the B.C. Medical building and the Weiler Building. Losses, if any, are not yet known.

Car Collision Injures Couple

Damaged totalled $1,300 in a two-car collision at Fort and Cook at 1:30 p.m. Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Kirkham, 2700 Dewdney Ave., were treated for minor injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital when their car was in collision with an auto driven by Mrs. Eleanor Stevenson, 1910 Casa Marcia Rd.

Damage to the Kirkham car totalled $500 and Mrs. Stevenson's car suffered $800 damage.

About noon Friday Randall Reynolds, 1732 Kings Rd., was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital suffering from cuts and bruises after an accident involving four cars at Cook and Pandora.

Arts Fiesta Will Offer 'Good Taste'

The program at the Centennial Folk Arts Fiesta next month is going to be good enough to eat.

Besides a program of ethnic songs and dances, audiences will get a chance to sample foods of different countries.

Students from Greater Victoria secondary schools will prepare the delicacies and also serve them in ethnic style.

The Fiesta, at the McPherson Theatre Oct. 20-21, will include Les Danseurs de St. Lawrence from Quebec, a Polish choir from Winnipeg as well as local performers. Indian author and artist George Clutesi will be master of ceremonies.

Home economics teachers will lead their classes in researching and producing the rare dishes.

Goodies from the cultures of Scotland, French Canada, Poland, the American Indian, East Indian, China, Spain, Italy and Germany will be on hand for the tasting.

Policeman Cut; Seaman Charged

A 21-year-old man charged with assaulting a police officer was released on $500 bail Friday.

Robert Wison, CGS Stonetown, was charged following an incident at the rear of 646 Admirals Road Thursday.

Two Esquimalt police officers, Cpl. Kenneth Hatherly and Constable Gordon Jenkins, approached a man to question him.

The man drew a knife and Cpl. Hatherly received a cut on his left hand.

The case has been remanded until Oct. 6 for plea.

Lake Cowichan Backs College

LAKE COWICHAN—An intensive campaign has been waged here in support of Saturday's vote on the proposed up-Island regional college.

In the past three weeks the college's backers here have talked to 14 clubs and organizations.

The advantages of the college have also been outlined to more than 500 students at Lake Cowichan secondary school.

Mrs. Yvonne Green, a member of the college's advisory committee, said it would help many students who are not interested or qualified for university.

Money Box Taken From Pop Machine

Thieves ignored a camera, tools and other valuable items when they broke into the Boys Club building on Yates Street, Thursday, and removed the money box from the soft drink machine.

A window at ground level was forced and the office was ransacked before the machine was broken into.

SPEAKING here Wednesday is Ray Dawson, administrator in Korea for the Save The Children's Fund. He will be accompanied by his 10-year-old adopted Korean son Il-Yong and will show slides depicting his work. The 8 p.m. meeting at War Amputations Hall is open to the public.

SAANICH PAYS

McRae Cost Rising $200 Every Day

It is costing Saanich $200 a day in interest on the McRae Estate expropriation.

The money is payable to the McRae family and is retroactive to the time of expropriation, just one year ago.

Terms of the $1.2 million arbitration award on the price of the 132-acre property, announced two weeks ago, included interest and hearing costs against Saanich.

This brings the interest bill to $72,000 so far. Costs of the arbitration hearing have not been stated, but municipal sources put it at between $50,000 and $70,000.

ON AGENDA

Saanich councillors met municipal lawyers privately Wednesday night and the McRae Estate will be discussed at Monday night's council meeting.

Council thus faces a total bill of about $1.34 million, or more than $500,000 above the amount included for the estate in a general capital budget approved by ratepayers two years ago.

Saanich wants to acquire the land to be dedicated forever for park and recreational use.

Council has made no decision whether to go through with the purchase or how to raise the extra money. It is expected, however, to favor trying to buy the land.

Some of the extra cost can be offset through reserves set aside in the capital budget. A saving of $300,000 on the McKenzie Ave. road building and widening project might also be applied to the extra McRae costs.

If the extra costs cannot be met in these ways, a supplementary referendum is expected to be held in December to complete the acquisition at the arbitrated price — plus interest costs and hearing costs.

Charlotte to Run

OTTAWA (CP)—Charlotte Whitton, Ottawa's controversial former mayor, has taken out nomination papers for the Oct. 17 Ontario election but she is keeping the details secret.

Couples Club To Mark Anniversary

The Acti-Mets Couples Club of Metropolitan United Church will celebrate its 20th anniversary Friday, Oct. 20.

The club was founded by Rev. Dr. A. E. Whitehouse, then minister, and Mrs. Whitehouse in October, 1947. Its object was to enable younger married couples to become better acquainted and share in all church functions.

"Dr. and Mrs. Whitehouse rightly believed these couples as the future body of the church," said Henry Bird, past-president, who attended the inaugural meeting.

"But they little realized how successful the venture would be."

The club will hold a celebration in the church hall Oct. 20 at 7:30 p.m. when Dr. and Mrs. Whitehouse, now retired, will be guests of honor. Many ex-members, now living in other cities, have been invited to return.

"We shall put on a kind of pantomime re-enacting many of the events which have taken place over the past 20 years," Mr. Bird said.

Field Secretary Of ACE Here For Anniversary

The fied secretary of the Association for Childhood Education International will address the Victoria branch when it celebrates its 20th anniversay Oct. 10.

Rebecca Mauzey of Washington, D.C., will speak at the meeting, to be held in the Jiminy Crickets Nursery-Kindergarten 3410 Shelbourne, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The Victoria branch was the first ACE group in western Canada. There are now more than 30 members, mostly teachers, but the organization is open to anyone. President is Lorna Stuart of 322 Stannard.

The branch established the children's section of the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria and each year presents a scholarship to an outstanding student teacher as the University of Victoria.

ARTIST Charles Brookman doesn't mind discussing his paintings with viewers. Unlike some painters, he is willing to 'explain' what he is doing on canvas. But he doesn't think it necessary for viewers to 'understand' a painting beore they enjoy it.

City Artist Doesn't Mind Discussing Own Painting

Abstract art confuse you? Don't hesitate to question the artist.

Artist Charles Brookman, who recently held a showing at Pandora's Box, believes that he can't expect viewers to instinctively "read" his paintings.

"I'm trying to take a philosophical idea and transfer it to canvas. When you paint thoughts and ideas — all the inner things, its impossible for someone who doesn't know you, to understnd your paintings."

●

Mr. Brookman believes it might be a good idea to open a showing with a lecture. Then the artist could explain his ideas and he could answer questions.

"Of course, once the viewer follows the artist's work, he becomes familiar with certain symbols that recur and he becomes educated in the visual language that the artist uses."

But, is it necessary to understand art before you can enjoy it?

"No. Most people instinctively like paintings that have good compositions — a pleasing balance. If a painting's badly composed its a bad picture — no matter what the subject.

"But understanding the artist's ideas gives it a further dimension."

Mr. Brookman is thinking of working on a new show where the paintings would be related to Vancourver Island.

"I don't think it's necessary to go elsewhere. There's a lot that could be done on the Island — wonderful forms, colors, shapes, textures. It would make an exciting show.

●

"I am obsessed with all the fantastic things in the world — the wonder of it. Most people could be creative but they take the world for granted. Only by experimenting with the shapes of the world can you become aware of them."

Mr. Brookman is currently teaching art at the University School.

"I like combining teaching with my own work because, as you can see, I enjoy talking about art."

BOOZE WORSE THAN 'POT' CLAIMS HIPPIE-FAN BIRNEY

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—Dr. Earle Birney, an admirer of the hippies, says he thinks marijuana is not a dangerous drug.

"Nobody has ever proven to me that it is physically harmful or addictive," says the 64-year-old poet, centennial writer in residence at the University of Waterloo for the next academic year.

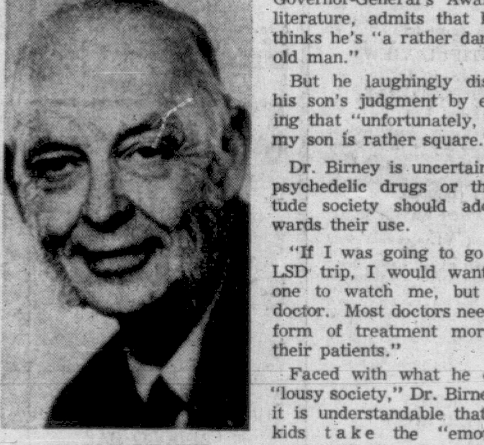
"Actually, the use of marijuana is much safer and better than the use of alcohol.

"Present laws cannot control the use of marijuana. It is impossible to control a weed which grows in some form over half the world's surface. Marijuana will always be available no matter what measures society takes."

Society, because of its preventive laws, had created the danger that marijuana smokers could turn into hard-core drug addicts.

"To get marijuana you have to go to an illegal source. And the dope peddler isn't really interested in selling marijuana —there's not much money in it. What he really wants to get a person hooked on is heroin."

The Alberta-born professor and poet, who taught for almost 20 years at the University of British Columbia, says he feels the danger could be eliminated by having the government set up marijuana boards of control similar to liquor control boards, where people could buy the weed legally from the government.



EARLE BIRNEY
. . . poet for pot

Dr. Birney, winner of two Governor-General's Awards for literature, admits that his son thinks he's "a rather dangerous old man."

But he laughingly dismisses his son's judgment by explaining that "unfortunately, I think my son is rather square."

Dr. Birney is uncertain about psychedelic drugs or the attitude society should adopt towards their use.

"If I was going to go on an LSD trip, I would want some one to watch me, but not a doctor. Most doctors need some form of treatment more than their patients."

Faced with what he calls a "lousy society," Dr. Birney says it is understandable that many kids take the "emotionally constructive step" of dropping out of school and society.

"I admire and envy most of the hippies. There are always some who are stupid but they would be stupid whether they were hip or not.

"But generally the intellectually and creative-minded hippie is fulfilling himself more than the square-type individual."

$50,000 Law Suit Dismissed

A claim for $50,000 brought by Cadboro Bay Motors Ltd. against Cadboro Bay Holdings Ltd. was dismissed in B.C. Supreme Court Friday.

Cadboro Bay Motors sued upon a promissory note given Cadboro Bay Holdings for $50,000 as a shareholder's loan.

In his judgment, Mr. Justice Craig Munro said Mr. and Mrs. Garner Williams entered negotiations with H. L. Holker in 1960 with a view to assembling land for a shopping centre at Cadboro Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams loaned the defendant company $50,000 as a shareholder's loan, with a condition that the debt be repaid in full out of the net earnings of the company before any other debt.

Mr. Justice Munro said the priority was agreed to because of the advanced age of Mr. and Mrs. Williams, who had contributed the most valuable land.

TWO NOTES

In February, 1962, Messrs. Holker and John. S. Damgaard issued two demand promissory notes each for $50,000. One was payable to Mr. Williams and the other to Cadboro Bay Motors.

Three years later the plaintiff company demanded payment of its note.

Mr. Justice Munro said:

"To permit the plaintiff company to succeed in this action would be to permit Messrs. Holker and Dangaard to do with their left hand what they could not do with their right hand, and would amount to judicial sanction of a fraud against Mr. and Mrs. Garner Williams and the defendant."

Mr. Justice Munro found that "a mutual mistake" had occurred in expressing the original agreement.

A counter-claim for rectification of the agreement was allowed with costs assessed against the plaintiff company.

J. S. De Villiers appeared for the plaintiffs and Rodney Taylor for the defendants.

Viet Students Draw Cheers At McGill

MONTREAL (CP)—Three Vietnamese students who say they are members of the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam were cheered and applauded Friday by an audience of about 900 McGill University students.

The reception contrasted with the hostile hisses and boos that greeted the group Thursday at Sir George Williams University.

At McGill, prolonged applause greeted the statement by Le Mai, younger of the two male students, that the "South Vietnamese people and all other peoples around the world fighting for freedom and against inequalities are bound to win. We shall overcome."

Thursday, at SGWU, the students were interrupted frequently by student shouts of "filthy pig," and "kill a Commie".

A Man and His Boat Must Work Together

By JOHN MANNING

Powindah is anchored off El Morro Island on the West Coast of South America. There is a faint wind from the Southwest. I take a cup of tea into the cockpit and see the sun's rays strip away the last of the night so that the ghost blur of the beach becomes coral white, dazzling.

The boat is rolling slightly with the sweep of current under her fat keel. My wife is in the galley, eggs are on the boil, there is an odor of toast blooming through the companionway. I sit and enjoy the tea and soak up the new warmth of the sun.

One hour has passed. The dishes are cleaned and locked into their rack. Powindah's bosun, a geeen parrot, is back in his cage, the alarm clock is stowed, the carpet has been rolled up and the forehatch battened down. This sailboat is ready for sea.

In her own way she is as prepared for sea as any battleship, square rigger, or tramp freighter; at least I feel that way for the life of my wife and the ship and the parrot depend upon it being so.

After one year of voyaging in her the boat and I work together like the oiled click click of the 30-30 Winchester I use to hunt with in British Columbia, so that at night if we are taken by a squall I now know, finally, what ropes to go for just as I know the instinct of the gun as the hammer skips back and the filed trigger, index finger and front sight strive to become one nerve. I love that gun and being in the bush with it and the solid whack of its firing just as I love this 30-foot boat.

The two are related. If it is misused or neglected a boat can kill her crew as surely as a rifle left unreamed of dirt. However, if the discipline of the sea and the ship's wants are catered to a man is rewarded a hundred fold. For when the anchor is broken out and the ship answers to her helm like a thoroughbred to rein you are no longer just man, you are man and ship. The two of you move over the sea.

If both of you are strong enough you can continue to travel, to be free, as long as there are provisions and sea and wind. You are free.

Pat takes the helm. I walk forward and set to hand-winching in 20 fathoms of chain. When it is halfway up I walk back and undo the mainsail ties, one topping-lift rope and then haul down on the main halyard and peak halyard.

Those two ropes hoist the mainsail aloft. If the wind is not in greater force beyond the shelter of El Morro we shall also set the topsail but first we must sail clear of the land.

The remainder of chain and finally the anchor itself are winched aboard, the anchor is made fast quickly for the boat is already beginning to move and within pistol shot of the bow are black rocks which must be avoided. The jib sail is set.

The wind catches it, her canvas quivers, becomes taut while the wooden blocks on the main cease their chattering and take up the load, the main out like a lion's chest. The ship's forefoot paws a whiteness into the bay and we are sailing. We are sailing.

At night, on watch, the Mate below asleep, the boat steering herself and five sails set all bold and pulling wildly under the candle glow of a quarter moon. Somewhere the land. A wind from the Southwest. The ship is tacking into it, making down the coast of Ecuador and attempting to stay inshore of the strong northbound Humbolt Current.

Night and sea and wind. The compass card showing a southeast heading and land beyond the bows. At midnight we tack. Are we too close? I strain for sound of breakers, check the log reading, the chart, and almost relax. No. Rocks are seven miles away. We tack at the change of watch in 20 minutes and that scent of the jungle, so odd on this night because the wind is blowing onshore, must be enjoyed, not feared.

There is an unnatural splash ahead of the bows. I sit feeling lonely and listen for this sound again. It repeats: once, twice, in rapid succession. Dolphin! I move forward trailing the safety line and see green torpedoes of phosphorescent light.

Those giant mammals are more than friendly. They delight in playing with the boat, coming so close I can touch one with the mop handle. They gasp like humans for air.

I scan the night for ship's lights, find none, go below, turn up the kerosene lamp and heat coffee for Pat. When she is snapped into her safety harness we put the ship about on the offshore tack. The dolphin are gone. My wife and I talk for a few minutes. She finishes the coffee, then I write up the log and turn in, the double bunk warm. On deck my "Winnipeg Mate" becomes the eyes and mind of the ship. I am asleep within seconds.

'Recreation Highway' Announced

YAKIMA, Wash. (CP) — Announcement of the state's first scenic recreation highway was made by Gov. Dan Evans during a tour of eastern Washington.

At a Yakima news conference, Evans said the Yakima River Canyon Highway between Yakima and Ellensburg would become a scenic recreation development. The route will be bypassed by Insterstate 82.

Evans also said he has urged the construction schedule for the interstate route be accelerated so it can be completed in 1971, two years ahead of schedule.

The recreation development would have facilities for boating, camping, picnicking, and other outdoor pursuits.

Willis Gives Up

NEW YORK (AP)—Capt. William Willis, the 74-year-old mariner who set out to cross the Atlantic alone in an 11½-foot sailboat three months ago, apparently has given up, the coast guard reported today. Willis radioed Thursday night that he had been picked up by a Polish trawler Wednesday.

Clinic to Open in Duncan For Alcoholism Treatment

DUNCAN—A travelling clinic for treatment of alcoholics will make Duncan a regular port of call starting in November.

The Alcoholism Foundation Clinic will spend one half-day every two weeks at Duncan health centre.

Island supervisor Reg Clarkson said here Friday the clinic will provide professional psychotherapy.

Treatment will be available for voluntary patients and those referred to the foundation by the courts.

These clinics sponsored by the foundation have been operating in various parts of B.C. for nearly a year.

News of their introduction to Duncan was given at the start of a two-day institute on alcoholism and alcohol.

It is sponsored by the Family Court Committee of Duncan in co-operation with the foundation.

About 100 people attended the opening session in St. John's Church hall Friday night.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said the answer to the alcohol problem lay in the work of organizations like the foundation.

He said it was a "sobering" experience to realize the big-take days in many hotels came when people received either their old-age pension, family allowance or welfare cheques.

Executive director of the foundation E. D. McRae said alcoholism is an illness not only on the increase in B.C. but out of control.

He said: "It should give us real cause for concern but unfortunately we are able to sweep alcoholism under the rug and go on living with it."

Not everyone agreed alcoholism is a problem in this country. It has been extolled as God's gift to mankind.

A second group realized it is responsible for untold suffering and misery.

Mr. McRae said one hope of the institute was to disturb the thinking of the third group which is indifferent to the problem.

He said: "We are asked—Why is the problem not solved?"

One reason is that drinking as a social practice is deeply embedded in our culture.

ON INCREASE

Secondly, problems arising from drinking are exceedingly complex.

The fact that 70 per cent of Canadians drink alcohol has a bearing on people's attitude. They don't like to point the finger at themselves.

In 1953 Canadians drank 1.55 gallons of alcohol per capita.

The figure in 1964 was 1.85 gallons per capita.

Canadians spent $98 per capita on alcohol in 1964 and 2.5 per cent of the adult population was alcoholic.

Mr. McRae said: "We are spending more on drink, we are drinking more and the rate of alcoholism is increasing."

Today's sessions were to include panel debates; a presentation of the breakdown of the family structure where there is an alcoholic member; a film, and workshop discussion groups.

If I were out to impress people, on occasion I'd hang my head in shame. But since I'm not, I don't!

Chiropractors Told To Raise Standards

NANAIMO — Chiropractors must improve their educational standards before they can be integrated with the medical profession, Dr. John F. McCreary, dean of medicine at UBC, told a meeting of chiropractors here Friday.

It was the first time a member of the B.C. Medical Association has officially addressed chiropractors as professional men.

Dr. McCreary explained why they had not been included in the forthcoming arrangements at UBC to integrate health professions.

"I don't see how we can have a common meeting place at present," he said.

DIALOGUE POSSIBLE

He urged chiropractors to bring their educational facilities up to standards accepted by the health professions.

"This could enable us to begin a dialogue which would eventually lead to mutual acceptance."

One of the chiropractors said improving educational facilities would require government help through taxation and this was not forthcoming.

"Then maybe you'd better take a close look at yourselves," Dr. McCreary replied.

He told the group that, for the first time in Canadian medical history, research is being done to determine the effectiveness of various health services upon the community.

He said the new program of integration at UBC is designed to ensure that all health services speak a common language.

The same will be true of the basic medical sciences, but the common language will be stressed so that each profession will know what the others refer to.

HEAVY LOAD

"The physicians of Canada are carrying too heavy a load," Dr. McCreary said. "There are some areas of B.C. which have no physicians at all.

"The saving factor in the past has been immigration of doctors from other countries, where the medical profession has become dissatisfied with situations they face.

"The United Kingdom provided 900 doctors this year, but we cannot be sure this will continue," Dr. McCreary said.

He said new medical information is being published every 28 seconds throughout the world.

"It is difficult for a doctor to find the time to keep abreast of increasing knowledge in his own field."

Dr. McCreary was given a standing ovation by chiropractors when he concluded his one-hour address.

Socreds Seek Subsidy On Hay Cost

DUNCAN—The provincial government should seek an agreement with Ottawa and the railway companies to absorb one-third of the cost of transporting hay within the borders of B.C.

This is the text of a resolution to be presented to the Social Credit Party's annual convention in November.

It will be advanced by the Cowichan-Malahat delegation.

Constituency president Patrick Rogers said Friday such an agreement already exists in Quebec.

The idea is to "avoid severe economic dislocations in those areas of the province affected."

The resolution states "moisture conditions prevailing in many parts of B.C. result in serious shortages of forage and hay.

"Increased rail freight rates are making shipment of hay so costly there is a build-up of surpluses in one area and shortages in another."

A second Cowichan-Malahat resolution to the convention will call on the provincial government to give some financial assistance to communities constructing sewer plants which conform to standard.

Cowichan delegates will also press for government leadership to co-ordinate the efforts of different agencies concerned about soil erosion and flood control.

Mr. Rogers will lead an 11-member Cowichan delegation to the convention.

An idea to have a bridge span Sansum Narrows to connect Salt Spring Island and Central Vancouver Island will be taken to the area council meeting Oct. 14.

Mr. Rogers said: "We want to sound out feeling among Island representatives before taking the idea in resolution form to the annual party convention."

Man, 77, Missing

PARKSVILLE—A search continued Friday for David Telning, 77, who disappeared from Echo Lake Lodge Rest Home at Hilliers Tuesday morning.

RCMP and a tracking dog have co-operated in the search with Nanaimo Search and Rescue and Parksville Fish and Game branch.

Mr. Telning was wearing a brown plaid shirt and jacket, dark blue trousers and a wine-colored tie. He is 5 ft. 1 in, weighs 110 pounds, wears glasses and has recent scars on his forehead.

Campers Face Tighter Rules

Regulations to control litter and camping on Long Beach will be tightened, Recreation Minister Kenneth Kiernan said Friday.

The minister was answering complaints that Long Beach is being spoiled by litter and the lack of control on campers.

"Certainly we will have to tighten up our control of camping on the beach and of litter," he said.

"We are going to have to come to the philosophy that the things people pack into the bush, or into campsites or along trails or in parks, are capable of being packed out, too."

Long Beach and Bamfield are two sites which have been recommended for a national marine park and a decision from federal parks officials is expected in the near future.

Impaired Driving Nets Six Weeks

Thomas H. Lidgate, 485 Fraser Street, was sentenced to six weeks in jail when he was convicted of a second offence impaired driving charge Friday.

He was remanded to Oct. 10 for a decision on possible suspension of licence.

The charge arose from an incident June 29, when the accused drove in such a manner, police said, as to force two cars to swerve to avoid an accident.

A breath test gave a reading of .16.

THE TWO FACES OF ELECTRIC HEAT

They Tell You
- Electric heat is just as economical as oil heat.
- Electric heat is healthier than oil heat.
- Electric heat is cleaner than oil heat.
- An electric water heater is better than an oil-fired water heater.

We Tell You
- For the average home, electric heat costs up to 100% more than oil heat unless extensive insulation is used.
- Electric heat is stagnant heat. Unlike oil heat, it does not circulate and freshen the air in your home. With electric heat, your family keeps breathing stale air.
- Recent research at Columbia University proves that there is no cleaner heat than modern automatic oil heat.
- It is a proven fact that an oil-fired water heater heats water 6 times faster than electricity and much more economically.

GUILTY UNTIL PROVEN INNOCENT!

THE MISUSE OF INJUNCTIONS IN LABOUR DISPUTES IS AN AFFRONT TO THE DIGNITY AND MEANING OF LAW.

The present crisis in British Columbia's industrial relations results largely from the misuse of injunctions . . . in particular their "ex parte" application to prevent picketing. Labour has an inalienable right to strike. The full majesty of the law backs that right, protects it, provides the means whereby both sides of the dispute can bargain fairly and in good faith.

Yet by a twist of the law . . . made possible by Bill 43 of the Trade Unions Act . . . the right to strike can be rendered almost meaningless by an "ex parte" injunction to prevent picketing. An injunction used in this way has the effect of denying the right to protest in the only tangible way available to those legitimately withholding their labour.

IT IS AN ABUSE OF THE LAW . . . AN ABUSE OF YOUR BILL OF RIGHTS!

Prosperity in British Columbia depends entirely on the establishment of creative and harmonious relations between labour and management. It's as simple as that. With this perversion of current labour law, there can only be continuing friction and mutual hostility. Nobody gains by it. The striker is pronounced guilty until he can prove his innocence . . . and in the meantime his only effective bargaining weapon is taken away from him. When you are asked to sign our petition to end this inequity in the Trade Unions Act, we urge you to sign it.

Fall coats with fashion finesse . . .

Saw a topcoat in Wilson's that's an absolute stunner . . . a full length model in white leather with black leather bands down front, sides and across, forming the unique trim . . . but here's the payoff: this coat is completely reversible . . . the other side is soft, gleaming black mouton, trimmed with black leather . . . and we wouldn't know which side to choose . . . It's like owning two separate and distinct coats . . . one casual, the other dressy. Size 12, and tagged at $300 . . . Wilson's have a good selection of new coats for fall and winter . . . many of them colorful imported tweeds blended with finesse and tailored to perfection . . . There's a monotone tweed coat from Sweden . . . the deep purple of wisteria . . . A blue and black mohair tweed from Rodex of London . . . A bold grey, red and camel tweed from France . . . double-breasted and slim at the top, falling into a slight A-line . . . Several shades of rose form the check design in a tailored Munrospun tweed from Scotland . . . There are lovely English Cotsmoor tweeds . . . A beige and white basket weave tweed, double-breasted, and buttoning up to a blond sheered beaver collar . . . Remember, fall's now officially here . . . you're going to need a warm coat practically any moment . . . so go see the fine collection at . . . W & J Wilson Limited, 1221 Government St., 383-7177.

Chain or link belts are worn on all sorts of costumes . . . from sweaters to dresses to overcoats.

One touch of mink . . .

All right, maybe you DO dream of dripping in mink . . . but in our opinion, a little mink goes a long way . . . and a little mink HAT does a terrific job in flattery, sophistication and sheer elegance! . . . On our last visit to Miss Frith's we saw a number of mink hats which literally turned our head . . . Any one of them would lift a simple suit to new heights . . . make its wearer look as if she had just stepped out of a page in Vogue! . . . There are pastel minks . . . white minks . . . rich gleaming dark minks . . . in toques, pillboxes, bretons, cloches and brimmed chapeaux . . . shapes to suit every face . . . and oh, so very smart and luxurious-looking! . . . Priced from about $50 to $125 . . . For a mere $30 you can get a pet of a pillbox made of mink tails . . . a most ingenious hat that zips half way up the back . . . so when it's unzipped it turns into a pert bonnet to tie beneath the chin with narrow velvet ribbons . . . Like having two different hats . . . and adorable framing a young face . . . If, however, your millinery taste runs to furs other than mink, you'll find some beauties at Miss Frith's too . . . like the dark brown Persian lamb breton . . . or the deep brown mouton . . . Miss Frith's Millinery & Fashions, 1617 Douglas St., 383-7181.

Mid-calf dresses and coats shown by Jacques Esterel were regarded as an experiment . . . or a joke . . . on the part of this publicity-conscious designer.

Distinctive Gordi ensembles at M & E . . .

Time was when you saw mostly sweet young things trooping into the Madam and Eve Shop . . . but now, more often than not, their mothers go along too . . . because they're finding such smart, wearable clothes suited to their own young-at-heart tastes! . . . We saw some very attractive Gordi outfits at M & E this past week . . . a wool gabardine dress with the popular low waist, and wide box pleat in front . . . a beige, size 13, and a brown size 11 . . . For the gal who wears a 7, there's a hot pink wool dress and jacket . . . the latter quite short, with stand-up collar, and gilt clasp fastening . . . skirt gathered at the waist . . . Another smart jacket dress is navy with raspberry red stripes on the yoke . . . military collar, double-breasted jacket . . . size 7 . . . and a similar ensemble, size 9, in a soft moss green with melon colored stripes on the yoke . . . We think these outfits are particularly good-looking . . . and while they're styled alike, the difference in colors makes each one quite distinctive . . . Another eye-catcher is the high-style purple wool dress and coat ensemble . . . with wide blue stripes on the dress . . . blue collar, cuffs and bands on the full-length coat . . . this one size 9 . . . Madam & Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

Viennese Knits Here

By NONA DAMASKE

"It's a small world" is a somewhat hackneyed expression but there are times when no other words will do.

A few days ago I met Mrs. Ghiga Foulds, a charming, vivacious woman who was born in Poland and lived there until 1944. Mrs. Foulds is a direct factory representative for P. M. Glaser of Vienna.

Damaske

In May, 1966, Madam Megher, Canada's only woman ambassador, was luncheon hostess in the Vienna Woods for the Canadian Women's Press Club group.

Hearing that I was interested in doing a story on Viennese knits, Margaret Meagher offered to make an appointment with me with the owner of the P. M. Glaser Company. It was a most appreciated suggestion as Mr. and Mrs. Glaser showed me every item of their then current collection and took me on a tour of their 65-year-old plant, founded by Mr. Glaser's father. Mrs. Glaser, a most attractive Czechoslovakian, is the head designer for the firm.

Following a tour of the beautiful city of Vienna, I left Mr. and Mrs. Glaser with the promise that I would watch for the arrival of the P. M. Glaser collection in Victoria.

This week Ghiga Foulds brought the lovely Viennese designs to our city.

From an inexpensive A-line modified tent dress in houndstooth check in shades of mauve, aqua and powder blue to a dazzling cocktail ensemble, highlighted with gold lurex thread, there are dresses, suits and ensembles for every woman.

That intriguingly pale green shade which is the inside of a ripe avacado is found in a coat and dress ensemble with a haute couture look. The coat neckline has a low-sitting collar in the flattering mandarin cut.

Green again, this time in a deeper tone, is used for a late-day ensemble. A full-length coat and dress, stunningly simple in design and sparkling with the glint of gold would make any evening function a happy one.

Shades of pale mauve and parma violet combine in a sleeveless dress with a delightful printed embroidery pattern circling the waist. Corono of Vienna is also represented by Ghiga Foulds. My favorite of this collection is a pristine white silk organza sleeveless cocktail dress completely overlaid with fine pure wool ribbon. Delightful for the more mature woman is a midnight blue late-day two-piece suit with just a twinkle of silver.

Mrs. Foulds' third collection is her "fun one" and is very well known in the United States. Triumph of Europe swimwear bears as a signature trademark a small gold coronet.

The Triumph Bikinis . . . there are 30 styles . . . are just "Wow." Such color and such cut you never did see.

The all-in-one suits . . . another 30 styles . . . are designed for all figures from "the twiggy" to the "pleasingly plump." The larger sizes, in pretty gay colors, have a full inner stretchy corset called "inner life." Many have front zippers, so much easier for the heavier woman to manipulate.

It was exciting to see these Viennese designs and again I say, "It's a small world."

After Honeymoon on Oregon Coast

WILL LIVE AT BAMFIELD

Following their wedding in First United Church newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. David Walter Hegstrom left on a honeymoon trip to Portland and the Oregon coast.

The bride, the former Lorraine Ann Ratzay, wore a gown of peau d'organza styled with a scalloped neckline and sleeves ending in lily points. A small floral headpiece held her three-tier veil which was edged with delicate Spanish lace. She carried a cascade bouquet of talisman roses and stephanotis.

White gladioli and yellow and gold chrysanthemums decorated the church when Rev. M. Fowler heard vows uniting the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nickelas S. Ratzay, 1955 Taylor Street, and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Hegstrom of Bamfield, B.C. Mr. Ratzay gave his daughter in marriage.

Mrs. Ursula Bunt was organist, accompanying Mrs. G. Wadell, who sang "I'll Walk Beside You" during the signing of the register.

The bride's attendants chose gowns of crystal charm in a deep turquoise shading to teal blue tones, and their headpieces were toning rosettes holding self-fabric veils. They carried cascades of pale yellow chrysanthemums.

Miss Diane Moncur was maid of honor, Mrs. Allen Brooks was bridesmatron and Miss Claudia August, bridesmaid.

Clarence Ratzay, brother of the bride, acted as best man, and Allan Skogman and William McDermid, both of Bamfield, ushered the guests.

At the reception following in Wolf's Rathskeller sprays of yellow rosebuds decorated the head table. John Mintianski proposed the toast to his niece.

The newlyweds will make their home in Bamfield.

Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. N. Hick, 1603 Bay Street, will celebrate their 67th wedding anniversary on Wednesday. Married in Wesleyan Methodist Chapel in Truro, Cornwall, England in 1900, the couple came to Canada in 1912 and have lived in Victoria since that time. They will celebrate the occasion at a quiet family dinner with their two daughters and son-in-law, Mrs. Clareta Hardy, Mrs. R. (May) Reed and Mr. Reed, and their grandsons, Leonard and George Reed, all residents of Victoria.

SHOPPING GUIDE

School-Time Crisis Brings Quick Action

By Penny Saver

Junior came home from school this week complaining about the loss of both his pens and gym shorts. Searching about the house I found all the pens to be either in use or else not working. Junior and I were looking for his shorts when a neighbor phoned. A mixup had occurred. Her son had been taking a class with Junior and after the class he had taken the wrong pair of shorts, leaving his at school. Leaving Junior to do his homework I decided to go downtown and see if I could do something to prevent other such emergencies.

A set containing a fountain pen, an ink cartridge, a long lead pencil and a ball-point pen is perfect for the youngster going to school. It comes in a small plastic case that makes keeping track of pens very much easier. The cost is a very reasonable $1.29.

Something every family needs is a good supply of combs. If your family is like the Saver household you probably find that somebody is always losing their comb. I find it is a very good idea to keep a supply on hand. A pack containing a large comb with both fine and coarse teeth, a styling comb and four small combs is most useful to have around. The price of the set is 15 cents.

An item I found to be very useful was a small kit containing fabric tape and a pen for putting name tags on clothes. Junior's shorts I labelled by writing his name on the dull underside of the tape, ironing the tape directly to the material, and then waiting for 15 minutes until the two fabrics were stuck. For his white sweatshirt I followed the same procedure, except that the name was written on the overside of the tape. The cost is 49 cents.

If you would like to know where I found these items give me a call at 382-3131.

Hawaiian Night

Many of the members of the Gorge Vale Golf Club and their guests will arrive in Hawaiian costumes this evening when they attend the Hawaiian supper dance, being held in the clubhouse. There will be a cocktail party from 6 to 7:30, followed by a smorgasbord featuring dishes from the Islands. The Davis Trio will provide music for dancing, beginning at 9 p.m. Ladies' captain, Mrs. Margaret Fry, is dance committee chairman.

Mrs. Howard Harper's backyard is the land of honey for many of her friends who know the pleasure of tasting the products from the hives she tends. As if this wasn't enough, they're often treated to some of the jars of preserves, fruits and chutneys which she makes to swell her bulging larder shelves. (Bill Halkett photo.)

Bees in Her 'Jungle' Get the Best of Care

By PAT DUFOUR

While many women of her age are doing their tatting or knitting, Mrs. Howard Harper believes in a more active hobby. Nudging 80, she's one of the most enthusiastic bee keepers on Vancouver Island.

She and her husband live at 1125 Clarke Road in Brentwood and the bee hives "in the jungle" at the back of their property have never lacked for attention since Constance Harper found a swarm in a bush 15 years ago and decided to take up a new hobby.

Like most hobbyists, Mrs. Harper has become an authority on hers and the quality of the honey her bees produce is well known among her friends because she believes "I get much more fun out of giving it away than I would if I sold it."

Handicapped with arthritis to a degree, Mrs. Harper has never let this interfere with her chores although she reports, "There's no truth in the belief that bee stings cure arthritis. Believe me, I know."

She's had many chances to disprove the theory. In spite of the fact that she wears the customary protective clothing, Mrs. Harper has often been stung by her "pets" when doing her chores. "Once I had so many stings on my face, I looked as if I had a bad case of the mumps."

While this sort of treatment would probably disenchant most of us, Mrs. Harper writes off bee stings as if they were as painless as freckles.

Her husband, although happy to have honey as a regular item on the table, leaves bee keeping to the distaff side of the family.

His wife teases him with, "He's scared but won't admit it. He was once stung on the hand and that finished him." The smile with which she delivers the taunt takes the sting out of her joshing.

Given any kind of encouragement, Constance Harper can make the family life of a bee hive come alive in graphic sentences. When she told how the males are thrown out of the hive during fall, leaving only the queen bee and the workers, I found the cause of most of the stings I've endured over the years. It must have been some of those thwarted winged spouses avenging their dismissal!

Mrs. Harper assures me that a queen bee would never be so unladylike as to sting a human although she's not exactly dove-like when it comes to protecting her interests in the hive.

Mrs. Harper tells how a queen bee gets rid of any possible competition before it has a chance to get started. She regularly checks the cells in the hive, destroying those that have would-be female contenders inside.

Sometimes, like a human, she misses and a future queen bee is hatched. This means the end of the old queen in her kingdom. Accompanied by those workers that remain loyal to her, she takes off to create a new dominion, causing a similar swarm to that which started Mrs. Harper on her career as a bee keeper.

Mrs. Harper suggests I join the bee keepers' ranks if I ever happen to come across a queen and her court in exile.

I'd like to, but I haven't the skin for it. I find myself a target area for bee stings with enough frequency now without pushing my luck and creating a danger area in my own backyard. The only way I'd face such an assignment would be to have a plucky octogenarian like Constance Harper in the front line with me.

FOR DEMERS-HILL WEDDING

Carries Mother's Prayer Book

Carolyn Brenda Hill carried her mother's white prayer book, covered in lace and topped with a bouquet of white roses when she became the bride of Andre Robert Demers in Christ Church Cathedral.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, Norman R. Hill, the bride wore a portrait gown of sonesta which was complemented by her veil of silk illusion which misted from a circlet of white rosebuds.

Rev. Roy A. Hoult officiated at the double-ring service which united the daughter of Mrs. Eric Beech, 3801 Quadra Street and Mr. Norman Hill, of Fort St. John, and the son of Mme. Raoul Demers of Montreal.

Pink gladioli decorated the church for the ceremony.

Miss Pamela Hill was bridesmaid for her sister, gowned in rose pink linen styled on empire lines with a self-fabric headpiece en tone. She carried a colonial bouquet of white and pink carnations.

The two flower girls, Wendy and Sharon Clermont, wore floor-length gowns of floral linen styled on similar lines, and they carried colonial bouquets of pink and white carnations.

Michael Kitson acted as best man and Robert Beech was ring-bearer for his sister.

At the reception following in the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Hill, the bride's grandparents, pink and red gladioli and white asters decorated the rooms. A three-tier wedding cake, topped with pink rosebuds, centred the head table. James Bartlett proposed the toast to the bride.

For travelling on honeymoon to Montreal the new Mrs. Demers wore a pale blue wool dress which she complemented with white accessories and a white rosebud corsage.

Coming from out-of-town for the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. T. Riseley, Mr. and Mrs. E. Paterson and Miss Sally Patterson, all of Ladner.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Tell Sister Her Problem Isn't Yours

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: My husband drives a cab and he works nights off and on. We are happily married with three children of school age. My problem is my sister, Ethel. She calls me up at all hours of the morning when one of her kids is late in getting home. It scares the living daylights out of me to get a call at that hour. I always think something terrible has happened to my husband. Well, Ethel called me this morning at 4 a.m. to tell me that her 16-year-old daughter hadn't come home from a movie date yet. Ethel's husband is a night watchman so he doesn't know about this problem daughter of theirs.

Ethel cried and carried on so terrible that I located my husband and we went looking for this juvenile delinquent in all the places we thought she'd be. We couldn't find her, so we went to Ethel's at 6:30 a.m. to calm her down, and the little darling was there! (Flat tire. O. sure!) What can I do with that hysterical sister of mine? My own kids don't get any rest with her calling all the time.

SHOT NERVES

DEAR SHOT: Tell your sister to call her own husband when she has a problem at odd hours. If she doesn't know that it's unfair to disturb you and your family, tell her! But don't expect her to be more considerate of you just because you complained to me.

DEAR ABBY: I proposed to a girl and she has accepted. My problem is this: Although she will accept an engagement ring, she told me that she doesn't like diamonds. I would like to know if there are any other kinds of stones used for an engagement?

GOING SHOPPING

DEAR GOING: Any other kind of ring you wish to buy her may be appropriately symbolic of your engagement. How about her birthstone? (If she was born in April, forget it.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "IN LOVE WITH A LIAR" IN MIDLAND: A liar suffers more than you know. Believing no one, he is ever confused, suspicious, and doubting. It's the sickness of the coward.

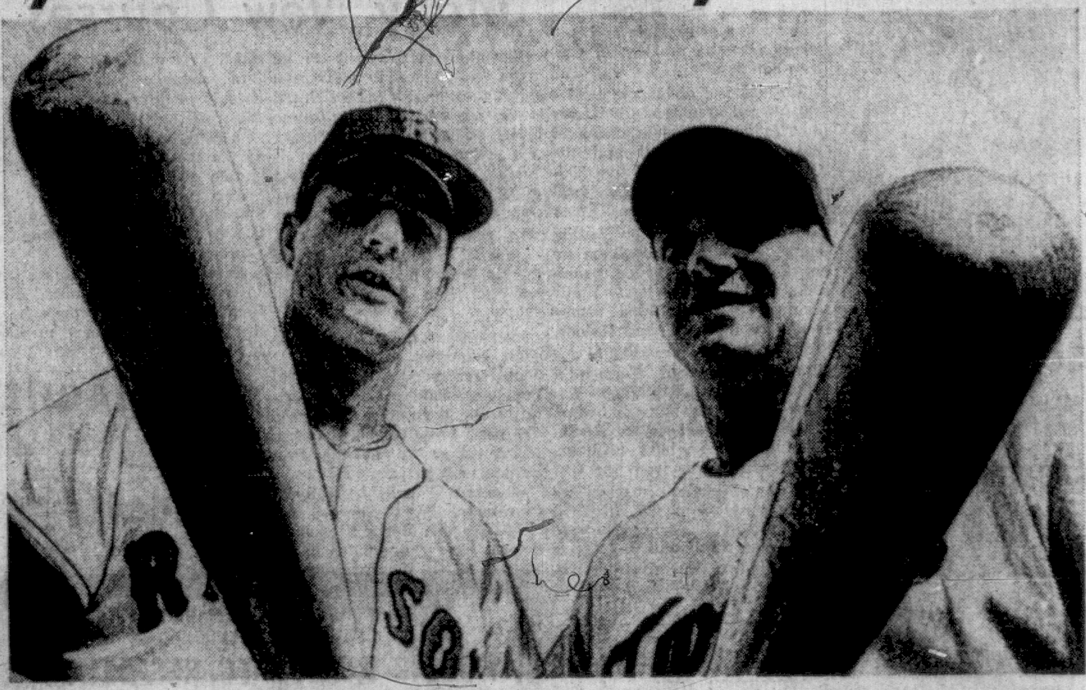
Boston, Detroit, Twins Tied



BIG BATS of home run sluggers Carl Yastrzemski, Boston Red Sox, left, and Harmon Killebrew, Minnesota Twins, are displayed before start of today's crucial American League clash. Pair went into game tied for home run lead with 43 apiece. (AP Wirephoto.)

AL Flag Drive Tight as Drum

It was a three-way tie for first place in the American League baseball pennant drive this afternoon.

Boston Red Sox moved into a share of the lead by defeating Minnesota 6-4 while Detroit Tigers made the other two move over as they blanked California Angels, 5-0, in the first game of a doubleheader. Should the Tigers win the second they will take over first place all by themselves half a game ahead.

Minnesota and Boston go at it again Sunday in a single game while Detroit and the Angels play another twin bill.

Towering home runs by Carl Yastrzemski and George Scott led Boston to their victory.

Yastrzemski's home run was his 44th.

KAAT INJURED

Twins suffered a blow in today's game when their star left-hander Jim Kaat had to leave the game in the third inning when he injured his left elbow.

Twins grabbed a 1-0 lead in the first inning but missed a chance to take a commanding edge when they left three runners stranded with only one out.

It remained that way until the fifth when the Sox took a 2-1 margin. Reggie Smith doubled to left centre. Pinch hitter Dalton Jones was safe when his ground ball to second took a bad bounce, Smith moving to third. After Santiago and Andrews had struck out Jerry Adair dropped a looper single into centre scoring Smith. Yastrzemski followed with a single for the second run.

Twins rallied to tie it in the sixth when pinch hitter Reese came through with a single to score Bob Allison, who had walked, from second.

That set the stage for Scott's home run in the sixth to give the Sox a one-run edge once again. Then in the seventh Yastrzemski smashed his 44th home run of the season with two aboard and that was the ball game.

Twins made a last-ditch rally in the ninth when Harmon Killebrew hit his 44th home run with one aboard for the losers' last two runs.

SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments / Monday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE — Coquahalla likes to blister out of the gate and gets the ideal post for it. But he isn't too dogged. Bernfield Extra shouldn't be far away and seems capable of coming off the speed. Mission Man has a look with these. My Madronna gets Harris and off one race could be the danger late. Mercilynn is a threat at the weights. Jayie may be underrated and is an interesting possibility at a price. French Cargo looked a certain winner but folded her tent in the last 16th. From the outside she would have to deliver her best. . . . MY MADRONNA, Mercilynn, Bernfield Extra.

SECOND RACE—If Princess Maya had a race over the track it would be difficult to quibble with her. She acts as if a soft strip would be alright and may have enough stamina to hold them off. Dark Susan appears the main threat early and while she has been meeting easier she's sharp. Capt. Dahl and Frisky Admiral both drop and figure in the fray. Jayleen couldn't catch easier but she was checked momentarily in the stretch. Red Repulse is going well but adds 11 pounds. Sir Silver Scot lost lengths moving on the outside and still wasn't beaten badly. If Harris can find the holes this could be the spot . . . SIR SILVER SCOT, Princess Maya, Dark Susan.

THIRD RACE — Grandview Red may try to steal this and has the rider for the task. Much depends on how well he comes away from the gate. Primali has fair foot and is shopping for a spot. Pepperoni took the lead and faltered; he's hard to guess but some of his best races have been from off the lead. Lucky Spender gets far out of it but was closing in a sprint and should appreciate the distance. Stromaway obviously needed his last; he should be much tighter today. Sienna Fire doesn't mow them down—he plods and if they tire they're in trouble . . . STROMWAY, Grandview Red, Lucky Spender.

FOURTH RACE — Souzem broke a little slowly and got too far out of it in his last. He was running hard in the stretch but Coppernoll couldn't find room. Hi-Ma-Dan likes the track and shouldn't be far away with these. G Day probably needed that last; the spot isn't too tough. Rondocal has a shot here. Dark Doll could give them a rousing battle; check her Saturday form. . . . SOUZEM, Dark Doll, Hi-Ma-Dan.

FIFTH RACE — Littlebitofsugar and Parisienne Pixie come out with their jets smoking. If either wasn't in the race the other would likely open up. But their identical styles could compromise their chances and set it up for the late chargers. Chief Malarkey can stay fairly close and come on; he didn't beat too much but the time was crisp. Velvet Morn ran into a wall of horseflesh at the head of the stretch and could have been closer. Madam Isabelle drops but her victories are few and far between. . . . CHIEF MALARKEY, Velvet Morn, Littlebitofsugar.

SIXTH RACE—About 19 crystal balls and a ton of tea leaves would come in handy here. Chocolate Lily likes the off track and gets the rail. Swan Lady used to revel in goo and can also hustle. Easy Joe switches from Sam to Frazier, runs on anything, and is by no means out of it. Bevy's Boy comes off a win and closes resolutely. Beau Kim would need his best and Miss Cye C is always a threat with her speed. Boyaggio is often close. In a typical western scramble . . . CHOCOLATE LILY, Bevys Boy, Swan Lady.

SEVENTH RACE — It will be interesting to see which one of these goes for the lead, since most of them come from out of it. Handsome Chief and Top Canadian were thundering in the stretch and are in good hands. Glencar is much improved and Taylor Way has a fairly convincing late rush. Jay Circle also closed stoutly. Ellabhai is on the upgrade but looks tougher here. Serenade in Red lacks a race over the track but might roll out early and make it rough . . . HANDSOME CHIEF, Top Canadian, Serenade in Red.

EIGHTH RACE—Pride O'Red moves from the No. 6 hole to the inside and might draw clear, especially if it stays soft. Magicmaker can zing but likes to be on the lead alone. If Frazier can get good position early with Siouxson he might grind them down late. Loodani and Famous Bayboy are the dangers from behind; the latter doesn't stop to smell the flowers from the three-eighths pole in. Hola Fire and Social Club add to the pace duel if they get it. . . . SIOUXSON, Famous Bayboy, Pride O'Red.

SUB RACE—Yansco has the foot and some day may forget to stop. Dody Dear, Concise Answer (who was entered Saturday) and Lady of Kent can be bothersome in the lane . . . DODY DEAR, Concise Answer, Lady of Kent.

Stanky's Contract Extended

CHICAGO (AP)—Chicago White Sox today gave manager Eddie Stanky a new four-year contract with a raise in pay.

Stanky, who originally signed a three-year-pact beginning in 1966 and had it extended one year in 1967, now has a contract running through the 1971 American League Baseball season.

Set New Swimming Records

LONDON (AP)—American Catie Ball and Debbie Meyer both shattered world records today in the international swimming and diving competition between Britons and Americans.

Miss Ball, 15-year-old from Jacksonville, Fla., broke the women's mark for the 220-yard breaststroke in two minutes, 46.9 seconds.

Miss Meyer, 15, of Sacramento, Calif., knocked more than six seconds off the previous mark in winning the women's 880-yard freestyle in 9:44.1.

Ultimatum Given Brian Conacher

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—General manager Punch Imlach of Toronto Maple Leafs gave Brian Conacher a 48-hour ultimatum to sign a two-year contract or be traded to another team.

"I have to make a move on Monday," said Imlach . "I've got a good deal made for him. All I have to do is lift the phone and confirm it."

LBJ CHANGES LITTLE

Stop-Bomb Offer Rejected Before

By CHALMERS M. ROBERTS

WASHINGTON—President Johnson Friday night shuffled the words of his peace overtures to Hanoi in a nationwide television address, but framed them in a policy which Hanoi has many times rejected.

On the key issue of ending the bombing of North Vietnam, Mr. Johnson said he would do that "when this will lead promptly to productive discussions."

The last five words of that phrase were exactly those used at the United Nations eight days ago by Ambassador Arthur Goldberg.

Goldberg also had said that if the bombing were to stop and negotiations begin, the talks would have to be "under circumstances which would not disadvantage either side."

The president's formulation Friday night was that "we would assume that while discussions proceeded, North Vietnam would not take advantage of the bombing cessation or limitation."

Such minute differences could be important, even critical, if there were any sign that the leaders of North Vietnam to which they were addressed were in any mood for compromise. But there is no such sign and indeed the president himself catalogued the administration's judgment as to why not.

Hence the burden of the speech was not about negotiations but about the dissent at home which, he indicated, Hanoi expects to produce a change in the American policy.

And to the dissenters at home the president gave the back of his hand, though in tones more of sorrow than anger.

There was no crack this time about "nervous nellies". Rather there was an effort to argue his case with the dissenters in hopes that some might be persuaded.

The case, however, was not new. It was founded on the Ruskian rock that the way to prevent World War III is to halt "Communist expansionism" in Southeast Asia.

"The true peacekeepers," he said, "are those men who

TWO-CHINA POLICY

Kai-shek Angry With Canada

(Times News Services)

TAIPEI—Nationalist China reacted angrily today to Canada's stand for a "two Chinas" policy at the United Nations.

The official governing party newspaper Central Daily News has asked the Nationalist Chinese government to reconsider the impending visit to Canada of C. K. Yen, vice-president and premier.

The newspaper, published by the Kuomintang, President Chiang Kai-shek's ruling party on Taiwan, expresses in an editorial anger over External Affairs Minister Martin's speech to the United Nations General Assembly last Wednesday in which he appeared to again recommend a two-China policy at the UN.

The newspaper says the Martin speech appears to conflict with a recent statement by Prime Minister Pearson that, in view of the current turmoil on the China mainland, Canada has no reason to recognize the Peking regime nor to recommend its admission to the United Nations at the current General Assembly session.

In the UN last year, Martin had recommended that Nationalist China remain a UN member but that Communist China also be admitted and given the permanent Security Council seat now held by the Nationalists.

The newspaper comments:

"We cannot help but ask whether it is Ottawa's Mr. Pearson or the UN's Mr. Martin who really represents the Canadian government."

The Central Daily News says the Taiwan vice-president's trip originally was intended as a goodwill visit to promote friendly relations. But Martin's statement at the UN "cast a dark shadow on Sino-Canadian friendship."

The foreign office declined comment on the newspaper's proposal that the wisdom of the Yen visit be reconsidered. All

PEKING—All Communist diplomats except those from Albania, Rumania, North Korea and North Vietnam walked out of a state banquet for a visiting high-level delegation from Hanoi when Premier Chou En-lai accused Soviet leaders of "running hither and thither to serve the United States imperialist scheme of 'peace talks'."

The Chinese premier made unmistakably clear once again that his government views as a hoax any attempt to end the Southeast Asian war by inducing peace talks through a bombing pause and as vain any attempt to use the United Nations to "meddle in the Vietnam question."

'HAS NO RIGHTS'

"We have consistently held that the Vietnam question has nothing to do with the United Nations; that the United Nations has no right whatsoever to meddle in the Vietnam question and that the Vietnam question can only be settled in accordance with the four-point stand of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam and the five-point statement of the South Vietnam

CARDS FANS GOBBLE UP TICKETS

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eager baseball fans snapped up 12,246 world series bleacher tickets in one hour and 15 minutes today.

The first 6,123 fans who filed up to Busch Stadium ticket windows were permitted to buy two tickets at $2 each. Thousands more went away empty-handed.

About 2,000 persons arrived Friday night and thousands more swelled the queues early today.

There is not one unclaimed seat left in the stadium.

Air Crash Kills Local Man, Wife

By DON VIPOND

The bodies of an Oak Bay couple were found in the wreckage of their private plane on the side of a mountain near Port Angeles this morning.

Dead are Charles Watts, 46, and his wife, Jean, 43, of 2960 Surrey Rd. Mr. Watts was the owner and manager of the London Silk Co. Ltd. at 1439 Douglas.

The Watts left Patricia Bay Airport about 4 p.m. Friday on a business trip to Los Angeles. When they were overdue clearing customs at Portland their plane was reported missing.

The Washington Civil Air Patrol, an auxiliary of the U.S. Air Force, had organized a search involving 11 planes and about 60 men this morning.

SAW SMOKE

But it was a pilot from the Port Angeles Flying Service who spotted smoke on Blyn Mountain about 20 miles east of Port Angeles at first light today.

A helicopter from the Port Angeles Coast Guard station was dispatched to the scene and located the smouldering wreckage of the red and white Cessna 210 shortly before 8 a.m.

The two bodies were found in the plane which had crashed about the 1,800-foot level on the east side of the 2,550-foot mountain.

The mountain lies just behind the coastal community of Blyn among the foothills of the rugged Olympic range.

Peter Watts, son of the victims and a vice-president in the firm, said this morning his parents were on a business flight to Los Angeles and intended landing at Portland to pass through American customs before completing their flight.

GOOD PILOT

He described his father as a very competent pilot with over 1,000 hours flying time to his credit.

A spokesman for the American search and rescue team said weather conditions in the area of the crash Friday night included a cloud ceiling of about 1,500 feet, intermittent rain and ground fog closing in.

George Parsons, a business associate of the Watts, said Mrs. Watts told him Friday they did not expect to be able to clear customs at Seattle because of the weather and were heading for Portland instead.

The couple were excited about attending a fashion show in Los Angeles, he said. He described Mr. Watts as "a very cautious pilot."

A team from the Clallam County Sheriff's Office and the Mountain Rescue Council were on the way by foot to the crash site this morning to conduct the recovery operation.

Mild Upset In First At Sandown

Another big Saturday crowd was on hand at the Sandown track this afternoon. The attendance was boosted with several busloads of fans from the mainland.

A mild upset was seen in the first race when Pacific Dolphin, with Basil Frazier aboard, pulled away from the tiring Starlea entering the final turn and went on to win by two lengths. Western Shadow was second and Miss Electric third.

The winner paid $14.90, $5.10 and $3.20. Western Shadow paid $3.20 and $2.30 and Miss Electric $2.80.

The one-two was worth $18.40.

Another fine card of racing will be presented Monday.

Fiery Crash Kills Driver After Chase

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—An innocent motorist was killed following a police chase through New Westminster early today.

The accident occurred after a police patrol vehicle was sideswiped in downtown New Westminster by another vehicle and gave pursuit.

Police said rain-slick road conditions caused them to give up the chase. The vehicle being pursued smashed into a car stopped at a red light. Police estimated it was travelling about 75 miles an hour but said their pursuing car never exceeded 35 miles per hour.

The impact of the accident caused the stopped vehicle to burst into flames. The driver, aged between 25 and 30, was trapped inside and perished.

WASH-IN WASN'T WASH-OUT AS LUCKLESS HIPPIE DUNKED

TORONTO (CP) — The wash-in wasn't a wash-out after all.

Despite pelting rain that threatened to do their work for them, engineering students at the University of Toronto corralled a kicking, screaming hippie in Yorkville and dragged him to their bathtub on wheels.

"We worked on the premise that if you can't bring the hippie to the water, you bring the water to the hippie," said Al Hamilton.

He described the caper as "an attempt to do something constructive."

The students marched from the university campus to the nearby Yorkville coffee house district behind a brass band, dragging a bathtub on wheels filled with warm soapy water.

Hippies scattered in all directions as the 300 students marched along Yorkville Avenue chanting their theme: "Wash, wash, wash. . . ."

A fast-moving strike force detached itself from the main body and pounced on luckless Alex Johnston, 19. He took his dunking with good humor as he climbed out of the tub, wringing his soaked clothing.

"We just wanted to show how we felt about Yorkville," said Hamilton. "We wanted to help in some way to overcome the blight."

BLINKING, Alex Johnson, 19, protests as Toronto University engineering students soak him with water and suds in what the students called an international wash-in. Johnson was the only hippie in the Yorkville area the students were able to catch with their bathtub on wheels. (CP Wirephoto.)

New Speaker For Art Talk

Unforeseen circumstances have made it impossible for B. C. Binning to deliver the first lecture of the 1967-68 University Extension Association program Monday evening.

In his place, Richard Simmons, former director of the Vancouver Art Gallery and currently visiting lecturer at the University of British Columbia's department of fine arts, will speak on "Yesterday and Today in Canadian Art".

The lecture will be given in Room 168, Elliott Building, University of Victoria, at 8:15.

National Front for Liberation," he declared.

The premier's guest of honor was Vice-Premier Le Thanh Nghi, the man who only one week ago signed an agreement covering military and economic aid—described by European Communist sources as massive —with the Soviet government.

Le, who returned to Hanoi from Moscow during last week, flew into Peking as leader of the Vietnamese delegation to attend the celebrations this weekend marking the eighteenth anniversary of the creation of the People's Republic of China.

In his response to Chou's toast, Le declared that in the present age no important international issue can be settled without the participation of China.

stand on the DMZ at this hour, taking the worst that the enemy can give." Those who do the opposite, who urge the president to get out, are only helping to sustain the Communist belief that "their staying power is greater than ours," as he quoted an unnamed western diplomat as having reported after a visit to Hanoi.

'We Must Chart Own Path'

CLEAR LAKE, Man. (CP) — The Conservative party should develop its own proposals for preserving French-English unity in Canada, leader Robert Stanfield said today.

He told a party seminar sponsored by the youth wing it would be premature for the party to commit itself to agree on unspecified federal government proposals for keeping Canada together.

Mr. Stanfield said the Conservative party doesn't know what the proposals might be, nor does the Liberal government.

"I think it is, at this time, a far better service of the public interest for this party to discuss and develop our own proposals, within caucus, and with the advice of the party at large," he said.

Mr. Stanfield's speech followed earlier reports of a meeting of minds between him and Prime Minister Pearson to take a constructive, non-inflammatory approach on the touchy question of national unity, largely involving Quebec aspirations.

It was Mr. Stanfield's first major public address since he replaced John Diefenbaker as leader Sept. 9. It dealt heavily with national unity.

He noted the prime minister has "expressed an interest" in a bi-partisan approach to unity problems. And Mr. Stanfield was "determined that these current problems must not become inflamed by merely partisan debate."

Pope Urges UN Bid

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Pope Paul has written United Nations Secretary-General U Thant offering to assist him in working to halt the Vietnam conflict, it was disclosed today.

Access Areas Still Closed Despite Rain

Despite the recent rain, Sooke logging access areas will remain closed to hunters this weekend as crews mop up slash fires to prepare for normal logging Monday.

Most Cowichan areas will be closed but No. 16 Creek and No. 19 Creek roads will be open.

It is hoped all access areas will be open to hunters next weekend.

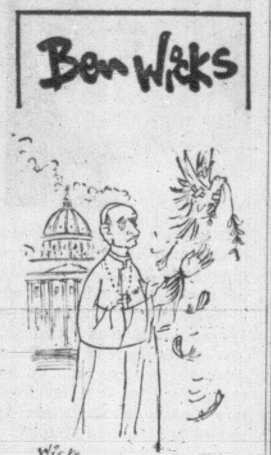
While some 200 fires are still burning throughout British Columbia, the weatherman promises weekend relief for B.C. forests.

Rain is expected to fall over most of Vancouver Island today, tonight and Sunday, with temperatures ranging between 62 and 52 degrees.

Temperature-lowering cloud covers and showers are predicted for both coastal and interior regions.

General rains over much of Vancouver Island and the lower mainland since Thursday have reduced hazards in these areas.

The B.C. Forest Service said 87 new fires occurred during the week, bringing the season's total to 3,196. The province's fire-fighting bill rose to $6,572,300—an increase of $424,800 from a week ago.



. . . CHINA

its spokesman, C. C. Lai, would say was that "the two-China concept is and always will be totally unacceptable to us."

But the fact that the issue has been raised by the Kuomintang newspaper appears significant and gives strong reason to think the Nationalist Chinese foreign office will ask the Canadian government for an explanation of its policy in advance of Yen's visit.

The Martin statement in question was made near the end of his major address to the UN General Assembly Wednesday.

He said:

"I would repeat what I said on this occasion last year: 'If this organization is to realize its potential capacities all nations, and especially those which, like continental China; represent a significant proportion of the world's population, must be represented here.'

"I outlined then what we considered to be a reasonable basis for the seating of a representative from continental China in the United Nations. While we were disappointed by the response to our suggestions, we continue to believe that they represent a reasonable and just solution to the problem of China's solution."

The essence of his proposal—not offered as a resolution—was that Peking represent China in the Security Council and the General Assembly and that Taiwan have a seat in the General Assembly.

When the time for voting came, Canada abstained on an unsuccessful Albanian resolution which would have made Peking the lone China representative in the United Naions.

This was a major shift in the Canadian position. Canada always had voted againgst Peking's admission up to that time. It abstained because the resolution would also have excluded Nationalist China from the UN.

Prime Minister Pearson as recently as Sept. 25 affirmed that Canada has not changed its opinion that mainland China should have UN membership, although the time may not yet be ripe.

Tax Break Urged

WINNIPEG (CP) — A city council committee recommended Friday that Winnipeg ask the provincial government to exempt private homes from municipal taxes on the first $2,000 of their assessment. Aldermen believed the province's new five per cent sales tax would cover money lost under such a scheme.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Clearing occurred in the interior behind a disturbance which crossed the area overnight but clouds were rapidly developing again this morning. Along the coast a moist Pacific flow maintained cloudy skies and scattered showers. Little change is anticipated for the day along the coast. In the interior showers and isolated thundershowers are expected to develop during the afternoon and evening. Another Pacific disturbance will bring more rain to coastal points tonight and showers to the interior Sunday.

Night School Offers Many New Courses

For those who want to go down to the sea in their own ships, the Saanich School Board is offering a boatbuilding course in its adult education program this year.

The course is one of several firsts in an expanded program which starts next week. Over 200 people have already enrolled in the 32 courses offered this year in School District 63, which reaches from Royal Oak to Sidney.

Frank Baxter, the director of adult education in the district, hopes enrolment will top 300. But registrations have been tardy and a number of courses will have to be cancelled unless people show up at the first classes next week.

Classes will be held mainly at Claremont High School and North Saanich Junior Secondary School. Fees range between $10 and $25 for each series.

In language courses, Esperanto is another first this year. An artificial language devised as a medium of conversation for all nations, it is described as simple and easy to learn.

Also new is a series called Singing for Fun, an opportunity to both meet people and sing as a group.

Anyone wanting information on courses is invited to call Mr. Baxter at 384-7466 or the school board office in Sidney at 656-1111.

Patience, my friends . . . I will soon be done inflicting Our Trip upon you. Meanwhile, here are a few more notes brought back from Canada's largest and liveliest city.

The sky-busting downtown hotel that soars in tier upon tier of arched windows is the new Champlian. Montreal watched it rise, then gave it the seal of approval by nicknaming it 'The Cheese-Grater'.

A few blocks away, dwarfed by neighboring giants, stands the Church of Mary Queen of the World. Statues of saints are ranged in a row along its roof; to the light-minded, those well-loved figures are 'The Baseball Team.'

Older citizens might frown on such impertinences, but the diminutive given to the spanking new though temporarily strike-idled Montreal Transportation Commission subway is universal.

It's 'The Metro', and whatever else Montrealers may disagree on, they are convinced that they possess North America's finest rapid transit system.

★

The subterranean stations are enormous, bright-lighted, and uncomfortably hot — a fault that engineers are working to correct. All are architect-designed, and each differs from its neighbor.

Stairs, and escalators convey brisk-walking crowds to ticket turnstiles and long platform. There the passengers wait in groups spotted where front and rear doors will open. A train has just pulled out; but missing a Metro train is no tragedy.

Before you can settle to wait, another multi-carred silver projectile hurtles into view.

The doors slide open. For a moment there is a confused tangle of pushers-out and divers-in. Then the doors close — in two stages so no luckless loser in the scramble will be trapped—and we're away.

The trains roll on fat rubber tires, but the impression we got on our first ride was that we were being fired through the tunnel. A sustained 'whoosh' . . . lights flick past in a blur of speed . . . and there's McGill station with a department store sitting above it.

Here's a furtive scribble that reads, 'Dig 'em out with a fork'.

The reference is to escargots, or snails, and the visiting diner-out who escapes sampling them has missed either an ordeal or a treat. We liked these chubby morsels in their subtle sauce.

I could linger on the fine food of Montreal, a city where lunching and dining are given the attention they merit. But here's a stray note on Expo housekeeping to be passed on.

The cleanup crew numbers 700, which is none too many for the mammoth job.

Arrive at the fair at its morning opening, and those spacious acres of blacktop from which the pavilions rise are clean as a fresh-scrubbed floor. Moreover, from their overnight hosing through a day of roving, munching, smoking crowds, they remain all but spotless.

The maintenance people boast that a cigarette pack tossed aside will be fielded within two and a half minutes. Let litter of any sort mar the scene, and a groundsman with dustpan and brush materializes. Perhaps even more to the point, trash cans fitted with plastic liners are never more than a few paces away.

★

One more note to end this account.

It is plain, on the home swing, that the season has turned. Ontario's wilderness lakes are still blue and the sun shines bright, but yellow leaves glow among the green of the birches.

The prairie wind, when we get off the train for a breath of outdoor air at Saskatoon, has acquired an edge.

At Edmonton, trainmen couple in the dome car, and long before the mountains can possible come in sight, we're up there. At dinner, the train is well into the foothills, but still no mountains.

I look up, and the dark, serrated line has emerged like magic from broken cloud to stride across the skyline. The couple out from Scotland peer gravely. The far-Westers smile.

"Hey," says the boy from Vancouver at the opposite table, "we're almost home!"

EXPERT IMPRESSED

Monster Seen By Prospectors

Provincial officials Friday said two Victoria prospectors have given them "the best account we've heard yet" on Sasquatch sighting.

The prospectors are brothers who do not wish to be identified but "their story held together" said provincial anthropologist Don Abbott.

One of the brothers met Recreation and Conservation Minister Kenneth Kiernan Thursday to repeat the story but Mr. Kiernan made no immediate comment.

IMPRESSED EXPERT

"They're trained observers and they impressed us as people who knew what they were talking about," Mr. Abbott said.

The two brothers said they saw footprints in snow in the Pitt Meadow area south of Garibaldi Park two winters ago.

"The footprints were similar to the ones I photographed this month in California," Mr. Abbott said.

"Then they described actually seeing the creature—a giant hairy man-like creature—at a distance of about two city blocks but in clear view.

"The creature was looking at them in the same way they were looking at him—rather curious. Then it went away."

Mr. Abbott said the propsectors accurately described the geography of the area and were able to indicate it on an aerial photograph.

"This is something other people who have reported such sightings haven't always been able to do. They took some colored slides of the footprints too but these weren't of sufficiently good quality to allow a proper examination."

Mr. Abbott said the next move is up to Mr. Kiernan.

"I don't know if this will be followed up or even how it could be followed up," he said.

"I don't know if it would be worthwhile going into that country for a search—the creature might be somewhere else entirely by now."

AURORA CLOSING

Aurora Lanes, one of Victoria's two tenpin bowling establishements, is going out of business.

Co-owner Roy Begg said this morning he has "no choice." He added that the Brunswick-Balke Company, which leases equipment to Aurora, "is taking out its supplies on Tuesday."

Mr. Begg, who owns the 16-lane establishment along with Charles Cowie, said "there is a possibility" Aurora may come to an agreement with another bowling supplier but that "we won't know for at least a week."

Arrangements have been made to move Aurora-based league's to Gibson's Bowladrome.

Shipyards Will Handle Conversions

Major conversions on three navy ships will be handled by shipyards in B.C.

While no contracts have yet been awarded; HMCS Columbia is already at Esquimalt and tenders have been called.

All three vessels are destroyer-escorts of the Restigouche class and the second ship, HMCS Chaudiere, will leave Halifax Monday to arrive here in November after stops at Fort Lauderdale, Fla., and other ports.

The third ship has not yet been named.

Each of the three contracts will involve about a year's work and will include installation of variable depth sonar to improve the ships' submarine detection capacities.

Anyone Here Seen Ma'ah? He's Gone Missing Again

HUMPHRY DAVY

Has anyone seen Ma'ah?

Ma'ah is the California grey whale who has been nosing in and out of harbors, coves and bays around Victoria for the past month.

His whereabouts is sought by Dr. Clifford Carl, museum curator, and other biologists.

The reason scientific attention is focused on Ma'ah is that he is a "rare bird." His kind was nearly exterminated at the turn of the century by whalers who hunted them for their oil.

And what makes his presence here particularly interesting is that it's the first time the species has been seen in inland waters.

Since Ma'ah arrived off Smugglers Cove early in September, marine biologists have been recording his movements and his habits — even the sounds he makes.

FRIENDLY

He's a friendly chap and has allowed boatmen to come within a few feet of him.

One of his favorite rendezvous was a small bay at the foot of McAnally Road.

Mrs. Stanley C. Mitchell, whose home faces the bay, and who was the first person to spot the mammal, now looks upon the whale as one of her pets.

But of late he hasn't been around. And this is what concerns Mrs. Mitchell, Dr. Carl and other scientists who take a personal interest in Ma-ah.

"We would like to know where Ma'ah is," said Dr. Carl. "If he is seen please report his whereabouts."

Ma'ah by the way is no ordinary whole. His kind is protected by law by Canada and the United States.

PLANTING bulbs Friday was Labor Minister Leslie Peterson in Confederation Garden near the Legislative Buildings to mark the opening of Tulip Planting Month. Similar ceremonies were held in Ottawa and in other provinces. Netherlands Flower Bulb Institute provided the bulbs, aptly named Canadian Centennial.

Reeve Curtis Runs For Another Term

Saanich municipal elections warmed up today with Reeve Hugh Curtis and Couns. William Campbell and William Noel announcing they will seek re-election.

In a poll of council members whose terms expire in December, Coun. Edith Gunning said she "very likely" will be a candidate. Coun. Digby Kier was undecided, depending on whether or not he leaves Victoria for another job.

Reeve Curtis was elected in a byelection in October, 1964, and gained re-election by acclamation two years ago. Before that he won two elections as a councillor.

"Thanks largely to progressive councils since I was elected reeve, we've been able to do a great deal of catching up," he said.

AVOIDS POLITICS

"I'd very much like to be able to lead council for the next two years to further the work we've been doing."

He also said earlier speculation about his political future has been "of concern to me. I haven't been busily engaged in looking for political work elsewhere but others thought I was. I see my service, if acceptable to the electorate, for the next two years to the municipality."

The reeve is also chairman of the Capital Regional District, the Saanich finance committee and Saanich police commission.

Coun. Campbell, chairman of the lands and planning committee, has served on council three years. He was first elected in October, 1964.

He wanted to serve another two years to finish work that council has begun, particularly the $1.25 million recreation program and implementation of the Greater Victoria sewerage survey.

Coun. Noel, elected two years ago, also said he wants to "see through" the work already started.

Only non-council candidate who has come forward so far is A. W. (Bud) Mesher.

City School Official Honored in Alberta

A local school official is in Red Deer, Alta., today to receive a tribute for his contribution to education in that province.

E. G. Callbeck, named coordinator of special educational services for the Greater Victoria school district this month, is being honored by the Alberta Teachers' Association Council on school administration.

He will receive a distinguished service award for his work as director of the elementary program commission of the Calgary school board.

B.C. Ferries Shutdown Threatens

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Arrangements have been made "for a complete shutdown" of B.C. Ferries if it becomes necessary, a union spokesman said today.

The comment came two days after ferries manager Monty Aldous discounted reports of strike aboard the 20-ship fleet.

Tom Gooderham, regional director of organization for the Canadian Labour Congress, said "no progress" was made in discussions this week between the ferry authority and the unlicensed employees on "recognition and checkoff of union dues."

He is acting as official spokesman for the B.C. Ferry Employees' Union, a branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association. The union represents more than 500 deck, catering and shore staff.

The provincial government recently reintroduced checkoff of union dues for the association at $2 a month. But the ferry union wants $3 and $4 a month, depending on individual earnings, claiming higher costs of operation.

"The B.C. Ferry Authority is unable to accede to the union's request for recognition for dues checkoff arrangements as requested by the unlicensed personnel because of government policy," said Mr. Gooderham.

"Therefore the ferry employees' union executive council wired Provincial Secretary Wesley Balck requesting an immediate meeting for discussion on the dues deduction problem and recognition for the union which is a branch of the B.C. Government Employees' Association.

"The ferry employees' union executive council is exploring every possible avenue to prevent a work stoppage and have taken this step in the hope the government will give recognition to the union, dues checkoff and thus avoid a work stoppage which would very definitely inconvenience the travelling public."

AUTHORITY REPLY

Mr. Black was not available for reply to the telegram.

Earlier this week, Mr. Aldous said union recognition is not the issue because for more than a year management has recognized the group "dealing with them in all matters concerning the unlicensed employees with full knowledge and consent of the government."

He quoted Premier Bennett as stating previously that if the B.C. Government Employees' Association wanted to have different groups within its organization with differing dues structures, "this was their own business and had nothing to do with government.

"From a viewpoint of government policy, however, these additional assessments for dues were internal union matters and the union must accept responsibility for their collection.

"The basic privilege of ($2) checkoff of uniform dues is available to all government employees."

Mr. Gooderham replied that a section of the Civil Service Act makes it clear the government recognizes the association or a branch of it, therefore it should recognize the checkoff.

More Members Sought by Y

Faced with a $35,000 debt, the YM-YWCA today is holding its centennial open house in the hopes of receiving greater public support.

More members are sought and more funds wanted for the Y's health and recreational programs.

The event was opened by Lieutenant-Governor G. R. Pearkes, who stressed the important roll the institution is playing in society today.

Mr. Pearkes presented medals to members who completed the 100-mile run in the Y's centennial physical fitness program.

David G. Titterton, chief accountant, said membership stands at about 4,000. About half are children. Another 1,000 members are sought.

He said the Y would seek to reduce its debt this year by obtaining larger city grants in lieu of tax relief. The institution's tax bill was $33,000, but it received $13,000 in grants.

Ask The Times

Q. When was the Tiajuana Brass formed and how many albums has the group issued? P.H.

A. The group was formed about 1961 and since then has issued eight albums.

Q. How much did Centennial Square cost to build? F.H.

A. The actual landscaping cost $230,000 but the square itself, including city hall, police station, McPherson Playhouse renovation, building of the restaurant, shopping arcade and car park, plus land acquisition and street work, cost $3,600,000.

CMHC BORROWERS RUSH TO GET LOWER INTEREST

'Better Ask for A Raise'

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Want to buy an $18,000 house with National Housing Act money?

Better ask the boss for a raise of about $500 a year ($10 a week) before you try.

That's one way of looking at the increase in NHA mortgage rates to 8¼ per cent from 7¼ per cent effective Monday.

The example is based on an $18,000 house (including cost of land) and assuming taxes of $25 a month net.

Under this, a person would be allowed $16,150 for the mortgage with the difference —$1,850—being the down payment, said a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation official.

Repayment—principal, interest and taxes—would be $1,810 a year or a fraction over $150 a month.

To carry this over a 25-year period, a person needs an income of $6,700 a year.

(The average weekly income of Victorians is $95, or a fraction under $5,000 a year).

The reason for the $6,700 a year income for the $18,000 house is that an NHA regulation requires mortgage and taxes must not exceed 27 per cent of income.

Under the former 7¼ per cent interest rate, for the same example, a person would need about $6,250 a year income to get going.

By AB KENT

Victoria staff of Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. has been doing a land office business in housing loan applications before the interest rate jumps to 8¼ per cent Monday.

A local CMHC loan processor said staff is deluged with applications from prospective builders and renovators wanting to get in on the last of the 7¼ per cent mortgages guaranteed by the federal government.

He said an effort is being made to deal with all applications on hand before the rate jumps one per cent, effective Oct. 1.

The new rate will be reviewed early next year.

It may then be raised again, or lowered, according to the money market indicated by Canada bonds.

AVOID BURDEN

But people who take out a mortgage at the new rate could be burdened with that rate for a time ranging up to the life of the mortgage, which is usually 20 or 25 years.

Provisions for retiring the principal early are contained in law, however. Under the National Housing Act a borrower may pay off within three years, taking out a new loan to complete the financing if rates have declined in his favor.

'Think Big' —Bonner

Builders were urged Friday to stop thinking in terms of 50-house subdivisions and start erecting multiple-family dwellings with 50 suites and sell them to individuals.

"If a solution to the housing crisis is to be produced, industry must show the way," said Attorney-General Robert Bonner.

"The construction industry has the capacities, talent and the people who want and need to do this work all at hand."

Mr. Bonner said he is "aghast" at the federal government's increase in the NHA mortgage rate to 8¼ per cent from 7¼ per cent.

WANTS REVERSAL

If the decision wasn't reversed, preferably in a matter of days, nothing but "compounded gloom" can be predicted for housing, he said.

The attorney-general said multiple-family dwellings with suites are particularly adaptable to non-profit organizations such as credit unions.

Meanwhile, a member of the Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce told a meeting Friday night it is impossible for a young man to buy a home under present costs and interest rates.

"It's just about time the federal government took a realistic look at housing," said George Robbins.

'You may have been wondering why I called this meeting . . .'

COUNTRY MOUSE GETS BAD NAME

But City Mouse Is the One to Blame

Remember the country mouse who came to visit his city cousin?

Confronted with cats and traps and all the other problems of urban living, he was glad to get back to the farm.

Well, he's in trouble again. Metro Health Officer Dr. J. L. Whitbread is on his tail.

●

"Due to the extremely warm and dry weather during the summer there has been a noticeable increase in the field mouse and small rodent population. . .

"With the advent of cooler and moister mornings, there has been a tendency for the small field rodents to invade households and similar types of buildings," says Dr. Whitbread.

He offers to any householder unable to cope with the invasion the full weight of local pest control services.

But mouse-expert, provincial museum director Dr. Clifford Carl, thinks the country mouse may be subject here to an unfair attack.

The country mouse most often seen (there are dozens of types) is the white-footed mouse. The one most often seen doing the town is a European import, a ship-jumper.

He has small (shifty?) eyes and tiney ears, a brown or grey coat with a lighter color underneath.

●

The white-footed mouse has larger eyes and ears. He's darker on top and white underneath.

"He's really quite appealing," says Dr. Carl. "He will come into empty houses or houses on the outskirts. But he's principally a seed eater."

The villainous city mouse has a huge appetite for things in your cupboards. He has a rapacious appetite and he will spoil much of what he doesn't eat. Then there's those icky nests in old mattresses.

Call the health department mice-catchers at 384-0571, or 386-3251 if you live in Saanich or on the peninsula, or 478-1757 at Sooke and Langford if the city mice are out of hand.

But take it easy on the country mouse with the big brown eyes. He has a job to do.

●

He's a food source for small carnivorous animals and birds. Some foresters don't like him because he dines on Douglas fir seeds, but they get him with those slash fires, so it's a saw-off.

And as Dr. Carl says, he's appealing.
